CURTAILING ARMAMENTS

Physical Cutting Down of Armies and Navies is Big Problem

The subject of limitation of armaments raises the question: How are the disarmaments to be carried out? France's position demands that she have an army greater than Germany. Will Great Britain allow her ancient enemy that prestige or will she demand an army of equal strength? Italy has almost as large a standing army as the United States, while Japan has a number equal to that of France and England combined. In attempting to carry out and enforce the articles providing for the limitation of the effectives of the German army as provided in the Versailles treaty, the Inter-allied commission of control has met with so many difficulties that notwithstanding the difference of circumstances, a doubt arises as to whether any disarmament program will meet with smooth sailing, says Miss Georges Thomas, former attache of the American embassy at Paris. Just as the whole question of peace with Germany centers on the question of her disarmament, so does the question of the world's peace center on the limitation of armament of all the nations and with this arises the problem, what is to be done with the surplus war materials in case of a general disarmament being carried out? In the case of Germany the Treaty of Versailles provides for the details of the composition of the German army in its various parts, for instance, stocks of munitions, number and caliber of guns, manufacture of munitions or war materials, the importation into Germany of war material or arms, the manner of recruiting and military training, period of enlistment of military officers, non-commissioned officers and privates, numbers of military schools, fortifications and number of ships to be retained as well as the number of airplanes. Other than these, all armaments, factories, military schools shall be destroyed. In order to guarantee the destruction of war material and the closing down of all factories which were used in the manufacture of war material, the treaty established the Inter-Allied Commission of Control whose duty it is to supervise the destruction. This met with the most determined resistance from the peoples of the enemy countries, showing itself in many unfriendly incidents such as occurred at a ball in Berlin, when a French officer, believing that all was peace beneath his host's roof, invited a German lady to dance. Her reply was a resounding smack in the face of the amazed officer. The naval Inter-Allied Commission of Control was delegated to supervise the breaking up of battle-ships in the course of construction and take delivery of all surface ships, submarines, salvage ships, tubular docks, and supervise the destruction thereof. The Aeronautical Commission of Control was delegated to make inventory of the aeronautical material existing in Germany, to inspect aeroplanes, balloon and motor manufacturing, and factories producing arms, munitions and explosives capable of being used by aircraft; to visit all aerodromes, sheds, hangars, etc., and authorize, where necessary, an inventory of material and take delivery of such. The factories formerly used exclusively for the making of armaments in Germany are estimated at 26,000. These are being converted under the direction of the Inter-Allied commission into factories for commercial purposes. This destruction of aeronautical material gave rise to considerable excitement in Germany, and a cinema performance was not complete without pictures of fields of airplanes being destroyed. The audience never hesitated to express their disapproval loudly. In the case of Germany, the government contented that after the material had been rendered useless it should remain the property of the German government. The allied governments decided that this material belonged to them to do with as they saw fit and should be sold by the reparation commission, the proceeds being credited to the German reparation account, and a mandate was given to the reparation commission for this purpose. A bureau was established in Berlin, known as the Bureau de Liquidation de Matériaux de la Guerre, whose duty it is to receive the property and sell it either at private or public sale, delivering the proceeds to the reparation commission. But since the armament limitation commission will have no reparation to exact, what is to become of unnecessary war material? "By March 1, 1920, the total number of effectives of the German army must not exceed 100,000 men, and they must be devoted exclusively to the maintenance of order within Germany and to the control of the frontiers." Article 163 provides that this reduction of German military forces shall be gradual. Will the disarmament conference follow these lines? Civil employes, customs official, forest and coast guards and gendarmes in Germany may only be increased to an extent according to the increase of the population since 1913. Germany agreed that after she shall become a member of the League of Nations, the armaments fixed by the treaty shall remain in force until they are modified by the Council of the League. How far will she observe the decisions of the League on this subject remains to be seen. After the disturbances in the Ruhr a year ago, Germany proposed that her effectives should be doubled. How to guard against each of the powers, in the event of disarmament, continually finding sufficient excuse to make a similar demand, is one of the biggest questions to be settled. IS ENTHUSIASTIC. George R. Koester, veteran newspaper man of Greenville has been appointed to head the recently established Adult department of the South Carolina Sunday School Association. Mr. Koester is teacher of a large men's Bible class in one of the Baptist Sunday schools in Greenville and is one of the most enthusiastic Sunday School workers in the State. WILL MAKE 'EM MORE CAUTIOUS. Denver, Colo.—Judge Ben R. Lindsey said today certain groups of society had adopted a new commandment. It is: "Thou shalt not get caught." The Arbuckle case was used by the judge as an illustration. "Will this Arbuckle case not add to the 'Thou shalt not get caught' teaching?" The noted juvenile judge limited to society in moviedom. But the fate of Arbuckle will increase the vigilance of certain groups to 'keep under cover' rather than to stop these practices. AT HOTEL GRACE. LADIES' ATTENTION. There will be a regular meeting of the Civic League from 4 to 5 o'clock at the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon, October 5. If you are interested in your town and want Conway to have a real live Civic League come to this meeting with practical suggestions for civic improvement. Merchants and business men will doubtless be glad to see an advertisement in this issue of the paper announcing the resumption of freight services by the Baltimore & Carolina Steamship Company, which will make all the usual points between Baltimore, Georgetown and Charleston. By this route the receivers of freight can get goods shipped over in all-water route and at a cheaper rate than by railroad. BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING. The semi-annual meeting of the Baptist Sunday school convention of the Waccamant Association will be held at Lilly Swamp Baptist Church October 8 and 9. We are expecting to have the Rev. Mr. Corzine, one of our field workers, with us; also one of our elementary workers is expected to be present. There will be three sessions on Saturday, one in the morning, dinner on the grounds, and afternoon and evening services. On Sunday there will be a morning session and one in the evening if there is any unfinished business. All Baptist Sunday schools are urged to send delegates. Rev. A. E. Fulmer. Editor Horry Herald, Conway, S. C. Dear Sir:— I wish to correct an error that was published in your last issue of the paper stating that during the summer at Myrtle Beach my life was attempted by a shot that was fired by some unknown. This is absolutely a mistake, nothing like that has ever occurred to me and where you received your information I can't imagine. Thanking you for your attention, I remain yours truly, E. E. Sasser. FINE WRITING PAPER. The Herald now carries box paper for polite correspondence, with envelopes in the same box to match the paper; also boxes with just the paper and not the envelopes. It is just what our customers have been wanting and calling for. It is two-tone linen, put up in the neat brown boxes just like those used by lawyers but a higher grade of paper and of course in small size. WANDERER MUST DIE. Will Go to Gallows Next Friday. Springfield, Ill.—Carl Wanderer, convicted slayer of his wife, her unborn baby and "a ragged stranger," will go to the gallows next Friday, according to an announcement from the governor's office. Wanderer lost his last fight for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment, or another reprieve when the commission of pardons and paroles recommended to Governor Small that Wanderer's petition be denied. Two petitions were filed with the governor by counsel for the convicted murderer, a former soldier, whose last reprieve until September 30 was granted at the request of American Legion officials. One was for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment and the other was for further stay of executive. The petitions were based on the grounds that Wanderer has been declared insane by a number of experts and that evidence upon which he was convicted was of doubtful character and that no motive for the crime was shown. NOTICE TO PUBLIC. I gin at Aynor and Jordanville on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and longer if sufficient cotton come in to keep gin running. Best equipment. Highest market price paid for cotton and seed, or clean meal for seed. George J. Holliday. 9-29-21. TAKEN UP. I have taken up at my place on road, empty horned cow with marked chain on foot, and one yearling heifer. Owner can have same by paying charges. W. H. Collins. Effects of Sun Spots. Magnetic storms manifest themselves by their effect on electrical apparatus and are visible as the aurora borealis. Because such storms frequently coincide with sun spots, it is believed that the atmosphere of the earth is in some way ionized by the sun. The sun spots are believed to shoot huge charges into space as a shotgun discharges shot. When the earth gets into the path of such a bombardment we have auroral displays and other magnetic disturbances. —Youth's Companion. But One Way. MAN KILLED BY SHIFTING CARS

