FROM MARIETTA ROUTE TWO. FAIRVIEW METHODIST PROTES- TANT CHURCH.

Mr. Editor: The farmers are getting their work started up pretty well as the weather has been so favorable during most of March. But very little fertilizer has been hauled up to this time and judging from this fact and by the talk of the farmers we think that the cotton acreage is going to be considerably reduced in this part of the county.

It looks now as if we were going to have a good fruit crop and here is hoping that no disaster will overtake them later on.
Mr. J. E. Edens, who has been confined to his room for several days with lagrippe, is able to be out again. Dr. W. M. Ponder, of Dacusville, was the attending physician.

Mrs. Mira Turner and daughter, Ethel, of Dacusville, visited at L. S. Edens' last week.

Mr. Jerrie Turner and the Misses Mattie and Maggie Williams, of Mt. Faber, visited Mr. J. E. Edens last Sunday.

Mrs. Jane Winchester, of Six Mile, spent several days with her sister, Mrs. W. A. Adams, who has been quite indisposed last week.

The Rev. J. M. Loofer and little daughters, Minnie and Irene, visited Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Loofer of this place last Sunday.

Mr. J. E. Fridelle made a business trip to Pickens Wednesday.

There is an Easter egg hunt at Peters Creek school house today (Friday), and of course they will have a nice time. We will try to tell you if they did in our next.

Well, somebody is elected and somebody defeated for Probate Judge of Pickens county, but we don't know yet who is the successful one.

FOR SALE—A few White Wyandotte chickens, $2.50 to $3.00 each.
Mrs. W. T. McFall,
31 Pickens, R. 2.

Beginning Sunday, April 17th, Rev. D. A. Braswell, of Concord, N. C., will preach a series of evangelical sermons at Fairview Methodist Protestant church. On Sunday services will be held at 11:00 o'clock a. m., 3:00 p. m. and 8:00 o'clock p. m. Through the week services will be at 3:00 and 8:00 o'clock p. m. All are invited to attend these services and hear one of the greatest preachers of our day.

Don't forget the place and date, Fairview Methodist church, about five miles south of Easley, Sunday, April 17, 1921.

James H. Trolinger, Pastor.

BELLED BUZZARD.

Have you ever heard of a belled buzzard? Our good friend, Snow Masters, of the Cedar Rock section, says that the story of the belled buzzard is not at all myth and that the real thing passed over his place one day last week. When flying low he could plainly see and hear the dangling of a small bell which was hung around the buzzard's neck.

SINGING CONVENTION.

The Pickens County Singing Convention will hold its spring session on the fourth Saturday and Sunday in April, which is the 23rd and 24th, at Mt. Carmel Baptist church in the eastern part of the county. We are expecting some good singers to be with us. Everybody has a special invitation. Dinner on the ground both days.

HOGVILLE LOCAL NEWS.

Zero Peck and Gape Adson went fishing over on Mink creek this week and Zero, who was custodian of the bait cup, went to sleep and let all the worms crawl away. This discovery was made when Gape caught a nice fish and needed more bait for his hook. This is the second offense for Zero. The fishing came to an abrupt end and they returned to town. Gape says he never expects to go fishing with Zero Peck again; that such a man is not fit for an associate. He also said a number of other hard things about him.

An effort is being made by Zero Peck, who was excommunicated as a member of the Hogville Fiddling Band because he did so much fiddle tuning and breaking strings, to completely disorganize this talented musical organization. He has offered Dag Smith, who for a long time has been a member in good standing of the band, a nice spotted pup if he will resign. Zero knows Dag is the only member in this well known musical outfit who has energy enough to carry the big fiddle. This band has always come strong on noise, and without the big fiddle half the noise would be gone and the band would not be worth while and would soon go to pieces.

A nice bottle of home-brew exploded in Bill Hellwanger's pocket yesterday and he had a narrow escape, as the Assistant Constable was less than one square away. The constable has been in the habit of searching Bill most every day but seems to be growing neutral of his duties.

Alexander Moseley is preparing to build himself a nice winter, summer and fall home in Hogville.

Dag Smith has been reading some lately and is now wondering if it is possible that public sentiment will ever demand that Hogville have women jurors. He thinks if it does ever come to such the men will not have a chance; just as well plead guilty and be done with it. Dag has never been able to argue successfully with his wife, and he says she is pretty much like all other women. He says it will be a sad day in the history of man when the jury boxes are filled with women. Dag does not seem to doubt that the women will at all times give justice, but says usually when a man gets into court on the wrong side justice is not what he wants.

Bulger Smothers now has a job as night watchman. He has a bouncing baby boy at his house and this unruly youngster created this new night watchman situation for Bulger.

If some young men collected regular taxi fare from the girls they haul in their cars they would soon get to be millionaires.

Alexander Moseley is delighted with the mild winter we have had thus far, on account of his dogs which his wife will not let him keep in the house as part of the family. They are allowed to sleep under the house, but Alex says during real cold weather it seems colder under the house than outdoors. These dogs are about the only live stock he has and he likes to favor them in every way he can.
