A New Enterprise.

The citizens of Blackville and the surrounding country are earnestly at work to turn the courthouse building into good account at last. The jute and yarn factory were found to be too expensive when the matter was thoroughly investigated. It required more capital than could be raised to put up the proper machinery, but now the opening of a high school is under contemplation. The idea seems to take well throughout that whole section and we hope and believe they will succeed. It will supply a long felt and much needed want. A meeting has been called, inviting all persons interested in this important movement to meet at the courthouse building Blackville on Saturday the 17th day of this month. We hope our people will keep this in mind and a large attendance be on hand. The hour of meeting is 12 o'clock m.

Our readers must try to overlook the bad print in this and last weeks issue. The roller was injured by the heat and we have not yet been able to obtain another. We hope by next week's issue to Brief Mention.

Dr. E. H. Dowling, of Bamberg, shipped the first bale of new cotton on Tuesday last.

Our special letter from Elko reached us too late for publication this week.

The Barnwell Agricultural and Mechanical Society will hold their annual fair one month earlier this year.

When you go to Blackville dress in dark or black clothing, then have your picture taken "according to Gunter."

Ex-County Treasurer Tim Hurley, of Charleston, arrived in Columbia, on Friday last, and was taken before trial justice Marshall, in order to have a hearing of the case against him. Mr. Hurley made so satisfactory a showing that he was released and the case dismissed with the understanding that the State pay the costs of the proceedings.

"Cadets" communication has been received, but on account of the crowded condition of our columns, will unavoidably be left out. We agree with him that old Barnwell can boast of more pretty and refined young ladies than any village in the State, and that the people ought to remember, at the ballot box, those men who have so faithfully performed the duties of the office to which they were elected. We appreciate your kind feelings towards us, and always read such a communication as yours with pleasure.

The Republican County Convention.

The Republican County Convention met at the colored school-house at Blackville, on Saturday last, and was called to order by Fred Nix, Jr., county chairman. Fifty-six delegates answered to roll call, fifty-two of whom were American citizens of African descent, while the solitary white man relieved the monotony of the assemblage. The principal object of the convention was the election of delegates to the State Convention which meets to-day. In the very outset of its proceedings the financial question of raising means wherewith to pay the expenses of the delegates met the convention. Numerous motions and resolutions were offered, but at last it was referred to a committee of five members appointed by the chairman, which committee reported to the satisfaction of the body that no delegates should be chosen unless they were willing and able to pay their own expenses. The report was adopted and the election resulted in the choice of the following delegates: Fred Nix, Jr., W. S. Dixon, Jacob Hankinson, P. B. McNight and Scipio Bennett.

Next in order, Fred Nix, Jr., in response to a request of the convention, delivered a rather conservative speech of some thirty minutes in length. His delivery, notwithstanding the coming campaign, advised his hearers to be brave, peaceful, honest, and industrious; expressed himself as unconditionally opposed to the endorsement of the Democratic nominees on the State ticket by the Republican party, but pledged his followers to support to a man the county nominations if acceptable candidates were put in the field. (Of course, this was buncombe.) After the close of his speech Maj. L. T. Izlar was invited to address the convention and consented to do so. His logic and stubborn array of facts showed very clearly the inconsistency of Nix, and at the end of twenty minutes had driven Nix's speech out of the heads of his auditors if not out of the hearts. Nature affords a vacuum and Nix's platitudes were supplanted by truths that will some day bear fruit. John R. Bellinger, Esq., was also invited to address the convention. He followed in an able speech of some twenty-five minutes, and his fiery charge finished the good work of utterly demolishing Nix and his faction.

Maj. Izlar, John R. Bellinger and Jas. Thompson, Esqs., were present noticing the particulars of the proceedings of the meeting, and their example in this matter should be followed throughout our county.

The convention then took a recess until 4 p. m., when it went into secret session to discuss plans for carrying on the coming campaign. PENCIL.

BLACKVILLE, S. C. Aug. 5.

MR. EDITOR:—How could man bear the inexorable sentence, "by the sweat of your brow shall ye eat bread," pronounced upon us by the unchangeable God, had He not wisely ordained, that here and there along the highway of life we shall find a cool and shady resting place where we may for a short while lay down the implements of labor, and thank Him who in doing justice hath remembered mercy. That in the prosy realities of life hath here and there interspersed it with the sweetness of poetry; that hath allowed us these breathing spells of real, innocent pleasure and enjoyment, to remind us that after faithful and honest toil "cometh rest," that among the worm-wood and the gall it is so arranged in the Divine economy that we have now and then a little of the wine and oil. I am thankful that it is so and rejoice enjoyable recreation from the busy toil of life, and it is of these things that I set out to write.

First in order, of the bright spots that broke through the gray, monotonous clouds of busy cares and quickened our hearts with pleasurable emotions, was the Baptist Sunday School celebration which took place here on Monday night, two weeks ago. This celebration was under the management of Mr. Witherson, a brother-in-law of our esteemed fellow-townsmen, Maj. G. E. Steadman.

