

"DO THOU LIBERTY GREAT. INSPIRE OUR SOULS AND MAKE OUR LIVES IN THY POSSESSION HAPPY, OR OUR DEATHS GLORIOUS IN THY CAUSE."

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1903.

66008
NO. 50

AN AWFUL CRIME.

A Father, Crazed With Whiskey, Kills His Three Children.

ARRESTED AND LOCKED IN JAIL.

One of the Most Fendish Acts Ever Committed in the Good Old State of North Carolina.

Transformed in a monster after a week's debauch, Dr. J. V. Jay, a physician of prominence in the northern part of Buncombe county, N. C., Saturday week drove his wife from home, brutally murdered his three children, and attempted to burn down his house. The man became violent Friday night, and after going home terribly abused his wife. Mrs. Jay had put the children to bed, and was endeavoring to quiet her husband, when the man attacked her and drove her out of the house. She went to the home of Thomas Dillingham, not far from where she lived, and there spent the night. Returning to her home next morning she found her husband in a dangerous mood. The man was even worse than before. Jay was continually looking for his pistol, threatening to exterminate the whole family. Mrs. Jay, however, had taken possession of the revolver and hidden it from her husband. During the time that Jay was searching for the pistol, Mrs. Jay was engaged in preparing the morning meal, at intervals assisting the children to dress. When the children had been dressed Mrs. Jay had finally finished getting breakfast, the brute had worked himself into a frenzied mood. Finding in his search for the pistol he had armed himself with a claw hammer, and with this chased Mrs. Jay around the house. The frightened wife, feeling that her own life and the lives of her children were in danger, went out of the front door and started for the little grocery, where there was a telephone to ask the neighbors for aid, and to notify the officers at Asheville. As she reached the road she turned and saw her three children standing one by one step trying, and begging for her return. She turned for a moment in helpless agony, knowing that the lives of her children were in danger, and knowing also that she was of her own strength powerless to shield and protect them. Her indecision was of but a second's duration. Striving to be heart to the cries of her little ones, she turned and ran with all speed possible for the store. There she hastily told the story of the children's peril, and accompanied by several men who chanced to be at the place, hastened back to her home. The mother had been gone but a few moments, but in that brief space the demon had done his work, and she entered her home a sight more terrible than eyes could describe. Lying upon the porch with the blood oozing from their heads lay her three children. The two oldest were already dead, while the baby was just breathing. The men who had accompanied Mrs. Jay to the store, placed them in the house, but the door was fastened and Jay was called upon to open the door. This he refused to do, and declared he would kill the first man who entered. It was then thought that he had found the pistol and had entered himself into the room, and that death awaited the first one who entered.

A PREACHER IN A FIGHT.

Rev. R. F. Whilden Charged With Assault and Battery.

Not long since the Rev. S. B. Jones had a fistfight with the postmaster of his town and now comes the statement from the Greenville News that Rev. R. Furman Whilden, a well known divine of the upper section of Greenville county, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Tuesday at Tiptonville before Magistrate Ballenger on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The state was represented by Adam O. Weldon, of that city, while the defendant represented himself in the trial.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

After Robbing the House He Was Getting Ready to Commit a Worse Crime, but Was Run Off.

Columbia seems to be suffering from an epidemic of burglaries. The following we clip from The State of Thursday:

There was brought to light Thursday the fact that there had been committed in the very center of the city two robberies which were even more brazen and daring than the startling and unsuccessful attempts upon the residence of Rev. J. Lindsay a few nights ago. These last robberies occurred on Lady street just one block on either side of Main street, but within two squares of the police station.

NERVE OF THE GRAFIERS.

Lige Dowie Says "Show me Before I Heal You."

Dowie, the great religious faker who is now operating in New York, has an eye on the main chance all the time. He is after money, and he is not particular how he gets it. Dashing and bold, he is quick to stop the hands of the guards who tried to stop the two men from being stamped out from his Healing. He was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday afternoon when they were asked to give all their wealth to the Church of Zion City if they should be cured of their ills by the Dowie treatment.

