UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Dodson's Liver Tonic" Will Clean Your Sluggish Liver Better Than Calomel and Gas Hot Salts.

Calomel makes you sick; you lose a day's work; calomel irritates your liver; it salivates; calomel inflates your liver; if you are bilious; feel laxy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tonic instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tonic is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling laxy, your liver will be working, your stomach ache and distention gone, your stomach will be sweet and bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful, full of energy, vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clear your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you get your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tonic because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp, or make them sick. I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tonic to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my usual reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist about it.

Bamboo Groves In Anderson Are Objects Of Beauty and Wonder

PROBABLY THE ONLY ONES IN SOUTH CAROLINA AND AMONG THE FEW IN AMERICA—CANES GROW IN REMARKABLE MANNER—UNLIKE MOST ANY OTHER PLANT KNOWN

All the old stories about the Kansas corn that grows so rapidly a farmer who attempts to cut down a stalk can scarcely get two whacks in the same joint of the stalk, the Arkansas pumpkin vines that grow so fast they wear out the young fruit by dragging it along over the ground or the Mississippi cotton that spreads out its branches in such a hurry the farmer who starts ploughing at one end of a row is hopelessly enveloped in dense foliage before he reached the other end of the field, pale into insignificance in comparison with the two wonderful Japanese bamboo groves that are to be found in Anderson, one being in Silver Brook cemetery and the other at the residence of Mr. Rufus Fant, who is responsible for their being here. It is said that these are the only bamboo groves in the State of South Carolina, and among the very few to be found in the United States. It is well worth any one's time to go to Silver Brook Cemetery and view the remarkable sight—remarkable not from the appearance of the plants (or bushes, trees or whatever else might be the proper term) but remarkable in the manner of their growth.

Process of Evolution.
The principle of evolution, that is, that mankind through all the aeons has been growing from a very savage state into a fuller life and toward the goal of perfection, is exemplified, in a measure, in the growth of these bamboo forests. There is the law of the survival of the fittest is also carried out in the bamboo forest. The frat principle alluded to is suggested by the fact that each year the individual sprouts come up out of the ground larger than those who burst up the year before—each season growing into a larger life and nearer the goal of perfection in the bamboo code of ethics. The second principle is borne out in the fact that the smaller bamboo trees are gradually crowded out by the larger ones and eventually go down in defeat and death in the race for existence in the bamboo struggle for existence. There are a number of other laws and notions exemplified in the bamboo forest, but enough have been pointed out. The interested person should visit the bamboo grove and do some reflecting for himself. But now for the facts of the matter.

Beautiful Sight.
Some five or six years ago Mr. Rufus Fant received some roots of Japanese bamboo that came from the empire of the Mikado. Some of these he planted at his own home and others he took over to Silver Brook Cemetery and planted alongside the cemetery stream, near the pavilion. He planted but two or three roots, and Friday afternoon when the writer visited the spot a veritable grove of bamboo was to be seen. A genuine forest may be there at this time, judging from the rapidity with which the bamboo sprouts sprout up and grow. Seriously though, the bamboo, under normal conditions, will grow 30 feet in 30 days.

Pardon the repetition, but the bamboo is a wonderful thing. In Japan, it is said, the plant is the all-and-all. Its tender shoots are eaten for food, like turnip greens or asparagus. The mature bamboo is used for making furniture, building houses, constructing rafts and boats, making aeroplanes, etc. The fibre of the cane is used in weaving of mats. Large joints are sawed off and used as water buckets, while the joints of a long section of cane are bored through with an auger and the things used as water pipes. There are hundreds of other uses to which bamboo is put, but enough along this line has been said.

Its Peculiar Growth.

The bamboo cane grows most peculiarly. Ordinary trees spring up from acorns as tiny shrubs and gradually develop into full grown giants of the forest. Contrary to this principle, a bamboo cane pushes through the ground at its full size, that is, as regards circumference. One sprout seen yesterday measured 14 inches in circumference. This sprout will not get any larger in circumference, but all of its growth will be in one direction—upward.

The bamboo canes pring up from roots that run along under the ground for remarkable distances. For instance, a root may be planted in a certain spot, and in a few years this root will have grown in all directions for hundreds of feet. At frequent intervals along the root routes these shoots spring up through the ground. And the minute a shoot pushes its way through the ground it starts to grow at the rate of a foot a day, that is, under normal conditions.

But a peculiar fact is that the parent root does not grow at the same season of the year that the shoot or canes grow. During the month of August the roots push themselves along under the earth to become ridged, as though moles were burrowing along underneath the earth crust. The roots stop growing then, and in the spring, particularly in April, the shoots begin springing up.

Another remarkable fact in connection with the growth of the canes is that a spout does all of its growing in one season. Unlike a tree that grows from year to year, the bamboo cane grows to full maturity in one season, and after that grows no more; but stands there for a few years and becomes tougher and harder and finally dies.

A Furry Coat.

