THE HONOR SYSTEM.

Students of 123 universities and dolleges in the United States are under the "honor system," according to a bulletin just issued by the United States Bureau of Education. Of these, 37 per cent are situated east of the sippl and South of Mason and Dixon's line; 4 per cent are in New England; only 6 1-2 per cent are for England; only 6 1-2 per cent are for women, while 65 1-2 per cent are coeducational.

Judging from the news that comes from Charleston, the indications are

There is something about such a course that commands the respect not only of good people, but even the lawless admire it, and are more readily induced to submit. To get the farmers together at one place with what they have to offer for sale, there should be a "Market Day." Not only should the farmers assemble their products in one place and on a market day but the country merchant should bring the produce he has taken in exchange for goods and there sell to the best advantage. The larger the quantity of farm produce assembled on a market day, the more buyers there will be. The blind tigers were raided without notice a few days ago and several of them are reported as saying that they were going out of business.

While we-have very little confidence in promises made by people of this character, we have all confidence in the fine effect that will result from the strict enforcement of the law When law breakers learn that there is a determination upon the part of the officers, in whose hands is placed law enforcement, they are not going to, take the risk of defying them. This is all that is needed. Charleston has had her way a long time, but even Charleston may be made to come to time. There are any number of good people in that city who have no sympathy whatever with the way things have been going on there, and they will give all the sympathy and encouragement that may be necessary to those who are in earnest about a change in conditions. We do not believe that there will be any laed for radical pressures. The policy pursued by Gov. Manning is the best and will prove effectual. If it does not there will be time enough to resort to something different.

What must impress every one is the quiet, dignified way in which the governor has made known his wishes as to law enforcement, not only in the red in the meand talk with me and talk with an elighbor who can light a lightwood to while we plan for better things to the meetings of the will go to the meetings of the with my wife will go to the meeting of the fings. FOR CONTINUANCE OF OFFICE OF SUPERVISOR

OF RURAL SCHOOL IN AN-DERSON COUNTY-WOULD GIVE $25

STATEMENT

From President of Hammond School Improvement Association in Reference to Matter.

In a communication appearing be-low Mrs. Pat W. Major, president of the Hammond School Improvement Association, discusses in a very force-ful and clear-cut manner the question of the value to the rural schools of a supervisor, and makes a plea for the continuation of this work. The association of which she is the head offers to contribute $25 to the maintenance of the office for Anderson county, and suggests that other school improvement associations of the county come forward with such subscriptions as they can and make up a fund to as they can and make up a fund to pay the expenses of a supervisor without the county board of education being called upon for any assistance.

There are 80 school improvement associations in the county. The cost of the supervisor's work is about $759 or $800 thus showing that the indi-or $800, thus showing that the indi-vidual associations would not be very heavily taxed to make contributions sufficient to keep up the work.

The communication from Mrs.

Major is as follows:

Every rural community needs such a forum as the country school should provide, but it doesn't. The school im-provement association is only begin-ning too, and, we all know the most difficult thing is the beginning. Much benefit has already been reaped from this organized work in the rural district. It has meant intelligent co-operation and encouraged a social spirit, a big help in solving the coun-try life's biggest problem: The coun-try schools need the rural school im-provement association, the school improvement association, the school association needs a rural school super

No one who studies the educational system of America and for one mo-ment be content with the conditions of the rural schools of Anderson county today. New school buildings in the county are what they should be in comfort, in beauty, in refinement and in sanitation. Does not the country child born to the pritage (of fresh air, sunshine and strength) of all nature, deserve that his days in the school room be spent under as favorable environment as the town gives to its child? Is there any reason why he should not enjoy during his hours of school work, fresh air, proper temperature and a sense of genuine comfort?

Is there such a atmosphere prevad-ing our rural schoolst Here we need the work of a supervisor. We need her to direct the work of organized effort for the health of school childeffort for the health of school childler, and to help in giving them the education that will fit them for more efficient living. Certainly more will be required of the boys and girls in training now, if they are to be the leaders in the next generation. A readjustment of rural school education so that it may fit these boys and girls for more efficient living in a question of vital importance. This reconstruction is a delicate and difficult task, all the more need then, of someone to do it. This is the problem yet unsolved. We are face to face with the big question, of how this is to be done and who is to do it, since we have no school supervisor.

We would like to know what part to finer solution of this problem belongs to school boards, what part to teachers, and what part to school supervisors.

tion will come forwamrd and support this work by keeping the supervisors office open, this problem will be partly solved. Perhaps, she could give us more time and some of the work she has been doing would be up to some-body else.

Since we have reached the point Since we have reached the point of realizing the needs of a rural supervisor, our object is to keep the work going. In order to achieve results, we need something more than realization and enthusiasm, we need system and directness of effort.

There are some eighty school improvement associations in Anderson county. If each association will come forward and piedge ten dollars ($10) the supervisors work can be kept go.

the supervisors work can be kept go-ing during this crisis. The associa-tions could do no better work, and we feel sure a fund will be provided if Anderson county is to stand for progressiveness along educational lines.

All work or this kind is so young that it would be disastrous to end the beginning.

Perhaps subscriptions could be gotten from individuals, at any rate, Hammond school is willing and 2n-xious to start this movement by pledging twenty-five dollars. The bigness of this undertaking should be an inspiration to individual effort. Each woman doing her part and then pulling all together at the same time, so woman doing her part and then pulling all together at the same time, so shall the women of Anderson county work together for a more efficient school system, and thus a better, finer, higher type of citizenship.

Plans for the Anderson County Summer school, which will begin July 5 and run for four weeks, were laid at a meeting of the county board of education held yesterday morning in the office of County Superintendent of Education J. B. Felton. The board also selected teachers for the school and mapped out the course of studies that will be taught. It is probable that will be taught. It is probable that five teachers will be employed, but the board selected only four at its meeting yesterday. If a fifth teacher is added, and it is probable that one will, the name of the one chosen and the branch of work that will be done will be announced later.