A POISONOUS WORM.

A number of counties in the northern part of Georgia are greatly disturbed over the discovery of a small worm, very much resembling a snake, about two inches long, which has been found in the heads of cabbage, and which has just been pronounced by the state chemist to be a deadly poison.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE.

Because of his insolence to a lady who was riding on his car, colored Pullman car porter was put off in the woods near Brunswick, Ga., on Thursday. He was left there to meditate how much better politeness would have paid him. He spoke to the lady something about transferring to another train. She did not understand him and asked him to repeat what he had said. He did so very insolently. George H. Smith, treasurer of the city of Brunswick, was on the train, and observing the manner in which the porter spoke to the lady, gave him a thrashing. He was then put off the train.

THIRTY-ONE LOST.

The marine exchange reports that the steamer South Portland, from Astoria for San Francisco, has been wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one of her passengers and crew are missing. Capt. McIntyre and six others succeeded in reaching shore. The wrecked steamer carried a crew of twenty-three and probably not more than eighteen passengers. Capt. McIntyre was in command of the vessel and had been on her about two months.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

John Harris, colored, murdered Policeman Deas-ack in Atlanta on October 5. Harris ran away, but was captured at Abbeville, his old home, taken back to Atlanta and tried last week and convicted. He was sentenced to be hung on Nov. 12. Harris confessed the whole thing, but said if he had not been drunk at the time he would not have done the deed. Some colored people at Abbeville informed the authorities that Harris was there, and this led to his arrest.

DEATH OF G. D. TILMAN.

A dispatch from Clark's Hill to the Augusta Chronicle says Col. George D. Tilman, aged 23 years, youngest son of the late Hon. George D. Tilman, died at his home there Tuesday night. He attended the Citadel Academy at Charleston and was one of the most popular students in his class. He was an excellent student of the law, and a member of the Georgia bar. He was a wealthy farmer of New Jersey, and was married to a young widow. His silence hereafter is likely to be compulsory.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

ARRESTED AND LOCKED IN JAIL.

One of the Most Fendish Acts Ever Committed in the Good Old State of North Carolina.

Transformed in a monster after a week's debauch, Dr. J. V. Jay, a physician of prominence in the northern part of Buncombe county, N. C., Saturday week drove his wife from home, brutally murdered his three children, and attempted to burn down his house. The man became violent Friday night, and after going home terribly abused his wife. Mrs. Jay had put the children to bed, and was endeavoring to quiet her husband, when the man attacked her and drove her out of the house. She went to the home of Thomas Dillingham, not far from where she lived, and there spent the night. Returning to her home next morning she found her husband in a dangerous mood. The man was even worse than before. Jay was continually looking for his pistol, threatening to exterminate the whole family. Mrs. Jay, however, had taken possession of the revolver and hidden it from her husband. During the time that Jay was searching for the pistol, Mrs. Jay was engaged in preparing the morning meal, at intervals assisting the children to dress. When the children had been dressed Mrs. Jay had finally finished getting breakfast, the brute had worked himself into a frenzied mood. Finding in his search for the pistol he had armed himself with a claw hammer, and with this chased Mrs. Jay around the house. The frightened wife, feeling that her own life and the lives of her children were in danger, went out of the front door and started for the little grocery, where there was a telephone to ask the neighbors for aid, and to notify the officers at Asheville. As she reached the road she turned and saw her three children standing one by one step trying, and begging for her return. She turned for a moment in helpless agony, knowing that the lives of her children were in danger, and knowing also that she was of her own strength powerless to shield and protect them. Her indecision was of but a second's duration. Striving to be heart to the cries of her little ones, she turned and ran with all speed possible for the store. There she hastily told the story of the children's peril, and accompanied by several men who chanced to be at the place, hastened back to her home. The mother had been gone but a few moments, but in that brief space the demon had done his work, and she entered her home a sight more terrible than eyes could describe. Lying upon the porch with the blood oozing from their heads lay her three children. The two oldest were already dead, while the baby was just breathing. The men who had accompanied Mrs. Jay to the store, placed them in the house, but the door was fastened and Jay was called upon to open the door. This he refused to do, and declared he would kill the first man who entered. It was then thought that he had found the pistol and had entered himself into the room, and that death awaited the first one who entered.

