Wonder if there's a square meal in Columbia this week?

We see by the papers that there has been a fair down Colunby way.

Pickens pork chops and flapjacks knock the sox off Charleston waffles and weinies.

Every little bit helps. The German-Americans are opposed to the re-election of President Wilson.

If the Allies hope to win in the great war they will have to get Mutt and Jeff on their staff—especially Jeff.

Ex-President Taft suggests that the president's appointive powers be curtailed. But he didn't say it till he lost his presidential job.

Diplomacy has been reduced to a cash basis in Europe, and it seems as though the highest and best bidder will win out in this great world war.

Old-line Republicans are forever telling the people how this government should be conducted, but somehow they never thought of that when they were in power.

The man who goes around the house repairing things that a carpenter ought to do is the same idiot who is always telling everybody how the government ought to be run.

Belva Lockwood, who ran for president 26 years ago and who is now 85 years of age, says she is not old; that she still dances, and declares that she may oppose President Wilson in the 1916 campaign. A game old chicken is Belva.

A philosopher tells us that after studious research he has discovered that no state has more than one great man—one real genius—at a time. Here's a chance for Bob Gonzales. We've often wondered if he does not at times feel powerful lonesome and vainly sigh for congenial companionship!

It is thought the G.O.P. will be compelled to fall back on Colonel Roosevelt for their 1916 nominee for the presidency. The standpatters have been beating the bushes mightily of late for a victim from their own tribe, but it seems there is no one who is willing to be the goat. If the Colonel is as wise as he ought to be he will also refuse, thereby making it unanimous for Wilson. He deserves it.

The State, speaking of the fair last week, said: Just a year after the dropping upon us of the gloom of 1914, we have in Columbia a state fair surpassing all its predecessors in the merits and extent of its exhibits. It has attracted to Columbia, perhaps, a larger concourse of people than ever before assembled in South Carolina in a single week. It has been the most triumphant of nearly half a century of state fairs.

Dr. Ramsay, in a great sermon Sunday night, speaking of the Sabbath day and how to observe it, remarked that the man who takes his family in his automobile Sunday morning and rides about instead of taking them to church or would ride so late in the afternoon that they were too tired to attend church at night, would suffer because of the mistake. We endorse the above most heartily. The automobile that could and should be made a blessing can be turned into a curse.

Did you ever hear the old story of when one hog gets an ear of corn every other hog will trot along behind and squeal and beg for a bite, but just let the hog get his head fast in the crack of a fence and every son of a sow will jump on and help tear him to pieces? Of course you have. And it's just so with most men. As long as a man is prosperous and has money he can't keep his friends off with a club. The moment he is unfortunate and his wealth disappears, as wealth has a habit of doing, he is not only snubbed by his former friends, but they begin to do him all the harm possible. When a man starts down grade the world sidesteps and greases the track. All of which goes to prove that there is a heap of hog in man.

OUR WEEKLY RIDDLE.—What is the only thing some men raise on their farms?

A MOTHER'S LOVE

FROM AN EDITORIAL IN COLUMBIA STATE

THE most beautiful thing in life is a mother's love. It begins with stitches on a tiny garment and it outlasts the grave. Some mothers may be unkind, but rarely. These are the exceptions. The love that the mother bears for her son follows him through babyhood, school days, young manhood and fatherhood, through all his successes and defeats. In honor or in disgrace, it utterly owns him. A stain can never attach itself to him; for always it is he who is wronged by the world. To his mother he can confidently turn on any occasion, under any circumstances. In her he finds always the same tender parent who sought dawning light in his baby face and the secret of his greatness has lain hidden in her heart as she has pondered over its promises. The realization of her dream can not fail, for she sees its fruition beyond the end of life itself. The mother of the condemned criminal with the halter about his neck knows he is pure, knows he is innocent, knows he has never in all his life told her a lie. It is not blindness; it is revelation, prophetic of something not yet attained in racial development.

The mother has this power of vision. She can see in a shapeless bit of life the lives of an unending succession of men. She has also the strength of faith that is unshakable. It approaches the divine. If heaven may be found at all on earth it is in the heart of mother. There is no life a woman will not live, no death she will not die for her children. She makes a home what it is and, while maintaining unbroken relations with the home she leaves, builds a family circle of her own. In all the complex relationships of life she nobly bears her part. Man's life may be diverse and all-absorbing and difficult, but it is as nothing to the experience of the mother who has borne and laid away and lived all that life has to offer.

In another part of The Sentinel today we print an editorial from the Columbia State of August 29 last, and it is well worth anyone's time to read, and especially our boys and young men. It is headed "A Mother's Love," that ever-interesting theme we all so love to dwell upon. The name of "Mother" is the tenderest, the sweetest of all earthly names and it awakens and calls up the fondest memories of that hallowed past when her endearing presence and affectionate ministry made this earth a heaven. Her fond caress and tender sympathies and thousands of acts of solicitude for her children revealed the angelhood of her nature in all its beauty and holiness and made her presence a safe and precious harbor where her loved ones could find shelter from the raging billows of stormiest persecutions and find solace for all the bruises that had been made. Read it, boys—and girls, too. It will do you good.

