Only "Stand Pat." The following is the full text of a speech delivered by Hon. John L. Mc Laurin at Sumter last Monday by in vitation of the people of that county: Mr. Chairman and Fellow Civizens: I thank you for this invitation to address the people of Sumter county on the issues of the day. It was here that the memorable campaign of 1897 opened and some of you remember when the town bell pealed out the hour, how John Irby dramatically turned and pointed his finger at me, said, "Yonder bell has just tolled the death knell of John L McLaurin," and none present will ever forget the scene that followed when I replied, "Hark from the tomb

Well, I didn't dle just then, but the old bell has since rung out a dirge for myself and many another. It is pretty hard on the corpse, but I am bound to admit as a general proposition funerals are a good thing, especially political funerals. You can't have too many of them in South Carolina. "Oh death where is thy sting, oh grave could refer to the same period in 1904. This is good, but it didn't come from the right cause. It only came because it supply of the world death where is thy sting, oh grave could not go anywhere else. The where is thy victory," was not written for any politician that I ever knew, trade on a stable basis. We do not nor is there any hope held out to him want prices too high. THE PROMISED LAND. There is no decadence in my forecast of the future of the south. God placed his time lock on these shores of ours, but it is opened now, and our development, great as it is, has scarcely begun. Ours is the "promland," the country favored by God and nature, with a monopoly of the only great agricultural product which is used by civilized man everywhere. It is inevitable, as inexorable as the laws of life and death, the mills must come to the cotton. There are those in the sound of my voice, who will live to see the time when the south will enjoy as complete a monopoly in the manufacture as she now does in the production or raw cotton

When instead of ten cents we will draw from the balance of the world 20, 30 and 40 cents per pound for the finished article, making the south rich beyond our wildest dreams.

A man is either a "fool or a physiclan at forty," and a w min becomes at least a "beauty doctor" early in her fourth dicade. The Spartan Journal says this is all the result of experience born of suffering and fail ures. If the young people would look ahead and take warning there would be less need for doctoring and tinker ing up as life advances. Health strength and beauty are recklessly squandered in the twenties.