A PREACHER IN A FIGHT.

Rev. R. F. Whilden Charged With Assault and Battery.

Not long since the Rev. S. B. Jones had a fistfight with the postmaster of his town and now comes the statement from the Greenville News that Rev. R. Furman Whilden, a well known divine of the upper section of Greenville county, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Tuesday at Tiptonville before Magistrate Ballenger on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The state was represented by Adam O. Weldon, of that city, while the defendant represented himself in the trial.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

After Robbing the House He Was Getting Ready to Commit a Worse Crime, but Was Run Off.

Columbia seems to be suffering from an epidemic of burglaries. The following we clip from The State of Thursday:

There was brought to light Thursday the fact that there had been committed in the very center of the city two robberies which were even more brazen and daring than the startling and unsuccessful attempts upon the residence of Rev. J. Lindsay a few nights ago. These last robberies occurred on Lady street just one block on either side of Main street, but within two squares of the police station.

NERVE OF THE GRAFIERS.

Lige Dowie Says "Show me Before I Heal You."

Dowie, the great religious faker who is now operating in New York, has an eye on the main chance all the time. He is after money, and he is not particular how he gets it. Dashing and bold, he is quick to stop the hands of the guards who tried to stop the two men from being stamped out from his Healing. He was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday afternoon when they were asked to give all their wealth to the Church of Zion City if they should be cured of their ills by the Dowie treatment.

A POISONOUS WORM.

A number of counties in the northern part of Georgia are greatly disturbed over the discovery of a small worm, very much resembling a snake, about two inches long, which has been found in the heads of cabbage, and which has just been pronounced by the state chemist to be a deadly poison.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE.

Because of his insolence to a lady who was riding on his car, colored Pullman car porter was put off in the woods near Brunswick, Ga., on Thursday. He was left there to meditate how much better politeness would have paid him. He spoke to the lady something about transferring to another train. She did not understand him and asked him to repeat what he had said. He did so very insolently. George H. Smith, treasurer of the city of Brunswick, was on the train, and observing the manner in which the porter spoke to the lady, gave him a thrashing. He was then put off the train.

THIRTY-ONE LOST.

The marine exchange reports that the steamer South Portland, from Astoria for San Francisco, has been wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one of her passengers and crew are missing. Capt. McIntyre and six others succeeded in reaching shore. The wrecked steamer carried a crew of twenty-three and probably not more than eighteen passengers. Capt. McIntyre was in command of the vessel and had been on her about two months.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

John Harris, colored, murdered Policeman Deas-ack in Atlanta on October 5. Harris ran away, but was captured at Abbeville, his old home, taken back to Atlanta and tried last week and convicted. He was sentenced to be hung on Nov. 12. Harris confessed the whole thing, but said if he had not been drunk at the time he would not have done the deed. Some colored people at Abbeville informed the authorities that Harris was there, and this led to his arrest.

DEATH OF G. D. TILMAN.

A dispatch from Clark's Hill to the Augusta Chronicle says Col. George D. Tilman, aged 23 years, youngest son of the late Hon. George D. Tilman, died at his home there Tuesday night. He attended the Citadel Academy at Charleston and was one of the most popular students in his class. He was an excellent student of the law, and a member of the Georgia bar. He was a wealthy farmer of New Jersey, and was married to a young widow. His silence hereafter is likely to be compulsory.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

ARRESTED AND LOCKED IN JAIL.

One of the Most Fendish Acts Ever Committed in the Good Old State of North Carolina.

