LOST AT SEA.

Seven Hundred Persons Are Lost With an Emigrant Ship.

SHE WAS BOUND FOR NEW YORK.

The Small Boats Were Smashed as Fast as They Were Lowered and the People Dumped in the Sea.

Over 700 Danish and Norwegian emigrants bound for New York are believed to have been drowned in the North Atlantic on June 28.

According to the survivors the moment the vessel struck, the engines were reversed and the Norge came back into deep water.

The Norge which had been in the Copenhagen-New York service of the Scandinavian-American line for a number of years...

The boat which was quickly backed off, but the heavy seas poured in through a rent in the bows.

The emigrants who were then awaiting breakfast below, ran on deck. The hatchways were scarcely built for these hundreds of souls...

The Norge quickly began to go down by the head. Eight boats were lowered and into these the women and children were hurriedly put.

Two boat loads got safely away from the side of the sinking ship and many of the emigrants who were left on board...

THE BOATS KEPT TOGETHER SOME HOURS. Practically all of the occupants were passengers and not used to handling such craft.

THREE BOATS LAUNCHED. One account says that three boats were successfully launched, the other two holding about ten persons each.

ONE OF THE SURVIVORS SAID THAT WHEN he got on deck, the Norge was half submerged and was rapidly getting lower in the water.

THE SEA BY THIS TIME WAS A MASS OF struggling men, women and children, gasping and choking from the effects of the water.

Peter Nelson, one of the survivors, described as a young American, said: "For some hours we rowed in company with other boats."
