BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

From time to time The Sentinel gives accounts of family reunions, hence it may not be amiss to write about the reunion at Mr. W. F. Johnson's home. July first, about sixty relatives and friends met there to celebrate Mrs. Mary Johnson Barr's birthday. Mrs. Barr is the eldest of the four surviving children of the late Mr. Robert Johnson. Considering the gathering it seemed that Mrs. Barr had friends in all ages of life. Merry children laughed and played under the cool shade of the trees; fair maidens "blushed at the praise of their own loveliness;" young matrons smiled on sleeping infants; groups, who had reached life's afternoon, discussed current events or exchanged reminiscences of the past. Mr. B. J. Johnson, a Confederate veteran, related incidents of the Civil War in such a graphic manner that one could almost hear the Confederates yell and see the head-long charges they made.

Tempting refreshments are expected at a birthday gathering, but on this occasion the dinner had been so carefully prepared it surpassed expectation.

Rev. Jackson read the first psalm and made appropriate remarks. Mrs. W. F. Johnson played old time pieces. Several singers were present. Enlivened by song and story the summer day glided swiftly away and the time for parting came all too soon. Mrs. Barr's friends hope that she may live to celebrate many more such pleasant birthdays.

OBITUARY.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boldin May 30, 1921, and took from them their darling baby, Joe Clyde, age two years and ten months. His life was short but was so full of sunshine. To know him was to love him.

All that loving hands could do was done for him, but Jesus said he had a place vacant in heaven that he wanted Clyde to fill, and today we know while our hearts are bleeding and broken he is safe forever with all the loved ones and is with Jesus where he will never know no sorrow or care like mother and father have had.

We know that God never made a mistake, but it seemed so hard to have him placed in his little white casket, his little sweet hands full of flowers and see him carried away from us where we will never hear that sweet little voice calling us again. But we believe he is calling us to come on where he is, where there will be no more sad parting, where all is joy and gladness.

We laid him to await the great resurrection day at Flat Rock cemetery by his dear old grandfather, amid the most beautiful floral offering.

We never can thank our dear friends and neighbors enough for their kindness and help, day and night. May God's richest blessings rest on them. And also Dr. Allgood who we believe did all he could for little Clyde. We never can forget him for all he did.

There'll never be crepe on the door knob, no funeral train in the skies,
No graves on the hillsides of glory,
For there we shall never more die.

He leaves to mourn his loss one brother, father and mother. We know he can never come back to his little chair at the table, but we can go to where he is.
His grandmother,
Mrs. G. A. Bagwell.

CARD FROM ADULT SCHOOL ORGANIZER.

Some months ago the people of South Carolina were startled by an article which came out in the Journal of the National Education Association. The facts in that article that were so startling were as follows:

1. South Carolina has the smallest percentage of citizens who can read than any state in the Union except Alabama.
2. South Carolina spends the least percapita for the education of her citizens. The United States averages $39.04 percapita. South Carolina's average is $11.17.
3. South Carolina has the least number of school days per school term. We provide 113 days for our boys and girls while the United States' average is 160 days.
4. Our state has the least per cent of girls and boys in high school.
5. We have the least number of public libraries.
6. We occupy the lowest place in the nation along all educational lines.

These facts have called forth much comment from the press, yet they remain undisputed. This record places our state in a position of humiliation and shame. Our educational efficiency is rated far below the islands of Hawaii and Porto Rico. To redeem our state from this stain of illiteracy the Department of Education has launched a state-wide drive to wipe out the galling shame that we have so many citizens who can neither read nor write.

In 1918 there were twenty-three per cent of the voters of this county who could not write their own names on the Democratic club roll! How many will there be in 1922? What are you doing to change this condition?

Pickens county will organize about twenty schools for adults during the next three weeks. Do you want a night school in your district? If so, get in touch with your county superintendent of education or county adult school organizer.

Miss Faith Clayton,
County Organizer.

FOUND ALLIGATOR.

Edd Pitts, colored, found a small alligator in his spring about two miles above Pickens one day last week. Much speculation was indulged in as to why an alligator was running wild in Pickens county until it was learned that a small one escaped from the Pickens Mill village a short time ago. The alligator Edd found and the one that escaped at the mill village are no doubt the same.
