Rapid Recovery.

Rastus was on the firing line for the first time. During a lull in the barrage he came to the conclusion that somewhere else was the place for him and set off at high speed. The corporal saw him as he was on the point of entering a convenient shell hole and yelled:

"What yo'-all doin' there? Come back and take your medicine."

"Doan' need no medicine," Rastus shouted back. "Ah's cured, Ah's done cured!"

Music Hath Charms.

"I presume," remarked one Pennsylvanian to another, "that to educate your daughter in music you spent a great deal of money."

"Yes, but she has brought it all back to me."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; I'd been trying to buy out my next door neighbor at a low price for years, and could never bring him to terms until she came home."—Life.

Bum Museum.

A countryman visiting the British museum said to the attendant:

"Have you no skull of Julius Caesar here?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Well," said the countryman, "I don't think much of this place. They've got a fine one in the museum in our market town."

Consideration.

"Now," said the lawyer who was drawing up the will of the millionaire, "is there anything more you want added?"

"Yes," replied he of seven figures, "just say that the ladies to whom I have been paying alimony are to have their allowances right along."

The Call.

"Extra!" shouted a newsboy in Hollywood.

And in a moment he was the center of a seething mob of supers.

A Man Must Live?

"A man must live, We justify
Low shift and trick to reason high,
A little vote for a little gold
To a whole senate bought and sold,
With this self-evident reply.

"But it is so? Pray tell me why
Life at such cost you have to buy?
In what religion were you told
'A man must live?'"

There are times when a man must die.

"Imagine for a battle cry
From soldiers with a sword to hold,
From soldiers with a flag unrolled,
This coward's whine, this liar's lie,
A man must live!"

BOONE'S HOME FALLING.

Old Stone House Is Yielding to the Elements After 192 Years.

Deteriorated by the elements it has withstood for 192 years, the stone house in the foothills of Exeter township, Berks county, Pa., where Daniel Boone, the Kentucky pioneer, was born, is slowly falling to ruin from lack of care. Until two years ago the house had been tenanted and the necessary repairs made, but now it is deserted, the cellar full of water, broken, floors decaying and the 160 acres of estate are uncared for.

The farm is situated about one and a half miles from Stonesville. The lane leading to the premises is marked by a large white rock placed by the Historical Society of Berks county, on which is the inscription: "One quarter mile to the birthplace of Daniel Boone, October 22, 1733."

In this connection it may be said that some authorities give the date of his birth as 1734 and 1735, and his birthplace Berks county, Pennsylvania.

According to history Boone stayed here until he was 17 years of age, when he went to Kentucky. Tradition has it that it was nearby that he killed his first bear when he was 14 years old, and he was so proud of his achievement that he carved an inscription on a tree with his hunting knife, reading: "D. Boone killed a bear near here."

The house has four rooms on the first floor, six on the second and an attic. The original Boone dwelling had two rooms on the first floor and three on the second, but an addition similar to the original in every respect was made after the family migrated.

One of the original rooms contains a large fireplace made of stones and still in good condition. Here it was on the mantle piece, according to tradition, that young Boone carved a notch indicating his height when he went to Kentucky, and upon his return in middle age was interested to see how much he had grown. However, the historic notch cannot be discovered on the mantle piece.

The shutters and doors of the dwelling are hung on wrought iron hinges and still are in good condition, but many of the windows are broken, permitting rain and snow to enter and causing the floor to decay.

Efforts have been made to have the state purchase the house where the pioneer was born, and still more recently, there have been reports that the Historical Society of Clarke county, Ky., has interested itself in the possible purchase of the farm for historical purposes. The farm is valued at $15,000, according to late estimates.

The constitutionality of the women's poll tax law is being tested in the courts of Weatherford, Texas.

People all over the Southeastern country are learning things about their land they never knew before.

Oxford, England, has a school where women are instructed in the duties of voting.

Twenty out of very 100 persons engaged in gainful occupations in the United States are women.

According to opinions expressed by many large employers, single women are more reliable as workers than married women.

Massachusetts and Rhode Island are the only ones of the New England states in which women exceed the men in number.
