MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1921.

Mrs. H. H. Bell was recently elected mayor of Brewton, Ga., a town of 250 people. Five women were chosen aldermen at the same time. They will elect a police woman and will also elect a woman as clerk. We watch with interest the developments.Hope of any lasting results from the arms' limitation conference is fast passing. Mr. Harding's proposed plan of having the nations enter some sort of vague federation is likewise passing. It is too much like the league of nations to suit the opponents of the league. All in all, the whole thing is turning out to be much ado about nothing.It is right funny, or would be were it not so pathetic, to see how some of our farmers are facing the boll weevil menace. One man says: "I don't think the boll weevil will do any real damage this high up." Another says: "I don't believe we will be able to raise a lot of cotton next year." Still another says: "I am not going to plant a row of cotton." And so it goes. All of which shows that our farmers are considerably at sea.But the thoughtful man is planning to raise food and feed his wife.
He is planting oats and wheat. He is preparing to feed the stock upon his farm and to raise meat and bread for his family. He will be safe as a silver dollar. Now, if such a farmer will plant a small acreage to cotton, having destroyed his old stalks and the trash in hedgerow and on terrace, then give diligence to picking weevils in the spring, he will raise cotton, good cotton. Such a farmer has nothing to fear the coming year.Our cat says a blind tiger is a potential murderer.Our cat says tax dodgers are the greater grumblers about high taxes.Our cat says an ardent wooer often makes a neglectful husband.Our cat says slow pay leads to restricted credit.Our cat says a crib full of corn is a strong defense against the boll weevil.Our cat says farmers should destroy cotton stalks at once.Spaniards swimming ashore after the defeat of the Armada in 1588

"In Principle"Washington, Nov. 25 (By the Associated Press).—Gradual abolition of extraterritorial rights in China was agreed to "in principle" today by the arms conference, and an exhaustive examination of the Chinese judicial system was decided on to determine how rapidly the change can be accomplished.Sitting as a committee of the whole, the delegate virtually decided in executive session to put the investigation hand into an international commission of jurists, who would visit China next year and report direct to the governments concerned as to the ability of the Chinese authorities to take over the full administration of justice now exercised in large part by foreign tribunals under the extra-territorial privilege.The step, to be consummated tomorrow by the adoption of a formal declaration of policy and an authorization for the investigating commission, was regarded as virtually completing the work of the conference relating to extraterritoriality. The framing of the resolution was left to a sub-committee headed by Senator Lodge of the American delegation with instructions to report at tomorrow's meeting.During today's session the committee also gave some consideration to the question of postal autonomy for China, but no decision had been reached at adjournment.American Views Yet UnchangedWashington, Nov. 25 (By the Associated Press).—Despite supplemental estimates to support Japanese claims for higher naval tonnage ratio than proposed in Secretary Hughes' naval limitation plan, American naval experts, it was asserted today on authority, find no reason to revise their original estimate of the relative naval strength of the three powers. That estimate, so far as Japan is concerned, is reflected in the "5-5-3 ratio" proposed by the United States, while Japan is understood to claim that the ratio should approximate 10-10-7.Details of the Japanese naval arguments have been turned over to the naval experts of the five powers considering such questions for the information of the delegations. The naval men will not get together again in general conference, however, until next week.The Tokyo data follows closely the line of argument already presented by the Japanese officers here in challenging the accuracy of the American estimate of existing Japanese naval strength. In stating his proposal, Secretary Hughes named as one of the general principles under which it was worked out the necessity of general adherence to relative strength of existing naval forces in providing for the immediate reduction proposed.
It is on this point that the experts are comparing data and seeking to reach agreement. Most of their work is done through exchange of documentary tabulations and expositions of the situation.camels in Morocco.

Constantine not Recognized By Our GovernmentAthens, Nov. 24.—The Protevousa, organ of M. Gounaris, the Greek premier, announced recently that the United States government would soon recognize King Constantine.The newspaper asserted that, after the elections in November last, the United States government complained "that the Greek government had not announced to the White House the second advent of King Constantine to the throne."In those days, says the Protevousa, Greece was represented in Washington by a junior and unfledged member of the diplomatic service named M. Drakopoulos. This young diplomatist having misinterpreted the instructions of the then prime minister, the late M. Rhalys, briefly communicated to the American government that there was no occasion to announce the return of King Constantine to the throne, inasmuch as he had never ceased to be the lawful sovereign of Greece.This is said here to have created the impression that the obligations assumed by Greece during the Veni-zelist regime would not be recognized.
To eliminate this impression, the Hellenic government categorically declared to Professor Edwards Capps, then American minister in Athens that Greece fully recognized those obligations.According to the explanation given here, Constantine was, however, not recognized by the United States owing to the action of a European power which declared that if the United States government recognized Constantine that power would recognize the regime in Mexico.However, the Protevousa says, the European power in question has now assumed a more conciliating attitude and on the other hand, relations between the United States and Mexico have appreciably improved. It is, consequently, says the premier's organ, to be expected that the Con-stantinian question will now be settled so far as America is concerned.It is regarded as urgent that a Greek special delegation should go to the United States since it is almost impossible for the Greek government to be in constant touch with its diplomatic representative in Washington owing to the great distance separating the United States capital from Athens.

Tokio Wants Health Center

New York, Nov. 27.—Tokio wants a health center like those of the large cities of the United States and Europe. In an effort to obtain it, Dr.
R. B. Teusler, director of St. Luke's International Hospital at the Japanese capital, has just come to New York to interest Americans in a project to so expand that institution as to equip it to perform the functions of a health center.At present Tokio has no institution that would correspond to the health centers of other nations.It is proposed to make St. Luke's Hospital the nucleus for an establishment which shall include a hospital of 250 beds, a training school for 150 Japanese nurses, a post-graduate department for training Japanese internes and for medical research work, a public welfare and health department for training Japanese internes and for medical research work, a public welfare and health department to include medical social service and a medical laboratory for American and British medical literature and magazines. Dr. Teusler says that about $1,000,000 would be required to properly establish the proposed health center.Kiddies' Colds Can

BEST BANK in all the SOUTH
Which is it? The best bank is that one which will best serve your individual and personal needs—that one, in short, which will regard all your financial affairs as its own.
We have a lot of respect for banks in general. They are splendid servants of mankind—trustworthy, sincere, and deserving in the highest degree. There is no basis for comparison between banks, and no need for comparison. It isn't right for any one to claim to be superior. But it is gloriously right for every bank to try to be the very best bank in the South.