Transformed in a monster after a week's debauch, Dr. J. V. Jay, a physician of prominence in the northern part of Buncombe county, N. C., Saturday week drove his wife from home, brutally murdered his three children, and attempted to burn down his house. The man became violent Friday night, and after going home terribly abused his wife. Mrs. Jay had put the children to bed, and was endeavoring to quiet her husband, when the man attacked her and drove her out of the house. She went to the home of Thomas Dillingham, not far from where she lived, and there spent the night. Returning to her home next morning she found her husband in a dangerous mood. The man was even worse than before. Jay was continually looking for his pistol, threatening to exterminate the whole family. Mrs. Jay, however, had taken possession of the revolver and hidden it from her husband. During the time that Jay was searching for the pistol, Mrs. Jay was engaged in preparing the morning meal, at intervals assisting the children to dress. When the children had been dressed Mrs. Jay had finally finished getting breakfast, the brute had worked himself into a frenzied mood. Finding in his search for the pistol he had armed himself with a claw hammer, and with this chased Mrs. Jay around the house. The frightened wife, feeling that her own life and the lives of her children were in danger, went out of the front door and started for the little grocery, where there was a telephone to ask the neighbors for aid, and to notify the officers at Asheville. As she reached the road she turned and saw her three children standing one by one step trying, and begging for her return. She turned for a moment in helpless agony, knowing that the lives of her children were in danger, and knowing also that she was of her own strength powerless to shield and protect them. Her indecision was of but a second's duration. Striving to be heart to the cries of her little ones, she turned and ran with all speed possible for the store. There she hastily told the story of the children's peril, and accompanied by several men who chanced to be at the place, hastened back to her home. The mother had been gone but a few moments, but in that brief space the demon had done his work, and she entered her home a sight more terrible than eyes could describe. Lying upon the porch with the blood oozing from their heads lay her three children. The two oldest were already dead, while the baby was just breathing. The men who had accompanied Mrs. Jay to the store, placed them in the house, but the door was fastened and Jay was called upon to open the door. This he refused to do, and declared he would kill the first man who entered. It was then thought that he had found the pistol and had entered himself into the room, and that death awaited the first one who entered.

A PREACHER IN A FIGHT.

Rev. R. F. Whilden Charged With Assault and Battery.

Not long since the Rev. S. B. Jones had a fistfight with the postmaster of his town and now comes the statement from the Greenville News that Rev. R. Furman Whilden, a well known divine of the upper section of Greenville county, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Tuesday at Tiptonville before Magistrate Ballenger on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The state was represented by Adam O. Weldon, of that city, while the defendant represented himself in the trial.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

After Robbing the House He Was Getting Ready to Commit a Worse Crime, but Was Run Off.

Columbia seems to be suffering from an epidemic of burglaries. The following we clip from The State of Thursday:

There was brought to light Thursday the fact that there had been committed in the very center of the city two robberies which were even more brazen and daring than the startling and unsuccessful attempts upon the residence of Rev. J. Lindsay a few nights ago. These last robberies occurred on Lady street just one block on either side of Main street, but within two squares of the police station.

NERVE OF THE GRAFIERS.

Lige Dowie Says "Show me Before I Heal You."

Dowie, the great religious faker who is now operating in New York, has an eye on the main chance all the time. He is after money, and he is not particular how he gets it. Dashing and bold, he is quick to stop the hands of the guards who tried to stop the two men from being stamped out from his Healing. He was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday afternoon when they were asked to give all their wealth to the Church of Zion City if they should be cured of their ills by the Dowie treatment.

A POISONOUS WORM.

A number of counties in the northern part of Georgia are greatly disturbed over the discovery of a small worm, very much resembling a snake, about two inches long, which has been found in the heads of cabbage, and which has just been pronounced by the state chemist to be a deadly poison.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE.

Because of his insolence to a lady who was riding on his car, colored Pullman car porter was put off in the woods near Brunswick, Ga., on Thursday. He was left there to meditate how much better politeness would have paid him. He spoke to the lady something about transferring to another train. She did not understand him and asked him to repeat what he had said. He did so very insolently. George H. Smith, treasurer of the city of Brunswick, was on the train, and observing the manner in which the porter spoke to the lady, gave him a thrashing. He was then put off the train.

