LEFT HIDE. Captain of Bellmen Spurgeon Mangum, at the Columbia hotel was chuckling something useful the other day. It seems that the "silly" boys out at the corner of Gervais and Hunter, just across from the post office, are invariably fall for the old "pocketbook" gag. Spotting a suspicious looking party Mr. Mangum walked over and asked, "are you an all-right person whereupon the party grew angry and began spluttering off. Mr. Mangum then said, "oh that's all right. The FBI man back there just asked me how you were," which was a rebuff, but Mr. Mangum never got any further. The man spun around two or three times in a figure which was the straightest and clearest route, then took off as fast as his legs could carry him.

STRANDED. Last week the membership of Bethel AME Church, while proud that their pastor is one of two presidents at Wilberforce University, where at the same time, the fact that until the war before row cooled off or prior word of the local Wednesday, June 19 by their superior, strangled in day for them at Dunbar Lake, and the countless day and a whopping offer time. They'll get their affairs in order as possible this summer if they can.

PAID UP. William H. Ford, from the money market, says he is a member of the same class as the late Charles C. Wright, who died last week.
