Beaufort, S. C., OCT. 25, 1877.

The County Commissioners will be in session on Thursday November 1st.

There was quite a revival at the Union Baptist Church near Hoovers on Sunday the 14 inst. under the Rev. Abel Williams, a number of persons presenting themselves as candidates for baptism.

Some ages hence the industrious phosphate digger engaged in exploring the depths of Beaufort River with his tongs, may to the surprise of the savans of that time, bring to the surface the unmistakable remains of a horse, and the wonder will be discussed as the sharks teeth are by us, until the patriarch of the great city that will then be built on this site, will call to mind the tradition of the sudden death of Mr. Schult's horse in the middle of Bay street and its consignment to a watery grave.

Epicureans and lovers of the good things of this world will do well to consult the Bill of Fare we have just gotten up in our office for the new Cafe just opened in gorgeous style at the Sea Island Hotel.

"The Club" also advertises in to-days issue that the Dining and Supper Rooms of that establishment will re-open on the first of November. Mr. Foley is a No. 1 in the catering line, and reduced prices are always acceptable. We take quail on toast in ours.

The brig "Derwent" captain Robert Wilkerson, said to be the oldest vessel that floats, is again in our waters consigned to the well known mills of Robins Bodington & Company from whom she will take a cargo of lumber.

The Derwent was built in 1776, and has her original planks and lumber still as sound as the day they were put together and is as staunch as when first built. She registers 270 tons though her burthen is nearer 350. She is of Merryport, Cumberland, England. Her captain is a social, jolly tar and is as proud of his ship as an Indian is of a jewel in his nose. Longer still may the Derwent float.

Capt. Riley Youmans brought his company of the National Guard from Alameda to Beaufort last week, not having been notified of the fact that the time for inspection had been postponed until November 27th. The men to the number of 53 paraded our streets with some companies from St Helena and had they the proper uniforms would present a good appearance. Their stay in town was characterized by quiet and orderly conduct throughout.

Work has been temporarily suspended on the railroad which is to connect the Savannah and Charleston R.R. with the North Eastern and other roads in the city of Charleston by means of a bridge near Beaufort. The delay arises from legal forms which have to be gone through with in concluding the right of way over the track of the South Carolina Railroad. It is still thought that the road will be completed and open early in November.

In Columbia the Court of General Sessions opened on Monday last. Judge Townsend presiding. has been occupied with the trial of ordinary criminals, and it will be a week or two before the cases instituted by the investigating committee will come up.

The case of the Union Trust Company of New York vs. The Port Royal Railroad Company was brought before Judge Bryan in Charleston on Monday. An application was made in behalf of certain bondholders, directing the receiver to cause the bondholders to produce and prove their bonds and for him to enquire upon what terms the sale of the mortgage property should be made.

Our Representative.

Early Branch, Oct. 17th, 1877. Mr. Editor:

Will you allow me through the columns of your paper to dissent from your correspondent "Harmony" in regard to placing another candidate (though worthy) in the field for Congress in case the contested seat of Mr. Tillman versus Smalls is sent back to the people of the 5th District. because Mr. Tillman did in good faith receive the nomination of the convention irrespective of the "forlorn hope" of the Democratic party at the time, and went through the campaign with a great deal of trouble and expense to himself in consequence of having received the nomination at the bidding of the people themselves through their representatives in the convention, and is therefore entitled to the candidacy again in the event that the election is sent back to the people. Now Mr. Tillman is surely a gentleman of qualification and high standing and therefore worthy of a seat in Congress, or the Edgefield delegation in the nominating Convention that was composed of high toned patriotic gentlemen never would have submitted his name for the consideration of the convention.

Firmness and good faith in the Democratic party should be like the Ionian column—its "simplicity should charm, and its strength sustain" us in all of our transactions. And while I am charitable enough to believe that your correspondent meant the good of the people, yet I think his suggestion has the significance of throwing discord in the ranks of the Democratic party, because it will be regarded as a reflection, not only upon Mr. Tillman and the worthy delegation from Edgefield, but the whole convention who nominated him. Now will you please for all concerned, I should like to see...

step in now and reveal the deliberate action of our late convention because we see a little break of day in our political horizon would be something like the want of good faith among ourselves. I for one will never fall a victim to so great an inconsistency, and thus bring evil and discord within the ranks of my own party—but will always endeavor to maintain the safety of the State by preserving the great palladium of good faith. D. E. J.

Fourteen dollars and sixty cents have been contributed by the citizens of the fourth ward in Columbia for the relief of the Port Royal sufferers, making a total of fifty-five dollars and sixty cents contributed for this purpose in Columbia.

Several cities in Georgia are fighting the Central Railroad on account of its extortions. At Jonesboro cotton is being hauled to Atlanta, twenty miles, in wagons, and goods are taken back in the same vehicles. The railroad has thus been forced to come down, but the wagon train still receives the greater part of freight.

A meeting was called by the town council of Georgetown last Thursday eve, to consider the question of laying a corporate tax to aid in building the projected Georgetown and Chester railroad. The meeting was fully attended and favorable resolutions were adopted, the citizens voting to assist the construction of the road to the amount of fifty thousand dollars.

THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

The Russian campaign for 1877 is probably over. The season is now so far advanced as to render future operations exceedingly unlikely, if not impossible. Heavy rains have rendered the roads impassable, and snow has already fallen in the Balkan mountains. The campaign thus closes if not disastrously at least most unfortunately for the Russians. Since the crossing of the Danube they have met with reverse after reverse, and are not relatively so well off in men and material as they were when the contest began. Their losses must have been immense—much greater than those of the Turks who were fighting behind entrenchments, in passes, and almost always upon the defensive. The campaign has been a failure, and that very fact will militate against the idea of peace. The Russian army must win a decisive victory—must demonstrate their superiority—before the Czar can well consider any proposition for a suspension of hostilities, come from what source it may. We look, therefore, for another year of war, at least in Europe; and the next campaign may result far differently from the one just closed.

The Newberry Herald enters a protest against the re-establishment of the shipping-post, and says:

We are totally opposed to whipping a punishment, because we believe that the lash is a debasing effect, not only on the criminal, but on him who has to use it and on the community at large. It would drive away every spark of manhood out of the criminal, destroy the self-respect of the latter, and then turn him loose upon the community a hard, mean, disgraced, desperate villain—the man all gone, only the animal left.

Something should be done to check these petty offences of which complaint is so justly made. We believe, with the Pickens Standard, that the best preventive is to establish a system of "convict labor" throughout every county. If a man steals, instead of putting him in the county jail to be fed at the county's expense, put him to work on the public roads—they certainly need it. Work is the punishment most dreaded by those who steal, more even than the lash. They steal to keep from working. If they find that they must work whether they steal or not, they will prefer to work for themselves rather than for the county, and thus the principal incentive of theft will be removed. This plan has been established in Georgia and has worked admirably. We hope it will be adopted in South Carolina.

Seven hundred and fifty thousand human beings have died of starvation in British India, and benevolent men and women in London, having already redressed the wrongs of horses and logs, are now devoting themselves to neglected cats.
