Johnson issued a directive to the armed forces last April 6 to relieve the long-standing and traditional segregatory patterns in each service and to report their plans for ending racial discrimination in their respective branches.

The air force decided to inactivate the Lockoure unit redistributing its 2,000 members throughout the USAF. No definite date has been set for the inactivation and redistribution, but it is expected to take place shortly. The policy goes into effect immediately and is to be in full operation "on or before Dec. 31, 1949."

Present Negro strength in the air force is 21,026, seven percent of the service's total figure. Of that number 316 are officers, 5 warrant officers, and the remainder enlisted personnel. Although the air force policy calls for assignment and advancement of Negroes on an individual basis, there will still be some separate Negro units.

Dr. D.V. Jemison, President of the National Baptist Convention, Inc. was guest of the Convention. Dr. Jemison gave a very inspiring talk to the delegation on Thursday evening.

Kennedy, in rebuttal, brought up the race issue. He said State Righters "couldn't stomach" Truman's civil rights program as that if it passed, textile workers would be working alongside Negroes in cotton mills.

Grant bounded back to criticize Kennedy for injecting the race issue into the discussion. He said: "Any man who would raise the issue of racial discrimination should be incarcerated within the confines of our walls for an indefinite period."

"We seem to have arrived at a time when the Negro is going to participate in government," he continued. "They voted in the primaries last summer. Men should be elected to office on their merits and not because they appeal to race prejudice."
