

RIISING.

The Messenger is rising in the estimation of the Medium. At first nothing that we said to or about our neighbor obtained any recognition from him. He silently ignored us. After the railroad discussion began, he began to take some notice of us, and acknowledged our existence. Last week his editorial page was devoted to the Messenger. Truly we are rising! And the Medium had actually to adopt our style of argument. We have suggested heretofore that the rail road be put in the hands of the editors of the Press and Banner and Medium. Last week the Medium suggests that the contract for building the road be let to the Messenger. Neighbor, you ought to give us credit for the wit you borrowed. We are perfectly willing to lend to you, for you are so devoid of argument to sustain your position, that you need help. But we insist that you shall be accurate and correct in your statements.

The Medium says: "The Messenger will do the work for $76,000, Kirk for $130,000, and Schofield for $228,000." That is not true, the Messenger never offered to do the work at any price. It can't be bothered with a small thing like a rail road, it has got its hands full trying to keep the Medium and the Press and Banner straight.

But in earnest the Medium was not fair and generous in its argument. The estimates of Kirk and Schofield both include bridging and freighting, neither of which are included in our estimate! That estimate was made upon the experience of the A. & K. Road and Medium cannot refute it. No, no, friend, you can't inveigle us into a rail road contract and divert us from our legitimate business. We are here to stay.

"QUALIFIED VOTERS."

The Press and Banner takes the position that only those voters registered by the Town Council previous to this time can vote at the election.

It is our opinion that the Municipal registration has nothing to do with this election, that only the State registration certificate is necessary to be exhibited, to entitle a voter to vote. The act of 1882, amendatory of the town charter provides the qualifications of age and residence that shall entitle a person to vote for Intendant and Wardens. And throughout the registration portion and it speaks of elections for "Intendant Wardens," which it calls Municipal Elections. It provides for the following form of certificate of Registration, "The bearer is a qualified voter of the town of Abbeville and is years of age and entitled to vote in the Municipal election of said town." Now, the Act speaks of the Municipal elections entirely. They are elections for Intendant and Wardens. And the "special elections" quoted by the Press and Banner are those ordered to fill vacancies in the offices of Intendant or Wardens. The election to be held on Friday is in no sense of the word a municipal election. But is a special election provided for by a special act of the Legislature—and the only qualifications necessary are those necessary to a vote at a State election.

Don't let us have any technical points about this matter. Let us have a full free and fair election. Let everybody who is of age and qualified under the State laws cast his vote. We want a full frank expression of the public sentiment on this question. Therefore don't try to shut off anybody. We don't how it will affect this election one way or the other, but we think this is the proper policy to pursue.

ALL ABOARD!

The issue is made up; the battle has been fought; the argument made, and it remains now with our people to say if we shall vote the subscription to the C. C. G. & C. Railroad. The arguments for and against the vote have been fully presented and our citizens are in position to decide for themselves calmly and deliberately what course they will pursue. Whether we will take the chances that are held out to us and which if we fail to realize can do us no harm. Or whether we will thrust back the hand held out to aid and consign our town and all its interests to slow and inevitable decay. The conditions thrown around these bonds make the town perfectly safe in voting them. Therefore there is no danger. And who dare deny that there is hope? What possible objection have you to voting them? Suppose you do not believe anything will come of it? You may be mistaken, and since no harm can come of it why not take the chances? Suppose you were stranded on a rock in mid ocean, to remain upon which were certain death by the slow process of starvation, a ship, bound for a foreign port, and not in communication with your home port or likely ever to be, heaves in sight: Would you refuse to take passage on her because you might not be able to reach home in years perhaps? Our condition is similar. Good judgment, prudence, progress and enterprise combine to urge us to vote these bonds. Friday is the fatal day for Abbeville. This may be that turn in the tide of her affairs which takes at the flood leads to a permanent, unmitigated, all the voyage of her life is bound in shallows and in miseries.

So friends, get aboard the C. C. G. & C. R. Ry. Give the old town the benefit of the doubt. Let us all work together for the benefit of ourselves, our friends, our posterity.

THAT OPINION.

We presume that the Press and Banner will present to its readers to-day, the dissenting opinion of Associate Justice McGowan in the case of Chamblee vs. Tribble. Now let it be understood that this is not the law. It requires concurrence of a majority of the Court to decide a question. Chief Justice Simpson and Associate Justice Melver concur in opposition to the views of Judge McGowan. Therefore, however much respect the opinion of Judge McGowan may deserve, it is not the law of the case and no amount of head lines can make it so.

"BYRON."

