ads between Columbia, and Complete, S. C. and successful operation, at the Rice Greek Springs. These Springs are simulated on the high lands between Columbia, and Comden, S. C. and have long been resorted to, by many families from these places, as a summer residence of great salubrity and comfort.

The organization of the school is on the plan of the most approved Gymnasia in Europe&America. It is designed to obvinite many of the defects in our common schools of terming, and to combine, yet are an practicable, all the improvements of the age of the important subject of Education. Providing a made for a thorough course of instruction in the following departments:

An elementary Department, comprising Reading, Spelling, Writing, Geography, Arithmetic, and English Grammar. As a thorough knowledge of these branches is indispensible in laying the loundation of a good Education, every student, in the early course of his study will be required to be master of them.

A Classical Department, embracing the Latin and Greek, Freuch, Spanish, and Indian languages. The Latin and Greek, will be taught thoroughly and gramatically. The student may prosecute them to any desirable extent, but as much time is often unprofitably spent in the study of these languages, in will be required to pay no more attention to them, than suits the design of his education.

The Bellies Lellres Department, comurising

his education

The Belles Lettres Department, comprising Composition, the Principles of Tasle and Criticism, Elistorie, and History.

A Scientific Department, comprising the higher branches of Mathematics, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Topography, Measuring heights and distances, Surveying, Navigation, (Ivil Engineering, Natural Philosophy, Natural History, and the application of Mathematics to Architecture, and to the principles of Mechanics.

A Commercial Department, embracing Book keeping by single and double entry, the forms of commercial instruments, with all that relates to the details of commercial transaction; the listery and details of commercial transactions; the listery and objects of commerce, its influence on society and civil liberty, and its connection with Political Economy and International Law; the Constitution of the United States, with the best illustration of its principles, furnished by cotemporaneous of its principles, furnished by cotemporaneous exposition, and legislative and judicial decisions.

An Agricultural Department, in which will be faught Chemistry, Mineralogy, Geology, Zoology and Botany, so far as these sciences are of imporand Bolany, so far as these acreaces are of impor-tence in a practical application to the purposes of Agriculture. The character of different sails, with the best method of improving them, and their adaptation to different productions; the raising of stock for labor or food, with the grasses and vege tables for their use; the implements of husbandry for saving and facilitating labor, with all that relates to practical farming. A Department of Military Science and Physical Education, embracing the principles and practice of the Military Science, Gymnastics, and all that the students of suffishe age will be formed into a Military Corps for stated drill and discipline—This is designed to add one profitable variety to the department of Exercise and Physical Education, while it imparts practical knowledge in a science intimately connected with the duty of every American citizen. A regular and system-etic course of exercise will be practiced by every student, in which due regard will be find to his former habits, particular constitution, and the wishes or directions of his parents.

Those students who are designed for College, will be prepared to enter any of the classes. Those who wish to complete their education at this institution, will receive a course of instruction tropy liberal, and adapted to their intended pursuits in life.—They may pursue the full course, embraced in all the Departments, or such parts of it only as are applicable to the designs of their education Apparatus, for the illu tration, and practical application of the mathematical and physical scien

Their manners will be cultivated by the family order, that will be given to the whole internative accounts of the institution, and by the terms of intercourse constantly sustained between the teachers and students, in which the deportment of gentlemen, and the coortesies and civilities of wall regulated society, will be carefully inculcated and insisted on.

Weekly reports of all the classes, designating the proficiency and conduct of every student, will be made, from which semi-annual reports will be transmitted to perents. There will be private examinations weekly and quarterly, and public examinations weekly and quarterly, and public examinations annually. No student habitually negligent of study, or leastentive to the laws of the institution, after all proper means have failed to reform him, will be permitted to refain his connection with the school. No student will be retarded by his class, but permitted to reap all the advantages of his talents and industry. Public prayer will be attended daily, and religious worship on the Sabhath, at which all the students will be required to be present. There will be one annual vacation of three weeks, arranged at a sulfable season for students to visit their friends.
