

The Hot Wave.

Some of the oldest citizens say the weather the past week, has been the hottest ever felt here. The thermometer stood from 100 to 109 for three days. Several cases of exhaustion from heat occurred on Saturday and Sunday.

ELSEWHERE.

Thirty cases of sunstroke occurred in Philadelphia on Sunday. Six in Baltimore, eight in Chicago and sixty-two from the effects of the heat, while the mortality among the children of families occupying tenement houses was fearful.

Clicked on His Coffin.

QUADALAJARA, Mexico, July 12. —Yesterday the body of Juan Aminte, a telegraph operator, lay in its coffin in church ready for burial. A companion near it heard regular taps inside, which clearly clicked out, "I am alive." Surprised, he gave the alarm and the telegrapher, weak but still alive, was rescued and restored.

Powderly on Immigration.

Mr. Powderly may go wrong in some cases, but as a rule he is right. He seldom goes off half-cocked. The latest thing we have seen from him is on the question of immigration. Of course, he is opposed to the landing of pauper immigrants in this country. Mr. Powderly, however, goes further, and suggests that an immigrant to this country should be required to be able to sustain himself and family one year. This might not prove a bad rule. There is a disposition in some quarters to encourage immigration to this country regardless of its character. This is a great mistake. We want good citizens in the United States, and the greatest precaution should be taken to prevent socialists, anarchists and dynamiters from making their homes among and diffusing their dangerous doctrines into the minds of ignorant people.—Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer.

Mr. Powderly, the official head and front of the Knights of Labor, has taken a radical position on the liquor question. In a lecture on temperance, published in the Journal of United Labor, he says: "I know that, in refusing to even touch a drop of strong drink, I was and am right. In refusing to treat another to that which I do not believe to be good for myself to drink, I know I am right. In refusing to associate with men who get drunk, I know I am right. In not allowing a rum-seller to gain admittance into the Order of the Knights of Labor, I know I am right. In advising our associates not to rent halls or meeting rooms over drinking places, I know that I am right. I done this from the day my voice was heard in the council halls of our Order. My position on the question of temperance is right. I am determined to maintain, and will not alter it one jot or tittle."

NOT ANOTHER LUTHER.

Some enthusiastic Protestants, with whom the wish is a father to the thought, have hailed "Father McGlynn" as "another Luther," a man destined by character and circumstances to lead an American reformation in the Roman Catholic Church. This estimate of him seems ludicrously at variance with all the facts, which are well established and not open to dispute. He is not in the least a reformer, his attitude has in it nothing heroic. He is simply a recusant priest, justly resting under the censure of his Church for his rebellion against the authorities to be obeyed. Dr. McGlynn was suspended from the priesthood because he disobeyed his bishop by making a speech, in which he advocated the abolition of private property in land. This theory is asserted by his ecclesiastical superiors in New York to be one that has been condemned by the church. He denies this, and in proof of his position points to the fact that Archbishop Walsh, of Ireland, teaches precisely the same doctrine without rebuke from Rome. There is weight in this denial, but the proper course for McGlynn was evidently to appeal to Rome, not to defy his immediate superior. This he has declined to do, and has even refused to heed a summons to appear at Rome and plead his cause at the highest tribunal of the church. Notice of his formal excommunication has, therefore, been published, and Dr. McGlynn is now cut off from the Catholic Church. But he still protests that he is a Catholic, that he will never be anything else, that his superiors have misused their powers, that his condemnation is unjust and illegal. Evidently there is nothing of the Luther in such a man.

And it is also clear that Dr. McGlynn cannot be regarded as a martyr, even in a bad cause. Much eloquence has been wasted in denunciation of the interference of Catholic prelates with the rights of an American citizen. It is true that Dr. McGlynn was an American citizen when he made the speech for which he suffers, but he was first of all a priest, who had voluntarily taken a vow of obedience to his superiors in all religious matters. Now the question of abolishing private ownership of land is a moral as well as a political question. Dr. McGlynn advocated the abolition of this right "without one penny of compensation to the present owners." That is an immoral sentiment. It is advocacy of robbery, pure and simple. Even if private property in land were wrong, as Mr. George and Dr. McGlynn hold, society has so long recognized and encouraged this ownership and so many innocent people have invested their hard earnings in the land that to sweep away this property at a blow without compensation of any sort would be a wholesale robbery, beside which ordinary thievery is respectable. Dr. McGlynn cannot plead his American citizenship as a shield for using his priestly authority in promulgating a policy that is not only alleged to be officially condemned by his church, but is wholly irreconcilable with the Ten Commandments. In matters of faith and morals he was bound to conform his public teaching to the directions of his superiors. For refusing to do this he is justly condemned.

As soon as his excommunication has had time to take effect, Dr. McGlynn's admirers in the Catholic Church will be compelled to choose between him and the Church. How the great body of them will choose is not open to doubt. His adherents will speedily fall away, his importance will correspondingly decrease, and in a few months everybody will wonder that the American people were ever foolish enough to get excited about him. A second Luther, forsooth. Pah!

SCIRRHUS CANCER.

The untold benefit I have received from the use of S. S. S. leads me to acknowledge its virtues and recommend it to all who are suffering with humors. A year ago this July I wrote to the company in Atlanta, Ga., concerning a cancer that had troubled me two or three years past, but which had been increasing in size and redness quite rapidly for three months preceding that letter. I had heard of the wonderful cures of Swift's Specific, and resolved to try it. I commenced taking it in April, 1884. My general health was much improved, yet the cancer, which was in my breast, continued to grow slowly, but surely. When I wrote in July last I received a treatise on blood and skin diseases, with advice to keep up the S. S. S. I did so. The cancer grew and became quite heavy, also very dark and angry looking, until the middle of December, when I felt that I must either have it cut out or die. But, contrary to all expectations, it commenced to ooze a little bloody substance, and in a week it seemed to break, making a large opening, and discharging quantities of sinistral blood. I continued to discharge less and less, healing around the edges, until February, when it was entirely healed up and I took twenty-six bottles of the S. S. S., and feel that I owe my life to its virtues. My case is a wonder and a miracle to all in and about this community. I wish could tell every body of the benefits I have received, and induce all who suffer from cancer to use Swift's Specific. I am twenty-five years old, and my health is so improved that I feel better than I have for years. FRED WOOD, Cobesett, Plymouth Co., Mass. July 13, 1885.
