KEARSE BUREAU

Kearse, Feb. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Kearse left recently for their new home at Chester, and are well pleased with their surroundings generally. However, they report a deficiency of "fat splinters" in Chester county, which have been so much in demand the past few weeks. We believe old Bamberg county is the best place, after all, for we may be short of some things, but we do think we have enough "fat" stumps to supply the demand.

Farm work has been almost at a standstill for the past few weeks on account of the bad weather, however, our farmers are not discouraged, for they are hoping that the recent freeze will dull the activities of Mr. Boll Weevil. Some of our farmers have planted their tobacco beds, and others are planning to do so. G. E. Ritter has been shipping lettuce recently and receiving fairly good prices for the same. This is a new industry for our section, and we trust that other farmers will follow Mr. Ritter's example.

A little stranger came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kearse on the 24th ult., and as the weather was freezing cold they gladly welcomed him into their home and hearth, and are now receiving the congratulations of their friends on the possession of a bouncing baby boy.

Mrs. B. V. Kearse was called to Fairfax a few days ago, on account of the illness of her sister, Mrs. G. W. Jenny. On her return she reports Mrs. Jenny much better.

We are glad to report G. B. Kearse convalescent after a recent illness.

Some clever rogues broke into the store of J. S. Breland last week and succeeded in getting away with some booty, consisting of cigars, tobacco, shoes and some cash. No arrests have yet been made.

BUILD FOR CENTURIES.

Soldiers Returning With New Ideas of Architecture.

Americans returning from the war bring with them the new doctrine that a church, a public building or a dwelling should be so built that it need not be rebuilt every generation. Comfortable, attractive houses 300 years old, fine churches 500 years old are among the sights they have looked upon in France.

Just now, in a period of high cost of labor and material, this doctrine that a dwelling may be satisfactorily built but once in 300 years, should appeal to the prospective house builder. It assures at least that he need build but once in his life time and that his child may not need to build at all.

Such a house need not cost much more than one that would go to wreck in thirty years. A little well-trained thinking will be about the only difference. Four qualities must be built into such a house: Permanent material, permanent beauty of plan, permanent warmth and economical arrangement. These qualities are fundamental, always have been, and always will be. Such a house will sell well 300 years hence, and will have pleased every occupant in the meantime.

Good architecture styles are permanent. Our best styles today are centuries old. Warmth also is an abiding quality. A house that is hard to heat will not be permanent. The fuel problem will be a constantly growing factor in home life. America is not likely to see cheap coal again very soon. A house warmly built is fortified against waste in this item of maintenance.

Standardized workmen's houses, single and multiple, built chiefly of cement or clay products are to be a large feature in future housing. But these must be made attractive to the eye, and economical of upkeep. Workmen cannot live well and lay by in store unless their houses are so built.

The average earner who has built a home has to spend his life to earn it. And he has been forced to do this, often because his father built a house that did not last a lifetime. A cheaply constructed house is a waste to the family and to the community. The ideal house of the future will stay built.—Minneapolis Journal.

Reason Why.

The English cyclist rode on through the rain. He was drenched and splashed with mud from head to foot. He saw a countryman walking toward him.

"How far is Riston?" he asked.

"Eight miles in the other direction," was the answer.

"The other way?" gasped the cyclist.

"But the last sign post pointed this way to Riston."

"Ah, that post was turned round long ago to confuse the zeppelins," answered the countryman with a knowing smile.

A PRACTICE THAT DISGUSTS.

The people of South Carolina are more disgusted with the habit indulged in by legislatures of electing their own members or attaches to other offices than members and senators imagine.

Everybody knows that when members of a board are to be chosen by the general assembly citizens back in the counties, no matter what their public and private services and achievements have been, too often have small chance in a contest against a member, a senator, a committee clerk or a solicitor or other person whose work brings him into association with the body while it is in session.

In this abuse, which we heard a prominent South Carolinian the other day characterize as "outrageous," the present legislature is no worse sinner than some of its predecessors. The evil is not confined to election of members to offices—it extends often to the election of a legislator to another office so that, in violation of the spirit of the letter, or both, of the constitution, he holds a commission-ership or trusteeship as well as membership in the legislature. As the fruit of this practice various boards will in time be packed with legislators and ex-legislators and hangers-on about the legislature, an undue proportion of them being citizens of Columbia, as State House attaches for the most part reside in this city.

We do not know that more elections will be held by the general assembly during the present session but we point to the abuse and hope that the people will turn their eyes upon it. A legislature that gobbles the small positions for its own members and those of its friends so near that they can lobby for them is scarcely one having a correct sense of its responsibility to its constituents. When a judge is to be chosen, a second rate lawyer, in the general assembly, especially if he is a member of the lower house, is probably able to defeat the leader of the bar of the state.

For a legislator of vision broad enough to perceive that legislators represent the people, not themselves, and hold their votes in trust, the opportunity is excellent to take the lead in putting an end to this wretched misuse of power.—The State.

My compensation for service will be very conservative, and I am sure the nominal amount invested will be money well spent.

NOTICE CONCERNING PLOWING IN PUBLIC ROADS.

Pursuant to recommendation of the Bamberg County Grand Jury, the landowners of the county cultivating lands adjacent and adjoining public roads are hereby urgently requested not to plow into or allow their hands to plow into the roads. Landowners are requested to plant two or three rows of crops adjacent to roads parallel with the road, so that there may be proper turning space without the necessity of turning plows in the roads. It is against the law to allow plows to damage the roads, and it is an unnecessary practice. The county spends large sums of money in road building, and the roads belong to the people. I have no desire to prosecute anybody, but I must insist that this practice be stopped immediately. The farmers and tenants can cooperate in this respect, and there should be no necessity to bring action against anybody. Full notice is being given before I take such action.

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Theford's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennesse Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficiency of Theford's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver.

"I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Theford's Black-Draught Liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes.

Always ask for Theford's. E. M.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

For the convenience of those living in different sections of the county, the auditor or his deputy will be at the following places on the days and dates mentioned for the purpose of taking returns of real and personal property, and all taxpayers are urged to make a list of everything they are to return. On account of real estate being returned again for 1922, I would suggest that each taxpayer owning land find out just how many acres he has of tenable land, number of acres of wood land, and number of acres of swamp land. That will enable the board of assessors to get at the valuation more accurate, and the land owner will not have to pay as much for inferior land as he pays for lands that he is cultivating. In order that no mistake will be made try and make your own return.