While in town attending the September term of Pickens court a well-known young man of the county went out to call on a couple of capricious young ladies one evening before leaving the city for his home, and it seems they framed it up on him to some extent and planned to have all sorts of fun when he came to spend the evening. As he was accented with being somewhat bashful, being from the country, they thought it would be a great joke to imitate everything he did. When he appeared in the parlor he blew his nose and each of the girls promptly followed suit. The incident struck him as rather funny at the time, but he didn't make any particular cute remark about it. He said "Nice evening" and sat down, and they repeated the performance. The repetition of the remark caught him again, so before he did anything more he rubbed his hands together and stroked his hair, and they did the same. "Not so cold tonight," he ventured, in order to be sure of his ground, and they repeated, with a slight change in emphasis, "Not so cold tonight." There was a slight twinkle of mischief in their eyes and he caught the cue. He straightened his collar and they did the same, and one of them smiled a trifle. That bashful Pickens county boy hesitated no longer, but deliberately stooped down and turned up his pants! The Sentinel's informant didn't say whether the girls imitated this phase of the joke or not; but we presume NOT.

A dispatch says the British soldiery has made Rouen, France, "quite English." Now if Tommy Atkins would only make some of those German and Austrian towns seem more like home it be something worth while.

Whatever Is—Is Best

ELLA WHEELER WILSON

I know as my life grows older,
And mine eyes have clearer sight—
That under each rank wrong, somewhere
There lies the root of Right;
That each sorrow has a purpose,
By the sorrowing oft unguessed,
But as sure as the sun brings morning,
Whatever is—is best.
I know that each sinful action,
As sure as the night brings shade,
Is somewhere, sometime, punished,
The hour be long delayed;
I know that the soul is aided
Sometimes by the heart's unrest,
And to grow means often to suffer—
But whatever is—is best.
I know there are no errors
In the great Eternal plan,
And all things work together
For the final good of man;
And I know as my soul speeds onward
In its grand Eternal quest,
I shall say as I look back earthward,
Whatever is—is best.

Yale Man's Life Saved in Big War by Coffee

Karl Llewellyn, the young Yale graduate who volunteered in the 78th Prussian Infantry at the beginning of the war, owes his life to a comrade who was killed. Llewellyn was wounded at the battle of Ypres and was left lying between the hostile lines for twelve hours. When night came he started to crawl back to the German lines, only to fall unconscious. When he recovered consciousness he saw a dead comrade lying beside him. On his belt was a flask of Coffee. Llewellyn managed to unfasten the flask, and was sufficiently stimulated by the Coffee to continue to reach the trenches.

Yet you will find people in this peaceful country today who substitute all brands of stumpt water for a cup of good coffee. If you will try the famous

Executors' Consolidated-Realty Auction Easley, S. C., Wed. November 10, 1915

Commencing on the farms just west of the city limits at 11 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, November 10th, we, the executors of the wills of Hon. Laban Mauldin and of M. P. Rogers, deceased, will sell to the highest bidder at public auction the consolidated farming properties of both estates. These farms comprise more than Four Hundred Acres and have been sub-divided into TEN Splendid Medium-Sized Farms, the smallest being of 22 acres, the largest of a fraction over 70 acres. They are located on two of the main public highways of Pickens county, within five minutes ride of the business center of Easley, S. C., and their eastern boundaries are within three minutes walk of the city limits. The former country homes of both owners, desirable buildings of frame construction, with a number of tenant houses and out-buildings are conveniently located on these sub-divisions. The soil of these lands is the kind that is the boast of the upper South Carolinian—red clay with sandy loam top soil. In general contour these farms are rolling and well drained. They have the ideal combination of soil and location for the growth of all such staple crops and fruits as are common to the Piedmont Belt.

To the small homeseeker this sale offers the one supreme opportunity; here you can make your dream of a close to the city country home become a living reality.

On the same day at a later hour in the city of Easley, we will sell to the highest bidder at public auction the city realty and personal property of the Hon. Laban Mauldin. These properties include his former city home on South Main street, a commodious residence with water and light connections, located on a lot of splendid dimensions and having a full complement of out buildings.

A well constructed, metal roofed cottage on a big lot on Smith street.

Also two vacant lots on Smith street. If you desire a close in city home in the fastest growing city of the Piedmont Belt you can secure it at this sale as the properties are practically located in the main business district being only two city blocks from the passenger station of the Southern railway and in splendid residence locations.

Your future prosperity and the progress of Easley now approach you hand in hand.

TERMS: On farm lands and city realty: Ten per cent of the purchase on day of sale as a guarantee of good faith with forfeiture for non-compliance. The remainder of purchase price to be paid in three equal installments as follows:
One-third on December 1, 1915.
One-third on November 10, 1916.
One-third on November 10, 1917.
Interest 3 per cent, per annum, purchaser giving first mortgage and paying for papers.
On personal property: Cash day of Sale.
