Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by Druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Grand Jurors for 1915. The new members of the grand jury for 1915 are:

SIX AND TWENTY

W. H. HAMSTON, R. F. D. 1 Jan. 27.—As luck would have it we were in Anderson on the day Governor Hanes resigned and was greatly surprised to see business going on just as if a great calamity had not befallen the great commonwealth of South Carolina. The cotton mills were all running and giving employment to thousands of operatives.

Although we did not support Richard I. Manning for governor we firmly believe that the best man won and that he will make an ideal governor. One thing certain we have as yet seen nothing or heard anything through opposing newspapers that even hints of crookedness in his entire makeup.

We are glad to say that Mrs. A. W. Pickett who has been very sick with pneumonia is fast recovering. T. C. Wilson was a business visitor to Anderson last Saturday. Dr. L. G. Clayton of Central was a visitor to this section a few days ago. Will Melton is moving back to this section after living one year in the New Prospect section.

Dewitte Massey and Anderson Griffith who are guards with the Anderson County chain gang at Pendleton were visiting home folks here last Saturday and Sunday. In some places the roads in this section are almost impassable. Holes being cut in them so deep that it makes heavy hauling out of the question.

We recently read in a paper from a neighboring State an account of an altercation between two neighbors, and one of them in giving an account of it made use of the oft repeated words that "patience had ceased to be a virtue." Would this be a better world to live in if we could always remember that patience under provocation is our interest as well as duty.

The whole wide world of humanity is diversified by an endless variety of characters dispositions and passions. Every person in the world is marked by some peculiarity which distinguishes them from another and no where can there be found two individuals who are exactly alike in all respects.

The question of "what is a widow" has got the goat of Attorney General Warren Grice.

The attorney general had thought that he had analyzed, defined and parsed the word to the satisfaction of every ordinary man in the State, but they keep on writing him to give new circumstances and family history and ask "Is she a widow or ain't she?"

It is all on account of the new child labor law. It specifies that no child between 12 and 14 years of age may work in factories or places of amusement unless a widowed mother is dependent upon the child's wages.

Naturally the question of whether a divorced woman is a widow came up. The attorney general ruled that she was not. And then today came this one: "Is a woman a widow whose first husband has died and who, married again, wants her children by her first marriage to work in a mill because her second husband cannot support her?" That's a knotty one.

John O. Lovejoy of Wild Park, Okla., is built on the general architecture of a sugar barrel, weighing about 300 pounds. He checked suit with most of the weight between his collar button and his knees. He arrived in Atlanta yesterday afternoon to see the sights, and one of the first places he visited was one of the new office buildings.

Atlanta storm doors—the revolving kind—are not built for over-sizes, and when Mr. Lovejoy found himself being jammed between door and wall he tried to back out again. That's where he made his mistake. The door went out of commission and refused to budge either way.

To make matters worse a business man in a hurry to catch a train had tried to emerge from the door just as Mr. Lovejoy essayed to enter, and the Atlantian found himself copped on the opposite side, with more breathing room, it is true, than the Oklahoma, but otherwise no better off. When the house carpenters had arrived and taken the door to pieces Mr. Lovejoy had lost seven buttons and the Atlantian his train.

Atlanta quick lunch stands will come under the eye of the Anti-Saloon league if more complaints of their mince pie reach the authorities. The demand for pie is likely to take a jump. For Miles Bewish, arrested for going to sleep in an office building corridor and afterward accused of being drunk, explained that the bran-ry in a restaurant mince pie had rendered him indifferent to all else but the delights of summer.

For two days and nights officers have been searching for three little girls believed to be tramping the roads somewhere between Atlanta and Columbus, and who must have spent at least one of the cold nights without shelter. The girls had lived until Monday at the Georgia Training Home, an institution in the suburbs, but when dark arrived Monday night the trio was missing. The trail led officers toward the Chattahoochee river, and then toward a railroad, where their footprints were plain in the muddy path. But they have not yet been found.

Annie May Tartan, the oldest is fifteen. Lillie May Galt is fourteen, but tall for her years, and Mary Bice is only thirteen. They all formerly lived at Columbus, and the matron believes they grew homesick and tried to tramp there.

That C. W. Hunicutt, a pioneer Atlantian who died last week at the age of 87 years, had built up an estate of $600,000 since the civil war left him penniless, was shown yesterday afternoon when his will was filed for probate.

Mr. Hunicutt, who was one of the city's best known figures, divided his fortune equally among three daughters, his son and a grandson. The will was drawn last July.

One thousand skilled singers already have been secured for the grand chorus which will sing at the annual Atlanta Bible conference which opens at the Tabernacle on March 12.

The revival campaign, followed by the great Bible conference, is expected to throw Atlanta into a period of religious fervor which has not been known for decades. The Bible conference will draw visitors from all the Southern States, as some of the most famous religious figures in the world are to be on the program as speakers and lecturers.

Miss Maggie Garlington, of Anderson County, has been allotted the month of February to prepare lesson plans in the recently organized rural school supervisors' club, and she has prepared the following plans, copies of which have been mailed to the schools in this county and also in the other counties who are members of the club:

Decorations—For St. Valentine's day decorate the room with strings of hearts and with booklets made by the children. For February use a prominent portrait of Washington 22nd, have a piece, draped with national colors. Appropriate mottoes and drawings may be placed on the blackboards.

Calendars—Use either of the following subjects: Snow scene, outline of trees, large red heart, flags, Mt. Vernon, or a bust of Washington. Picture Study—The paintings of Landseer and Rosa Bonheur are full of life and action and will recall to children their pets at home. They will not only afford stories of these animals, but give an opportunity for lessons in kindness to dumb creatures.

Reading—Give the children the pleasure of turning to the stories of animals, rain, snow, sleet, etc. Also the story of Washington. Use Supplementary readers and library books. Geography—Combine your scrap book on Geography with the one on history. The popular regions may be illustrated during February snows. Add many things to your weather chart. Compare February in South Carolina with this month in other States.

History—Study the life of Washington, with its many interesting incidents. Use pictures, poems, songs. Study the unselfish life of St. Valentine.

Spelling—Be guided by the age of the child and teach words from the History and Geography stories. Nature—Study trees, rain, snow, hail, winter birds, seal, whale, and polar bear.

Language and Drawing—Write stories and topics of Geography, History, Nature Study. Illustrate the booklet and make a cover for them of bogus paper and draw suitable designs with crayola, ink, and white crayon. Color birds, flags, hatchets, hearts, etc.

Higher Grades. Reading—Use Supplementary Readers and such library books as the life of Washington, Longfellow, St. Valentine. Also read children of the snow, etc.

Geography—Make special study of the polar region, snow, icebergs, animals, and in connection with northern explorers. Spelling—Study practical words in connection with Reading, Geography, History and nature study.

Nature—Make a deep study of flower or grade work. Get the children to observe nature on their way to and from school. During the noon hour, say with Longfellow: "Come wander with me," she said, "Into regions yet untrod; And read what is still unread In the manuscripts of God."

Language and Drawing—Enlarge upon the lower grade work. Require carefulness of thought and neatness of work.
