The World Growing Better: R. E. Swain, in Sunday School Times.

And the world has grown better morally. Evil is more ashamed of itself than it used to be.

There are more homes and better homes than ever before in the world, more love and more unselfish love.

There are more homes and better homes than ever before in the world, more love and more unselfish love.

Alas! there is evil enough, and more than enough, and will be till the harvest time.

Dreaming of the good is a poor substitute for fighting the evil.

The people who say that the world is growing worse have some facts to support their view.

What a terrible increase of crime in our great cities. All these things must be acknowledged.

Old Brother Cooley is a color philosopher, but he is superstitious in the extreme.

"I once went in a house what was haunted - but I didn't know it. Dar wuz a bright light burnin' in de room I wuz in."

"And did you see him?" "No, sah - I less God, I wuz too feared dat he'd tell me!"
