The Weather.

Washington, May 27.—Forecast: South Carolina—Generally fair Thursday and Friday.

"Anderson is My Town."—It has got to be a chorus.

Can Tommy Stouch pull off a squeeze play this late in the season?

The White Way has been complimented by many visitors of good taste.

Having new students comes high. Why not reduce the cost of education by that much.

Nineteen new stores for Anderson, can any other two cities in the state beat that?

The real reunion is not under the big tent but where the old firing squads gather in groups.

The watering of the streets by Health Officer Campbell did an immense amount of good yesterday.

Columbia is making an effort to get the reunion next year—the fiftieth anniversary of Sherman's razing that city.

If there has been one complaint over Anderson's efforts to entertain the old soldiers, it has not been heard at headquarters.

There is always something good even in the worst of things. The weather forecast does not say that it will be any hotter.

The Anderson county democratic executive committee next Monday will advise the people of the county how to get their names on the club rolls.

Confederate soldiers are appreciative of attentions, and the sad part of it is that we will not have them here much longer to show our love for them.

The roads around Anderson are in excellent condition now. With the next rain a little timely working will make them fit for the remainder of the summer.

There is more development work in Anderson now than in any other period of the city's history. Elect a progressive city council to push the town forward.

Many old soldiers missed Mrs. S. Blackley, who has always been such a friend to them, and messages of love and sympathy were sent to her on her bed of illness.

The machinery at the Chamber of Commerce for handling the crowds is well manned, and Anderson has up to now made a nice for herself in the affections of the visitors.

Despite the severe and sudden turn in the weather, the old soldiers have been keeping up remarkably well. The absence of strong drink no doubt has a lot to do with this.

A gentleman from Spartanburg yesterday commented fervently upon the splendid order of the large crowds in Anderson. He said that there was better than might be expected anywhere else in the state.

CONGRATULATIONS

Up to 8 o'clock last night, the housing committee of the Chamber of Commerce, having in charge the securing of homes for the veterans announced that they had placed more than 825 veterans in various homes, hotels and boarding houses. This total includes the sponsors and maids and matrons of honor, but does not include many selected guests who so far have not registered, but have been taken care of by friends, and who are to register today.

In addition to Miss Kubank Taylor, chairman of the registration committee, who has in charge the giving away of meal tickets for one-day veterans, estimates that not less than 300 others were in the city yesterday, but who did not wish homes.

Over 1000 meal tickets were issued yesterday and about 600 Tuesday. It is also estimated that about 1000 other visitors were in the city yesterday, giving a total crowd of not less than 3,000.

It was a great task to find homes for the 1,500 veterans, but it has been done and much praise is being given the housing and registering committees for their splendid work. Never in the history of Anderson or perhaps of any upstate city have so many visitors been lodged at one time. The machinery for handling the reunion is perfect and Mr. Whaley has made Anderson a happy home for the old soldiers.

BACK TO MODESTY

The world seems staggering back to sanity, or we might add is tangling back. It is the business man who has done most to promote the cause of prohibition and temperance and now the business man is to encourage modesty of dress and deportment on the part of working girls. The following Associated Press dispatch from Chicago shows a determination on the part of business men to help girls who are willing to work:

Chicago, May 27.—Young women with good dispositions, courage attractiveness and with no slit skirts, low cut necks of fiat curls gummed on their cheeks, need never lack employment in Chicago provided that they possess a reasonable degree of competency. This was the result of a discussion of the subject here it was announced today by employment heads of a number of large department stores and mail order concerns and experts from the women's trade union league and several civic bodies.

One employer said that the greatest problems in the middle-aged woman who had grown careless of her appearance. Another declared that it was "freakish girls." A third said that the hardest kind of girl to find a place for was the college girl with no vocational training.

THE VETERANS' PARADE

Get my old knapsack, Mary, an' my uniform of gray; Get my battered helmet, Mary, for I'll need 'em all today. Get my canteen an' my leggings; reach me down my empty gun. For I'm going out paradin' with the boys of '61.

Never mind them bloodstains, Mary; never mind that ragged hole. That was seekin' for my soul. Jest bresh off them cobwebs, Mary; git the bonnie flag of blue. For I'm going out paradin' with the boys of '62.

These old clothes don't fit me, Mary; as they did when I was young; Don't you recollect how neatly to my manly form they clung? Never mind that sleeve that's empty. Let it dangle loose and free. For I'm going out paradin' with the boys of '63.

Pull my sword belt tighter, Mary; fix that strap beneath my chin. I've grown old and threadbare, Mary; like my uniform, and thin. But I reckon I'll pass muster as I did in days of yore. For I'm going out paradin' with the boys of '64.

Now I'm ready, Mary, kiss me; kiss your old sweetheart good-bye; Brush away them tear drops, Mary, Lord, I didn't think you'd cry. I ain't going out to battle; cheer up, Mary, sakes alive. I'm just going out paradin' with the boys of '65.

ORDER FOR THE PARADE TODAY

Bob King, chief marshal for the parade today, was taken very ill Wednesday and physicians were in constant attention during the day. He could not confer with his assistants yesterday, but the order of the parade was about the same as announced in The Intelligencer yesterday.

Porter A. Whaley, general chairman of the committee of arrangements requests all of the marshals to meet him this morning at 9 o'clock at the office of Secretary Burnett at the Y. M. C. A. This is very important in view of the illness of Mr. King.

The local committee of arrangements yesterday requested Gen. Teague to invite Gov. Blease and staff to take part in the parade, and Gen. Teague very cheerfully extended the invitation.

The parade will be short as the "thin grey line" is getting feeble as well as thin, and it is requested that all organizations mobilize promptly so as to keep the old soldiers in line but a short time. They will form at the postoffice and march thence to the public square and around the court house.

ALLEGED CURE

HOG CHOLERA

U. S. Government Warns People Against Accepting Anything But the Genuine

Washington, D. C., May 27.—Evidence of what appears to be a well organized campaign to delude farmers throughout the country into buying an alleged cure for hog cholera, under the impression that this has been investigated and approved by the United States Government, has reached the Department of Agriculture. Articles praising this medicine, Benetol by name, are being sent out widespread to newspapers. These articles are so worded that it appears as if the Department of Agriculture had received reports from the state of Minnesota showing that the medicine had proved most beneficial. As a matter of fact the one report received by the Department was an unofficial and unsolicited statement sent presumably from the promoters themselves. The Department attaches no importance whatsoever to this statement. It has no reason to believe in the efficiency of any proprietary cure for hog cholera and does not recommend any. Under certain conditions it urges farmers to protect their stock with anti-hog cholera serum but that is all.

In connection with this attempt it may be said that the medicine, which is now put forward as good for hogs, was advertised some time ago as a means of killing tuberculosis, typhoid, and cancer germs, according to an article published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. At that time it was asserted that the Army was interested in it. As a matter of fact the Army was no more interested then than the Department of Agriculture is now.

In view of the evidence that the attempt to create this false impression is persistent and widespread, all hog owners are warned to communicate with the United States authorities before accepting as true any statement that the Government recommends any treatment other than the serum already mentioned.
