Profits to the Farmer. At the time when the milk is delivered to the concern the farmer is paid a little over two cents a quart This is exactly the same price which others are paid for their milk by the distributing companies. In case of the man who delivers to one of the joint stock companies this is all that the farmer ever receives for his milk. The farmer who is a member of this co-operative concern, however, at the end of the half yearly period receives a dividend which amounts to about one cent per quart. At the end of the year there is generally a small additional surplus, so that the farmer has altogether received over three cents a quart for his milk, almost one cent more a quart than the person selling to the private distributors.

But this is not all. The farmer has invested absolutely no money in this co-operative concern. Yet at the end of the 20 years the 100 farmers are in possession of a plant which is probably worth $200,000 and which has been accumulated out of the profits of the establishment. This is the property of those who have delivered the milk to the concern. It belongs to them in proportion to the amount of milk which they have delivered, taking into account, in every case of course, the quality of the milk as well as the quantity. The average farmer has then from his milk, in addition to the price which he has already received, made a profit of $2,000 for the 20

Cheap to the Consumer. On the other hand, the prices paid to the co-operative concern by the private taker is extremely moderate. For the ordinary quality of milk, which corresponds to our certified milk, he pays about six and one-third cents per quart. For the special milk, the infants' milk and the hospital milk, which is of a quality seldom found in American cities, the consumer pays seven cents per quart.

Capitalized Without Money. Twelve years ago when the Tri folium was organized, not a dollar was furnished by the members. One hundred farmers got together and authorized a few of the leaders to borrow $125,000 at the bank. It is to be remarked in this connection that the banks of Denmark consider a loan to no capital stock and no tangible property as a perfectly good loan. It has been demonstrated again and again that these associations are planned in such a way that they are worthy of credit. It is considered as safe as any American industrial bond. In this case as in all others, only a few of the leaders signed the note at the bank, although of course the entire number who were in the organization agreed to stand back of those who borrowed the money. The bank was safe, both because the 100 farmers represented were responsible financially, and because they knew a cooperative concern such as this was to be was a sound business venture. The arrangement with the bank was that the money was to be paid

Baltimore, Md.-What is believed to view, especially when we view the be the first operation of its kind in this country was performed at a local hospital when the cornea of a pig's eye was grafted on the sightless eye of a three-months-old boy. It was said that previous operations, in which rabbits' eyes had been used, were unsuccessful, but that experiments with pigs' eves had led scientists to believe that they were more adaptable. Two cases are said to be on record where the grafting of human cornea gave sight to totally blind eyes.

> In the operation the pig was chloro formed, the eyeball taken out and the cornea cut from it. An extraordinarily fine needle and fine silk were used in sewing the cornea in place. The eye will remain bandaged for about a week.
