

GARY HIOTT, Editor and Mgr.

THAT'S MORE IN THE MAN THAN THAR IS IN THE LAND.

Sidney Lanier was not only a great poet of the spirit and the heart, but he is almost unequalled among Southern writers for his homely rural dialect verse.

I knewed a man, which he lived in Jones, Which Jones is a county of red hills and stones.

And he lived pretty much by gittin' of loans, And his nules was nothin' but skin and bones,

And his hogs was flat as his cornbread pones, And he had 'bout a thousand acres o' land.

This man—which his name it was also Jones— He swore that he'd leave them old red hills and stones,

Fur he couldn't make nuthin' but yallerish cotton, And little o' that; and his fences was rotten,

And what little corn he had, hit was boughten, And dinged of a livin' was in the land.

And the longer he swore the madder he got, And he riz and he walked to the stable lot,

And he hollered to Tom to come thar and hitch, Fur to emigrate somewhar land was rich,

And to quit rasin' cock-burrs, thistles and sich, And a waistin' ther time on the cussed land.

So him and Tom they hitched up the mules, Pertestin' that folks was mighty big fools,

That ud' stay in Georgy ther lifetime out, Jest scratching, a livin' when all of 'em mought,

Git places in Texas whar cotton would sprout, By the time you could plant it in the land.

And he driv by a house whar a man named Brown Was a livin', not fur from the edge o' town,

And he bantered Brown fur to buy his place, And said that being' as money was scarce,

And bein' as sheriffs was hard to face, Two dollars an acre would get the land and fifty cents, him a waggin

and his winmin, and truck, and moved to Texas, which it tuck His entire pile, with the best of luck,

To git thar and git him a little land, But Brown moved out on the old Jones farm,

And he rolled up his breeches and bared his arms, And he picked all the rocks from off'n the ground,

An he rooted it up and he plowed it down, Then he sowed his corn and wheat in the land.

Five years glid by, and Brown one day (Which he'd got so fat that he wouldn't weigh)

Was a settin' down, sorter lazily, To the bulliest dinner you ever see,

When one o' the children jumped on his knee And says, "Yan's Jones, which you bought his land."

And thar was Jones, standin' out at the fence, And he hadn't no waggin, nor mules, nor tents,

Fur he had left Texas afoot and cum To Georgy to see if he couldn't git sum

Employment, as he was a lookin' as hum

Ble as ef he had never owned any land.

But Brown he axed him in, and he got him down to his vittles smokin' hot,

And when he had filled himself and the floor Brown looked at him sharp and riz and swore

That "Whether men's land was rich or poor Thar was more in the man than thar was in the land."

—Sidney Lanier.

TO CORRESPONDENTS

We have stated probably a hundred times that we cannot publish an article of any kind in The Sentinel unless we know who the author is, yet every week we receive letters for publication with nothing to tell us who wrote them.

We will not publish a correspondent's name if requested not to do so, but The Sentinel must know who sends in every article we publish.

I tell you what I like ter do— An' I love ter see when winter's through An' summer comes a-flutterin'— Aroun' with birds an' everythin' is jest ter dig some bait an' git My fishin' pole an' go an' sit An' fish!

I loves ter hear th' happy song Th' crick keeps singin' all along— Th' song that somehow seems ter say "Oh, ain't it fine an' grand ter say, "An' ain't it God good!" While all th' time Y' watch th' bobber on your line An' fish!

It's kinda heaven jes' ter stretch Out lazy on th' grass an' watch A whiff o' wickets now an' then— There ain't no trick o' tongue or pen 'AT ever could express 'em all, Th' things I feel when I kin sprawl An' fish!

Oh, lets o' things 'at fellers do— is fine—but say, 'twixt me and you, Th' whole caboodle, bunched in one, Ain't got one-half th' sure pop fun 'AT I kin get from beatin' it Away from all o' this ter sit An' fish!

THIS DOLL REALLY TALKS

Ingenuous Toy That Has for Its Principle a Phonograph Concealed in the Body.

The effort to make a talking doll, probably dates back to the time soon after the first doll was made. Dolls dug up in the ancient ruins have been found to have metal strings incorporated in their construction and the inference is that this was an early effort to make the effigy emit something like the sound of the human voice.

Complete Phonograph Contained in Doll's Body.

tion of a doll into the body of which a complete phonograph has been disposed of. The driving mechanism is contained in the trunk portion of the doll, while the revolving platform which carries the record is contained in the head. The flare of the horn is hidden in the hair, which does not obstruct the passage of the sound but yet is sufficient to hide this part of the mechanism.

Quake's Advance Guard.

On the theory that the movement of the earth's crust constituting an earthquake begins on a very small scale, to be followed later by the greater adjustments that do the damage, Orville L. Kennedy of San Bernardino, Cal., believes that he can give earthquake warnings by observing the cracks in layers of cement, put down in certain California districts.

Archers Hunt Sharks.

Hunting sharks with bow and arrow is the latest sport to be introduced in Ventura county, California. Dr. E. K. Roberts and Harry Van De Linder reported exciting experiences after a day at Point Magu, passed in hunting sharks in this manner.

Drives Bull to Harness.

August R. Berg of Auburn has an Ayrshire bull nearly two years old that he drives to harness like a horse. In Sweden, Mr. Berg used to train cattle and horses for the government. He calls the bull Rosenberg and when he drove him to Worcester one day recently the bull threaded his way peacefully among the automobiles, but Mr. Berg was delayed in getting home because so many photographers wanted to take a shot.—Boston Globe.

Eminently Qualified.

First Artist—Well, old man, how's business? Second Artist—Oh, splendid! Got a commission this morning from a millionaire. Wants his children painted very badly. First Artist (pleasantly)—Well, my boy, you're the very man for the job.—Stray Stories.

A Pessimist.

"What do you think of this universal peace movement? Do you think human beings will ever give up fighting with one another?" "Course I don't. Atn't I married?"—Baltimore American.

Yield and quality decide profit

SOME people only take the extra yield from the use of fertilizer into consideration when figuring profit.

However, thousands of southern farmers know that the big profit they make from better quality crops is due to the use of Swift's Red Steer Fertilizers.

Certainly it is important to consider every factor possible this year. Use fertilizer liberally to grow the greatest possible acre yields—big yields of high grade cotton which bring the top prices.

Yield and quality decide your profit—yield—how much you have to sell; quality—the price you get.

Swift's Red Steer Fertilizers give you a better stand, increase the yield, improve the quality and enable you to make the most profit.

Place your order today with the local Swift dealer or write us direct.