The Medium says, "Let 'Byron' come out under his own signature, and show his identity. We promise not to get mad at anything he says, but will promote the people to lift him out his boots in a neat and complete manner." To most people it will occur that "Byron" has already performed that feat for the Medium. We suggest that if the Medium don't mind it will produce a repetition of "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers." "Byron" "stirred 'em up!"

MORGAN AGAIN.

Captain Dawson, last Saturday, addressed the Blackville Democratic club, on the appointment of J. M. Morgan to be U. S. Consul in Australia. After hearing Captain Dawson, the club by an almost unanimous vote, adopted a resolution declaring that the explanation was satisfactory. There was nothing new in it, and we see no reason to change our opinion that the appointment should not have been made.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The great French author and statesman Victor Hugo is dead. Some of the greatest works of fiction, of the present age, notably, "Les Miserables," and "Quasi Modo" or the Hunchback of Notre Dame," were from his pen. He was known in life as an infidel, but it is asserted that before death he affirmed his belief in God. His vanity was not less than his ability, and greatly marred his character. Even the greatest have faults.

We have offered the editor of the Medium a position on our force when we undertake to build the C. C. G. & C. R. R. Goodness knows what he will be fit for except to sit on a stump and carp at what the balance of us do. We think we will hire Schofield in order to give our friend an opportunity to continue to "favor the road" and oppose it, at the same time.

We just want to say once for all that "those questions" have been answered. The Medium is so well aware of the truth of those answers as a complete refutation of his insinuations that he will not attempt to answer "the answers."

We never said we knew how to build a rail road! We don't! Any more than we know how a paper can be in favor of a road, and try by every means in its power to defeat the only chance there is of building it.

Major E. B. Murray, of Anderson, will deliver the Commencement address, at Erskine College.

John A. Logan, has been re-elected Senator from Illinois.

THE STATE SUPREME COURT.

Synopsis of Recent Judicial Decisions.

Chamblee et al., vs. Tribble, Treasurer, et al., No. 1,793.

Certain townships in the county of Anderson under an "Act to charter the Savannah Valley Railroad Company," approved 12th March, 1878, and an amendatory act thereof, voted a subscription to said road. The appellants, being landowners and taxpayers in these townships, refused to pay their portions of this subscription. They were published as "delinquent taxpayers," and their lands were advertised to be sold by the auditor and treasurer, with a penalty of 50 per cent. The appellants applied to the Circuit Judge for an injunction, which was granted temporarily until the case could be heard on its merits. The case was afterwards heard by the Circuit Judge, who decreed adversely to the appellants, on the ground that the assessments and levy made upon app'l property, being made to collect taxes, he had no jurisdiction, under Section 269, of the General Statutes, 1882, which prohibits injunction and all other process issuing from the Courts intended to stay such collections, and having no jurisdiction, neither the constitutional objection, nor the liability of the conduct of the defendants could be considered or determined by him, a d ordered and adjudged that the temporary injunction be dissolved and the complaint dismissed.

The plaintiffs appealed. The appellants deny the constitutionality of the Act of 12th March, 1878, and the Act amendatory thereto, and also that it is a violation of the Act of 12th March, 1878, which prohibits injunction and all other process issuing from the Courts intended to stay such collections, and having no jurisdiction, neither the constitutional objection, nor the liability of the conduct of the defendants could be considered or determined by him, a d ordered and adjudged that the temporary injunction be dissolved and the complaint dismissed. The Supreme Court decides that inasmuch as the Circuit Judge made no ruling upon the constitutionality of the Act chartering the railroad, the question is not before the Court. The Court can only review such questions of law as may be adjudged and determined by the Circuit Judge.

was not required to enter into the investigation of the question, whether the imposed tax was for a private purpose, and therefore void. The Supreme Court concurs with the Circuit Judge, sustaining the constitutionality of Section 269. See the State vs. Treasurer, 4 S. C. 529, and the State vs. Gaillard, 11 S. C. 309. Opinion by Simpson, C. J. Melver, A. J., concurs, because the constitutionality of the provisions contained in Section 269 of the General Statutes has been determined by authority to which he is bound to yield. McGowan, A. J., dissents, being of opinion that the Court should not declare Section 269 of the General Statutes to be unconstitutional, or if it is too late to do so, that it should declare that said section was never intended to apply to a case like this, where the provision for an alternative remedy against the State does not exist; and that the decree should be set aside and the cause remanded to the Circuit Court to be heard like other cases, only upon the merits involved. Filed April 25, 1885. Messrs. Benet & Scuddry for appellants, Messrs. Whitner & Son for respondents.