Marion.—E. M. Creel, a young man in the employ of the Anderson Lumber Corporation, was crushed to death this afternoon while coupling cars. The accident occurred at the mill yard and medical aid was rushed to the young man, but so severe were his injuries that he died within half an hour. He received injuries on the head and body and the lower limbs were horribly mangled. Creel was 25 years old and known by many of the young men here in town. He had been working at the lumber mill since the first of the year. His father is W. D. Creel of Gresham. The young man is survived by two brothers and a sister in addition to his parents. The news of his death was conveyed to the family shortly after the accident and the elder Creel was in town this afternoon. The young man comes from a substantial family and was well thought of in the Gresham community.

THEY ASK FOR CLEMENCY

Nine of the jurors and the presiding judge in the case of Abraham Williams have signed a petition for executive clemency, the letter bearing the petition having reached Governor Cooper yesterday from Orangeburg. The negro was convicted of attempted criminal assault on a white girl and was sentenced to die in the electric chair. The governor is petitioned to commute the sentence to forty years' sentence in the penitentiary. The presiding judge, who signed the petition, was J. W. DeVore. It is set out in the petition that the negro was 50 years of age and that the girl in the case was 16. Governor Cooper said yesterday that the petition would be referred to the pardon board, which will meet before the date set for the execution of the negro. WEEKLY COTTON LETTER. By Savannah Cotton Factorage Company. In our letter of September 20th we stated that we saw nothing to alarm owners of cotton, and suggested that banks and cotton factors be called upon the help farmers and others market their cotton slowly, or hold it for higher prices. Since this letter was written cotton has advanced 1 1/2c per pound, and we are glad to say there is still no pressure to force sales. On the other hand the trade demand is improving and offerings of cotton and cotton goods are light. Speculators are afraid to sell short, and investors get aboard on every decline. Many sections report that picking and ginning are about over, and low condition estimates are coming out daily, most of them predicting a yield of from 6,000,000 to 6,500,000 bales. Let's keep the following facts before us. The 1920 carry-over is now scarcely more than 6,000,000 bales, and if the 1921 crop proves to be 6,500,000 and American consumption and exports total 10,500,000, this will leave practically no carry-over next spring if every bale of the present crop is marketed. If history repeats itself, at least 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bales will be held into next season, and there may be a lively scramble for cotton during the next few months. Refinishing Nickel Plating. A new nickel-plating solution said to yield beautiful results is prepared by mixing the liquid obtained by evaporating a solution of one-half ounce nickel in aqua regia to a pasty mass and dissolving it in one pound of aqua ammonia, with that obtained by treating the same quantity of nickel with a solution of two ounces cyanide of potassium in one pound of water. More cyanide renders the deposit whiter and more ammonia renders it grayer. Then Were the Happy Days. In those cave days a man was his own barber, his own plumber, his own roofer and everything, if married, except his own boss. —Dorothy News. Game of Chess in God. The game of chess seems to have been known in Hindooism by the name of Chaturanga. It was changed by the Persians into Chetrang, but the Arabs, who took possession of that country, had neither the initial nor the final letters of that word in their alphabet. Consequently they altered the name to Shetranj. Though at one time the Chinese claimed to have played chess in 174 B. C., the Hindus played it long before that time.
