J. C. Guilds Heads Pythians of Slate

At the annual convention of the grand lodge of South Carolina Knights of Pythias, held in Spartanburg last week, Col. J. Caldwell Guilds, former headmaster of Carlisle school and at present president of Columbia college, was elevated to the exalted position of grand chancellor of the Pythians in this state.

To head the Pythians of South Carolina, some ten thousand in number, is an honor of which any Pythian may well feel proud, and is an honor that comes to few Pythians.

Five years ago Col. Guilds was elected a Pythian by Bamberg lodge No. 38, Knights of Pythias. This lodge conferred the three ranks on him, in the conferring of which several officers of the grand lodge participated.

of the order shown by Col. Guilds, coupled with his eminent fitness for leadership, was discerned by the local lodge, and shortly after his induction into Pythianism he was made chancellor commander.

Although Col. Guilds was a new member of the grand lodge, and comparatively new in Pythianism, on his first visit to the grand lodge as a representative of Bamberg lodge, friends without his solicitation urged him for grand prelate, a position to which he was elected.

Upon Col. Guilds' accepting the presidency of Columbia college, his lodge membership was transferred to one of the Columbia lodges.

Bamberg Pythians and citizens generally feel a personal touch in the honor that has been conferred upon the town's former citizen.

County Council Meets.

The meeting of the County Council of Farm Women met in Miss Varn's office in Bamberg Friday, May 26, at 4 p. m.

Miss Cooper, the president, called the meeting to order. It was moved and carried that there be an election of officers at this time for the ensuing year—the result being the election of the present officers.

Mrs. Coggins being absent, Mrs. Mayfield was asked to act for her. Mrs. Kline, the state agent of cooperative marketing, was then introduced and gave one of her best talks on the subject.

A committee was appointed to see the proper county officers relative to some needed furniture in Miss Varn's office, consisting of Mrs. Mayfield, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Hunter.

Committees were appointed from the clubs to have certain questionnaires distributed and filled out by all the members so as to help the agent in reporting her work.

Only 20 More Days to Enter the Contest

Only 20 days remain in which to get your answers in to The Herald's "Busy Bee" picture puzzle contest.

A few days will elapse before the answers can be gone over, and then the prizes will be awarded. The prizes do not consist of the usual merchandise offered in contests, but will consist of real good old spendable "mon."

One of the most attractive features about the Bee Hive picture puzzle is that it does not cost anything to try. If you gain nothing, you lose nothing.

The educational feature of this contest appeals to many people. The thing looks simple, and it is simple. Open the page now. You see a picture there with many objects on it.

Some of them will put your mind to work. You know what they are, but maybe you just can't recall the right name.

A good many of those hunting "B" words are working on them at intervals. There is danger in that.

Some of our friends are under the impression, too, that in order to qualify they must send in somebody else's subscription to The Herald.

Another thing. No one connected with The Herald in even the remotest degree is eligible to receive a prize.

Don't procrastinate. Send in your answer today.

"D. B. Rhodes, a student at Wofford college, member of the freshman class and substitute halfback on last year's football team, was drowned at Cleveland park lake here this afternoon.

"Rhodes with his roommate and a party of Wofford students went to the park immediately after dinner today and one after another dived into the lake from a concrete bridge to swim across to the diving tower.

"The young man was 20 years old. When a student at Carlisle he received a medal. He was intending later to study medicine."

State Candidates to be Here July 6th

State candidates and candidates for congress from the second congressional district will speak in Bamberg on Thursday, July 6th, according to the itinerary announced by the state Democratic executive committee last week.

There being no senatorial election this year, the congressional candidates will be included in the one itinerary, instead of coupling them with the senatorial candidates, as is usual in senatorial election years.

At present the veneer is being furnished by a local veneer plant, but a veneering machine has been purchased and will soon be installed.

Denmark is an excellent location for this industry, it is said, as it is in the heart of a prosperous trucking district, and with three railway lines through the town it is a fine distributing center for this product.