When the sprouts through the earth they are encased in a furry coat of husks. Each joint of the cane is encased in a husk. After the sprout has reached several feet in height these husks begin to fall off, exposing the beautifully colored cane.

A bamboo cane after reaching a height of several feet puts out small graceful branches, and from these delicate twigs which are tipped with small green leaves. The bamboo does not shed its foliage until a new crop of leaves come along and push the old ones off. Nor do the leaves fade. The old leaves that are pushed off to make way for the new ones are as green when they fall to the earth as they ever were.

There are a great many interesting facts about the bamboo grove at Silver Brook cemetery or the one at Mr. Fant's residence which could be told. The grove is most beautiful, both from the standpoint of appearance and the character of the shade it affords.

A CONFESSION

Hopes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Reid of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight."

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and help build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

The Kaiser Laughed.

Among the officers who resemble the Kaiser Wilhelm II, is a young captain who has a prodigious talent for imitation.

Some months before the war this captain found himself in a hall of the imperial palace at Potsdam. He was there with others of his friends who were officers, and began an imitation of the Kaiser with extraordinary precision in tone, quality of voice, gesture and appearance. All at once there was a terrible silence. Wilhelm II had arrived in the hall. The officers saluted respectfully and remained motionless.

"Very well, go on!" said the Kaiser, addressing the captain. "I did not know you had this talent."

The officer hesitated a moment, then extending his arm and reproducing the intimation of his sovereign, he cried in a strong voice:

"Captain, you should be chased out of the army, but in consideration of your youth and because I know you to be a worthy and brave soldier, I pardon you."

The Kaiser laughed and the captain was not punished.

When Fish Begin to Bite.

When springtime comes a-creepin' round,

Just easy-like, an' slow,

I'm out a-diggin' up the ground

For bait with which to go A-fishin'; an' I'm here to say,

I do not care a mite

For work, I'm sure to run away

When fish begin to bite.

If you have ever been a boy

You'll know just how I feel;

You've known, I hope, the wondrous joy

When one can softly steal

Away from all one has to do

An' sit until the night

Comes creepin' down, a-warnin' you—

When fish begin to bite.

There's some folks who don't like to fish,

Who say they'd rather rest.

Well, I am sure that's not my wish,

For I like fishin' best.

I never get enough, and so

I find it rare delight

To gather up my lines and go

When fish begin to bite.

On Going to Concerts.

Josef Hoffman has a story which illustrates the attitude of many people toward recitals of piano music.

An eminent pianist was to give a concert (but Hoffman does not relate that it was his own) and as the audience was filling in the ticket-taker stopped a man who presented two tickets.

"You can't go in," asserted the official. "You are not in fit condition."

"Didn't I pay for my tickets?" questioned the would-be auditor.

"Aren't they in order?"

"They're perfectly in order," was the reply, "but the truth is, you're drunk."

"Drunk? Drunk?" mused the other, solemnly, and placing the passports in his pocket. "Of course I am drunk. If I weren't drunk, would I come to a piano recital?"

As Love Grows Cold.

They had been married just one year. That was why he risked losing his train by allowing her to fasten a bunch of violets on his coat. But his foot tapped the floor impatiently, nevertheless, and he frowned as he wondered if his wife's kindly thought would cost him his cozy corner seat.

"George," said his wife tremulously, "you don't love me as you used to."

"My darling heart of hearts," he exclaimed desperately, eyeing the clock, "whatever makes you say that?"

"Because, George," she answered, "when you were first married it used to take you a whole hour just to say good-night, and now—tears interrupted her words and ran down her cheeks—you can kiss me and catch your train all in four minutes."

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderrin at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find dandruff.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE—AS TO COMMUTATION ROAD TAX

All persons liable to road tax for 1915 are hereby notified that the time for payment to the county treasurer of said taxes will expire on the 1st day of May, 1915. After that date a penalty will be attached.

J. MACK KING, Supervisor.

Columbia, March 13, 1915.
Mr. Winston Smith, County Auditor, Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir: The State tax commission of the State of South Carolina has sent me the following communication relative to the enforcement of the income tax law:

"The time for making returns under the income tax law of this State expired on the 20th of February last, and a very large number of persons liable to the payment of the tax omitted to make such returns within the time limited.

"The neglect to make the returns in time may have been caused by an erroneous impression that the returns and payment of the income tax to the federal government relieved these tax payers from paying the income tax imposed by the laws of this State.

"The failure to make returns within time have been so general and widespread that we think further opportunity should be allowed such persons to make these returns before the penalties provided by law are imposed upon them."

In order, therefore, to save such persons who will now come forward and make the proper returns, I, Carlton W. Sawyer, under, and by virtue of power conferred upon the comptroller general, with the approval of the governor, in Section 787 of Volume 1, Code of Laws of South Carolina, 1912, do hereby extend the time for the making of returns and assessment of income taxes without penalty until the first day of July, A. D., 1915.

You will govern yourself accordingly.

CARLTON W. SAWYER, Comptroller General.

Approved, RICHARD I. MANNING, Governor.
