It is not general prosperity for America just because all the arms and ammunition factories are overrun with orders. It is prosperity for the few, while the many are as bad off as ever.

If President Wilson had not this submarine business on hand with Germany and the cotton embargo mess with John Bull, we shudder to think what would have happened to Mexico long before now.

As a watchful waiter Uncle Sam is an adept. He watched and waited for Mexico until he got tired and quit. He is now on the same job with Germany; and in a short time he will be doing the stunt with John Bull.

A man named Constant Agoney, who suffers from chronic rheumatism, has been discovered by the paragrapher of the New York Mail, and he thinks that is positive proof that there is something in a name after all.

A clerk in the sub-treasury in New York was getting rich by substituting pennies for nickels for delivery to the local banks, but the government had to meddle in his little game. Honesty is the best policy, of course, but he could have gotten richer quicker if he had substituted 2-bit pieces for 5-dollar gold pieces.

The South Carolina of the future, in view of what cotton is doing for the farmers, should be a land of flocks and herds, of cornfields and wheatfields, of silos, of big barns, of meadows and pastures. By and by cotton would be a profitable crop, and there would not be so much belly-aching about the low price of the staple for a while, at least.

A magazine writer tells us how to live to be a hundred. In the first place, most of us don't want to live that long in this vale, and besides, after one follows the advice laid down, what is left? Nothing in the world but an old man one hundred years old, of no use to himself or anyone else. He is deprived of all the pleasures of life, he is not allowed to eat or drink what he likes, must live out of doors winter and summer, and a lot of other fool advice that no one follows or expects to follow.

Many of our state exchanges are discussing the question of labor organizing itself into unions. Most of them agree that unions are all right "if they are conducted on the right lines," and then go ahead and tell labor how to run the union. Some of these papers even specify the sort of men who should be at the head of these bodies. If the unions were run to suit most of those who write about how they should be conducted it would not be long before the unions would be defunct. "Stick to your last."

The Pendleton Farmers' Society has presented The Sentinel with a history of that famous society from its founding in 1815 up to the present, and we highly appreciate it. The history is a neatly bound book of more than two hundred pages and is chock full of interesting items connected with the society and old Pendleton district. The Pendleton Farmers' Society is one of the oldest societies of its kind in the South. The editor and manager of The Sentinel were recently made honorary members of this society and we consider it an honor to us.

Nimmons News Notes

This is the first time that the writer has had the pleasure of being "foreign correspondent" for The Pickens Sentinel. But if space permits and nothing prevents otherwise, you may from time to time hear from this quarter of the continent, though nothing ever happens of much note in this section. Still, we are part of the Great Plan, and as such we like to be heard from occasionally.

"Laying by" the crop seems to be the order of the day among all the farmers, and of course we are all farmers here with few exceptions. School has been open here for two weeks, with Miss Edna Earle as teacher. There is only a small school at present. There is much hope for a prosperous summer's work among the pupils under such an excellent teacher.

The Antioch school opened July 19 with Miss Kendrick of Jonesville in charge. They have a very nice school and an able teacher for the summer season of eight weeks. McKinney's Chapel school opened July 12 with Miss Glazener in charge. All the mountain schools here seem to have been very fortunate in securing efficient teachers.

Just a minute, folks: Have you ever visited a mountain school? If not, do so whenever possible and see the conditions under which the mountain boys and girls secure their education: see how eager the bright-eyed boys and girls are to get on in their books; to learn something about this world beyond the mountains. It does one good to see so many eagerly seeking after a better education; many of these boys and girls have parents that can neither read or write; can't you see why they are so eager for knowledge? You probably do not know it, but we have some of the finest boys and girls anywhere that can be found in the county anywhere. The world has not yet come in to mar the beauty of nature.

The religious element of the community is very good, but by no means what it should be. We have preaching only once a month in the mountain churches, and of course that is not as much as we need. We have Sunday school at one church in the morning and at another every Sunday in the evening. This is the great need of the people here and the one thing that can bring them closer together. The Sunday school is a great means of drawing people closer to God in the church. We need more co-operation; without it we cannot stand. There is today a grand work to be done in getting the mountain people to entertain a broader view of what the religion of Christ Jesus really stands for and for what purpose unity in the church is meant.

The writer greatly appreciates the fact that this summer there has been no visit from the others in search of moonshiners. The mountain people probably have found out that it doesn't pay to furnish the town and lower country folks with "mountain dew," for it doesn't.

We see quite a few campers pass by these days, out for a good time up here in the garden spot of the Piedmont, and also a few automobiles pass going over to Brown's hotel in Jocassee valley. These people all enjoy the stay in the mountains at such a fine place as Brown's; but much of the beauty of the scenery is marred by the roughness of the road. You lower country folks should demand a better access to the mountains. Get after the proper ones until we get a road fit for such a county as this to talk of. The health record of this section is excellent at present.

We are all enjoying some real hot days and some real cool nights. With such glorious sunlight and such beautiful moonlight all the world should rejoice and be glad. BUGS.

From Pastor Durham

Dear Editor: Please allow me space in the famous home paper to express my appreciation to the people of Glenwood for their big, free, loving hearts. They sent me a complete outfit from head to foot, from the smallest article to a nice suit of clothes—everything that could be desired.

Words can't express my gratefulness for my people and the value I place upon friendship. I prize it above gold—yes, than fine gold. May God's richest blessings be upon each loving heart is the prayer of their pastor. T. E. DURHAM.