THIRTY-ONE LOST.

The marine exchange reports that the steamer South Portland, from Astoria for San Francisco, has been wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one of her passengers and crew are missing. Capt. McIntyre and six others succeeded in reaching shore. The wrecked steamer carried a crew of twenty-three and probably not more than eighteen passengers. Capt. McIntyre was in command of the vessel and had been on her about two months.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

John Harris, colored, murdered Policeman Deas-ack in Atlanta on October 5. Harris ran away, but was captured at Abbeville, his old home, taken back to Atlanta and tried last week and convicted. He was sentenced to be hung on Nov. 12. Harris confessed the whole thing, but said if he had not been drunk at the time he would not have done the deed. Some colored people at Abbeville informed the authorities that Harris was there, and this led to his arrest.

DEATH OF G. D. TILMAN.

A dispatch from Clark's Hill to the Augusta Chronicle says Col. George D. Tilman, aged 23 years, youngest son of the late Hon. George D. Tilman, died at his home there Tuesday night. He attended the Citadel Academy at Charleston and was one of the most popular students in his class. He was an excellent student of the law, and a member of the Georgia bar. He was a wealthy farmer of New Jersey, and was married to a young widow. His silence hereafter is likely to be compulsory.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

ARRESTED AND LOCKED IN JAIL.

One of the Most Fendish Acts Ever Committed in the Good Old State of North Carolina.

Transformed in a monster after a week's debauch, Dr. J. V. Jay, a physician of prominence in the northern part of Buncombe county, N. C., Saturday week drove his wife from home, brutally murdered his three children, and attempted to burn down his house. The man became violent Friday night, and after going home terribly abused his wife. Mrs. Jay had put the children to bed, and was endeavoring to quiet her husband, when the man attacked her and drove her out of the house. She went to the home of Thomas Dillingham, not far from where she lived, and there spent the night. Returning to her home next morning she found her husband in a dangerous mood. The man was even worse than before. Jay was continually looking for his pistol, threatening to exterminate the whole family. Mrs. Jay, however, had taken possession of the revolver and hidden it from her husband. During the time that Jay was searching for the pistol, Mrs. Jay was engaged in preparing the morning meal, at intervals assisting the children to dress. When the children had been dressed Mrs. Jay had finally finished getting breakfast, the brute had worked himself into a frenzied mood. Finding in his search for the pistol he had armed himself with a claw hammer, and with this chased Mrs. Jay around the house. The frightened wife, feeling that her own life and the lives of her children were in danger, went out of the front door and started for the little grocery, where there was a telephone to ask the neighbors for aid, and to notify the officers at Asheville. As she reached the road she turned and saw her three children standing one by one step trying, and begging for her return. She turned for a moment in helpless agony, knowing that the lives of her children were in danger, and knowing also that she was of her own strength powerless to shield and protect them. Her indecision was of but a second's duration. Striving to be heart to the cries of her little ones, she turned and ran with all speed possible for the store. There she hastily told the story of the children's peril, and accompanied by several men who chanced to be at the place, hastened back to her home. The mother had been gone but a few moments, but in that brief space the demon had done his work, and she entered her home a sight more terrible than eyes could describe. Lying upon the porch with the blood oozing from their heads lay her three children. The two oldest were already dead, while the baby was just breathing. The men who had accompanied Mrs. Jay to the store, placed them in the house, but the door was fastened and Jay was called upon to open the door. This he refused to do, and declared he would kill the first man who entered. It was then thought that he had found the pistol and had entered himself into the room, and that death awaited the first one who entered.

A PREACHER IN A FIGHT.

Rev. R. F. Whilden Charged With Assault and Battery.

Not long since the Rev. S. B. Jones had a fistfight with the postmaster of his town and now comes the statement from the Greenville News that Rev. R. Furman Whilden, a well known divine of the upper section of Greenville county, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Tuesday at Tiptonville before Magistrate Ballenger on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The state was represented by Adam O. Weldon, of that city, while the defendant represented himself in the trial.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

After Robbing the House He Was Getting Ready to Commit a Worse Crime, but Was Run Off.

