People's Party Address.

To the voters of South Carolina:

The closing years of the nineteenth century seem destined to be the most fateful of our country's history, we might say of the world, for the lowly and oppressed in every land have their eye fixed on America as the battle ground where the last great fight for human liberty is to take place.

Fearful forces of antagonistic elements are being centered here; but a just God has never yet mocked an individual or a nation by imposing a task that cannot be performed if met in a proper spirit.

The old time, nicely-balanced relations, and well-nigh even strength, that once existed between labor and capital are no more, for while one has shrunk to a pigmy, the other has grown to a giant. When autocratic kings granted monopolies to their favorites it taxed their despotic authority to the utmost to defend them against the competition of surreptitious traders.

While under our new commercial regime mighty monopolies are created that not only crush all rivalry with ease, but dominate the government, where their selfish interests are concerned.

The curse of our land is partisan politics. It is time for us to vote for our best interests. The wily politician, by playing upon sectional and race prejudice, keeps the solid North and the solid South. Every year in Congress the battles of the war are fought over and over, while issues of the utmost importance to the welfare of our people are overlooked or lightly dealt with.

We cannot long remain indifferent to the conditions that confront us. The volume of money has been contracted until business is paralyzed and the price of the products of labor has been reduced below the cost of production.

The conspiracy of foreign capitalists to control American labor by controlling the volume of money has been successful. Corporations, wielding the power of aggregated capital, control the government and so direct our finances that all save a bare existence is denied the producers of wealth.

Both Democratic and Republican parties, nationally, are controlled by the same influence. The judiciary has become the bulwark of this formidable and growing power which, unless checked, will be the destruction of the democratic principle in government.

Thomas Carlyle said many years ago that we would have our period of trial "when health is intact, crops abundant and the magnificent land open. Then so-called statesmen will cry overproduction; and then the man of the ballot, the self-reliant, the self-pyant, will go to the ballot box, amidst hunger and destitution, (but surrounded by the glitter of self-rule) and ratify by his ballot the monstrous falsehood uttered by mis-statenmen, and vindicate by the same ballot the infamous lie thrown upon the breezes by a senile editor through a corrupt press, thus bringing ruin upon his country and serfdom upon himself."

This period is upon us, Reformers of South Carolina. Will we ratify by our ballots a system that we know to be wrong and that is bringing ruin upon our country and serfdom upon us and our children? Let us file our protest in the sacred form of a freeman's ballot.

Our demands have been either ignored or shamelessly trifled with by both parties. The fate of the silver bill in a Democratic House is the last act of treachery.

The day for sentimental politics is past. Sentimental politics has cost this country rivers of blood and billions of treasure. The sentimental politician is a fraud, a snare and a delusion. Practical politics and common sense is the need of the hour.

Why should we vote for Grover Cleveland for a mere sentiment? Our State convention in May declared that the nomination of Grover Cleveland would be "a prostitution of the principles of Democracy, a repudiation of the demands of the Alliance and a surrender of the rights of the people to the financial kings of the country."

Is it not the choice of our people? Is the party lash to be again cracked to force us into line? Is sentimental or practical politics to govern? Will we vote for a man whose policy is totally opposed to our best interests?

Grover Cleveland represents Wallstreet and monopolistic power Weaver and Fields represent the farmer and laborer. The principles involved are the same that our people have endorsed in State politics, and their support is the logical result of the decision of the people as expressed in the May convention.

We shall abide the verdict of the people as expressed in the recent primary upon State issues and Congressional candidates and will give the nominees our cordial support, but we are in no manner bound by that action to violate our obligation to only support men who are in favor of our demands.

Citizens, farmers, laborers, brethren; Ye who live by the sweat of honest toil; think well, cast your ballots, freighted with the destinies of nations yet unborn, for the man of your choice. Let the politicians and a plutocratic press rave, but carefully consider the question and vote for the ticket which best represents your interests.

Dots from Hebron.

Our community has been saddened by the death of one of its promising young men, Mr. Euclid Everett. How sad to see the young and hopeful so suddenly carried away!

From this object lesson may we all learn the importance of "redeeming the time" so as to be prepared when the summons comes. The bereaved family have the sympathy of all.

Miss Mattie Covington leaves soon for Cottageville, where she will be engaged in teaching. She will be greatly missed in the social and religious circles of Hebron.

She has, almost from its organization, been president of the Woman's Missionary Society here, and under her guidance it has been and is doing a grand work. May her mantle fall on another.

Hebron has a Missionary Society second to none. The Juvenile Society is also doing a fine work under the presidency of Miss Lucy Fraser.

The I. O. G. T. is still booming. New members each meeting. Costly lamps have been provided, badges ordered and we now meet weekly.

Our school is growing. Instruments have been procured and telegraphy is taught by Miss Payne. Columbus Day was observed at the school by a short talk on Columbus by the principal, and a general holiday.

We had a practical lesson in astronomy during the recent eclipse. He who is indifferent to the education of his child is indifferent to his own and his child's eternal interest.

A movement is on foot to purchase a new organ for the church, and turning the present one over to the school and I. O. G. T. An excellent move.

We were delighted to have Misses Lid Woodley, Lillie Kirkpatrick and Macy Calhoun call on us recently. Oh, what a boon to a bashful man leap year sometimes brings! We would like for our friend J. T. Covington to introduce a bill in the legislature to have the "time extended."

Abuse of Columbus.

DETROIT, October 12.—"Columbus was a liar," said Albion W. Tourgee in a lecture before 3,000 people assembled in the Auditorium to celebrate the discovery of America.

Nor was this the most surprising sentence in the bitter inductive Tourgee delivered against the navigator. Every act of his life was one of egotism, he said, and intended to satisfy his greed of gain and fame.

Everything he sailed on was wrong and he discovered America because he was lost and could not do otherwise. His every act was one of selfishness and he stole the credit of first seeing land from his faithful sailor who was on watch.

He kept two logs in order to deceive his crew. He was lavish in promises he never expected to keep, prayers always concerned himself. His parents were thriftless, and are known to history only through the evidences of indebtedness they left.

He was probably a Mediterranean pirate in his early days, and not a single act of his life up to the time he was 50 years old was worthy of recording.

These are only samples of Mr. Tourgee's conclusions concerning Columbus. The people who heard him were nonplussed. The sentiments are those which he has embodied in his new book. This lecture and an Italian parade constituted the day's celebration.

Coal "goes up" again. Not because there is a scarcity of it, but because the "combination" orders it. The combines of capital have broken open the treasury vaults of nature, seized upon the geologic treasures where the mighty forests of antediluvian ages are stored away as a ready-made providence for man, and they have said, even this bounty of the Almighty we will dole out, not according to the needs of man or to the cost of production, but according to our extorting power.—Unity, Chicago.