Columbia seems to be suffering from an epidemic of burglaries. The following we clip from The State of Thursday:

There was brought to light Thursday the fact that there had been committed in the very center of the city two robberies which were even more brazen and daring than the startling and unsuccessful attempts upon the residence of Rev. J. Lindsay a few nights ago. These last robberies occurred on Lady street just one block on either side of Main street, but within two squares of the police station.

NERVE OF THE GRAFIERS.

Lige Dowie Says "Show me Before I Heal You."

Dowie, the great religious faker who is now operating in New York, has an eye on the main chance all the time. He is after money, and he is not particular how he gets it. Dashing and bold, he is quick to stop the hands of the guards who tried to stop the two men from being stamped out from his Healing. He was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday afternoon when they were asked to give all their wealth to the Church of Zion City if they should be cured of their ills by the Dowie treatment.

A POISONOUS WORM.

A number of counties in the northern part of Georgia are greatly disturbed over the discovery of a small worm, very much resembling a snake, about two inches long, which has been found in the heads of cabbage, and which has just been pronounced by the state chemist to be a deadly poison.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE.

Because of his insolence to a lady who was riding on his car, colored Pullman car porter was put off in the woods near Brunswick, Ga., on Thursday. He was left there to meditate how much better politeness would have paid him. He spoke to the lady something about transferring to another train. She did not understand him and asked him to repeat what he had said. He did so very insolently. George H. Smith, treasurer of the city of Brunswick, was on the train, and observing the manner in which the porter spoke to the lady, gave him a thrashing. He was then put off the train.

THIRTY-ONE LOST.

The marine exchange reports that the steamer South Portland, from Astoria for San Francisco, has been wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one of her passengers and crew are missing. Capt. McIntyre and six others succeeded in reaching shore. The wrecked steamer carried a crew of twenty-three and probably not more than eighteen passengers. Capt. McIntyre was in command of the vessel and had been on her about two months.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

John Harris, colored, murdered Policeman Deas-ack in Atlanta on October 5. Harris ran away, but was captured at Abbeville, his old home, taken back to Atlanta and tried last week and convicted. He was sentenced to be hung on Nov. 12. Harris confessed the whole thing, but said if he had not been drunk at the time he would not have done the deed. Some colored people at Abbeville informed the authorities that Harris was there, and this led to his arrest.

DEATH OF G. D. TILMAN.

A dispatch from Clark's Hill to the Augusta Chronicle says Col. George D. Tilman, aged 23 years, youngest son of the late Hon. George D. Tilman, died at his home there Tuesday night. He attended the Citadel Academy at Charleston and was one of the most popular students in his class. He was an excellent student of the law, and a member of the Georgia bar. He was a wealthy farmer of New Jersey, and was married to a young widow. His silence hereafter is likely to be compulsory.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

ARRESTED AND LOCKED IN JAIL.

One of the Most Fendish Acts Ever Committed in the Good Old State of North Carolina.

Transformed in a monster after a week's debauch, Dr. J. V. Jay, a physician of prominence in the northern part of Buncombe county, N. C., Saturday week drove his wife from home, brutally murdered his three children, and attempted to burn down his house. The man became violent Friday night, and after going home terribly abused his wife. Mrs. Jay had put the children to bed, and was endeavoring to quiet her husband, when the man attacked her and drove her out of the house. She went to the home of Thomas Dillingham, not far from where she lived, and there spent the night. Returning to her home next morning she found her husband in a dangerous mood. The man was even worse than before. Jay was continually looking for his pistol, threatening to exterminate the whole family. Mrs. Jay, however, had taken possession of the revolver and hidden it from her husband. During the time that Jay was searching for the pistol, Mrs. Jay was engaged in preparing the morning meal, at intervals assisting the children to dress. When the children had been dressed Mrs. Jay had finally finished getting breakfast, the brute had worked himself into a frenzied mood. Finding in his search for the pistol he had armed himself with a claw hammer, and with this chased Mrs. Jay around the house. The frightened wife, feeling that her own life and the lives of her children were in danger, went out of the front door and started for the little grocery, where there was a telephone to ask the neighbors for aid, and to notify the officers at Asheville. As she reached the road she turned and saw her three children standing one by one step trying, and begging for her return. She turned for a moment in helpless agony, knowing that the lives of her children were in danger, and knowing also that she was of her own strength powerless to shield and protect them. Her indecision was of but a second's duration. Striving to be heart to the cries of her little ones, she turned and ran with all speed possible for the store. There she hastily told the story of the children's peril, and accompanied by several men who chanced to be at the place, hastened back to her home. The mother had been gone but a few moments, but in that brief space the demon had done his work, and she entered her home a sight more terrible than eyes could describe. Lying upon the porch with the blood oozing from their heads lay her three children. The two oldest were already dead, while the baby was just breathing. The men who had accompanied Mrs. Jay to the store, placed them in the house, but the door was fastened and Jay was called upon to open the door. This he refused to do, and declared he would kill the first man who entered. It was then thought that he had found the pistol and had entered himself into the room, and that death awaited the first one who entered.

A PREACHER IN A FIGHT.

Rev. R. F. Whilden Charged With Assault and Battery.

Not long since the Rev. S. B. Jones had a fistfight with the postmaster of his town and now comes the statement from the Greenville News that Rev. R. Furman Whilden, a well known divine of the upper section of Greenville county, was arrested and given a preliminary hearing Tuesday at Tiptonville before Magistrate Ballenger on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill. The state was represented by Adam O. Weldon, of that city, while the defendant represented himself in the trial.

A WOMAN'S SCREAM

Of Terror in the Middle of the Night Drove a Black Villian From Her Bed Room.

After Robbing the House He Was Getting Ready to Commit a Worse Crime, but Was Run Off.

Columbia seems to be suffering from an epidemic of burglaries. The following we clip from The State of Thursday:

There was brought to light Thursday the fact that there had been committed in the very center of the city two robberies which were even more brazen and daring than the startling and unsuccessful attempts upon the residence of Rev. J. Lindsay a few nights ago. These last robberies occurred on Lady street just one block on either side of Main street, but within two squares of the police station.

NERVE OF THE GRAFIERS.

Lige Dowie Says "Show me Before I Heal You."

Dowie, the great religious faker who is now operating in New York, has an eye on the main chance all the time. He is after money, and he is not particular how he gets it. Dashing and bold, he is quick to stop the hands of the guards who tried to stop the two men from being stamped out from his Healing. He was in Madison Square Garden Wednesday afternoon when they were asked to give all their wealth to the Church of Zion City if they should be cured of their ills by the Dowie treatment.

A POISONOUS WORM.

A number of counties in the northern part of Georgia are greatly disturbed over the discovery of a small worm, very much resembling a snake, about two inches long, which has been found in the heads of cabbage, and which has just been pronounced by the state chemist to be a deadly poison.

IT PAYS TO BE POLITE.

Because of his insolence to a lady who was riding on his car, colored Pullman car porter was put off in the woods near Brunswick, Ga., on Thursday. He was left there to meditate how much better politeness would have paid him. He spoke to the lady something about transferring to another train. She did not understand him and asked him to repeat what he had said. He did so very insolently. George H. Smith, treasurer of the city of Brunswick, was on the train, and observing the manner in which the porter spoke to the lady, gave him a thrashing. He was then put off the train.

THIRTY-ONE LOST.

The marine exchange reports that the steamer South Portland, from Astoria for San Francisco, has been wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one of her passengers and crew are missing. Capt. McIntyre and six others succeeded in reaching shore. The wrecked steamer carried a crew of twenty-three and probably not more than eighteen passengers. Capt. McIntyre was in command of the vessel and had been on her about two months.

SWIFT JUSTICE.

John Harris, colored, murdered Policeman Deas-ack in Atlanta on October