Mr. W. is a resident of Chester where he is principle of a fine school. If he manages his academy as he did the affair the other night, and I have no doubt he does, he is certainly the right man in the right place. Such a teacher at the head of a good academy here would add much to the advantages of our town, and supply a want, nay almost a necessity, long felt in our town. I cannot undertake to enter into a detailed description of the celebration. Those who had the pleasure of attending know how well it went off, and those who were not there would gather but a faint idea from what I might write. Suffice it therefore to say, that the building of the monument whose foundation-stone was Jesus Christ, which having added to it Faith, Hope, Charity, Humility, Self-Denial, Patience, Zeal, Peace and Joy, terminated in Heaven, was beautifully executed, and was a pleasing and impressive illustration of religious truths.

The music with which the audience was treated between the laying of each successive stone in erecting the monument, was well selected and sweetly rendered by the Sunday-School teachers and pupils, led by Miss Georgia Hagood with the organ. The superintendent, teachers and the school may congratulate themselves upon the success of the celebration. Everything from the procession from the church to the courthouse building, to the benediction, may be well and truthfully be said to have been a success. I say this, too, while I believe in solid and fair criticism, and think it very injurious to everybody and everything to puff and laud when you know that the object criticised has made a failure of, as best has succeeded ordinarily. Fair and just criticism stirs up the latent energies and helps a great deal to make the man, but fulsome and false praises are a downright injury. There's too much of it now-a-days. The Wednesday following the celebration at this place, your correspondent had the pleasure of attending a similar affair, only on a much larger scale, at Springtown. This was indeed a pleasure and privilege that was enjoyable to me almost beyond expression. Springtown! What a multitude of delightful reminiscences are associated with the name! How many dear friends and familiar faces rise up before the mirror of memory and are reflected back to my vision at the mention of the word! I was happy at the opportunity afforded me of visiting this dear, beautiful and sacred spot, after ten years absence. No place that I have ever seen surpasses Springtown, in all of its surroundings, as a location for a church. No church is filled with a more hospitable, generous and whole-souled congregation. When I reached the place, the outside surroundings all seemed familiar enough, but I noticed some changes inside the church. The pulpit fills up the space where once was a door, and the benches are all reserved. Many of the forms that once filled the pews, I failed to see. They are now passed from mortal vision and are now reaping their reward in the beautiful land of the blessed. Sweet be their memories with us until we too shall have ended the voyage of life and set sail on the eternal sea, when may it be our happy portion to meet them in that land of the blessed. But while our hearts are saddened at the absence of some whose forms we missed, they were gladdened by the presence of others who still are left to sow the good seed to be gathered in at the last. There were old uncle Jake and Allen and some others of both sexes who are still doing faithful service. No need of any better proof of the manner in which the faithful superintendent and his corps of teachers have been discharging their duty than the splendid manner in which the celebration went off. The whole affair was well conceived and splendidly executed and gotten up on a grand scale. Nothing was lacking to make the day one of real enjoyment to everybody and that it did prove so to anyone present it was his or her own fault. I would go somewhat into particulars, but as a Bamberg correspondent has already done so, I do not deem it necessary. I am glad that I went and mingled with those dear friends once more, and I do trust that none of them will grow jealous or feel slighted because I only mention a few names. Many of the younger ones have grown out of my recollection, and what were boys and girls ten years ago are now young men and ladies. I was glad that on this occasion the same minister whose voice I first heard thirteen years ago was seated in the pulpit as faithfully as of yore. Time has dealt gently with you, person, and seems rather distress you. May it ever be so, and may you and I be often permitted to meet under such happy auspices at Springtown.

I will tell you something about the Cedar Springs in my next letter.

ARTS BOMBUS.

Dots.

Mr. P. W. Farrell has nearly finished his new store and expects to move into it the last of this month.

Mr. Brown is building a barn back of his commodious stable, and it will add greatly to the appearance of the same.

M. Frank Keogh, of Charleston, also a member of the Washington Artillery, was so pleased with the people and the town on his visit of the 4th of July, that he concluded to come again; this time to select a location for his family, mother and sisters—Frank is not a married man.

Our town was crowded last week with drummers. Among the number was Capt. James Gibbs, of the firm of E. Bates & Co., who represents the dry goods house, and had with him Robert Evans, who makes his initial trip as a drummer for the clothing house of the same firm.

We note the arrival of Mr. Levy, of Augusta, the father of our popular young townsman, Jake.

Eggs, chickens and butter are scarce and good prices can be obtained for the same.

Mr. Gunter, the photographer, intends to make a stay of a month, ending 31st of this month. Those in want of a picture would do well to give him a call, as he is a first class artist.

OCCASIONAL.

At the regular meeting of the Williston Democratic club, held on the 24 inst., the following resolution was offered by Mr. I. A. Blanton and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That at the next regular meeting of this club, which will be held on the first Saturday in September, at 3 p. m., the citizens generally, both white and colored, be invited to attend. That at such meeting speakers, selected by the club executive committee be requested to address the people in mass meeting.

That at the same meeting our late Representatives be requested to address the people upon the general issues which engaged the attention of the late Legislature, and the course which they as Representatives pursued with regard to those issues.

That the above resolution be published in the Barnwell Sentinel and THE PEOPLE.

J. W. HOLMES, President.
 G. A. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

Tips.

If all sections of the State were like the one in which we plant, there has, thus far, been no chance for the preparation of a turnip patch, for we have had no rain since the 21st of June. We intend, however, to sow a patch as soon as the land can be ploughed, and will here tell how we will prepare the land.

First it will be denuded of every vestige of grass or green vegetation, and as deeply ploughed as practicable; then laid off in furrows two feet apart, in which will be sprinkled the best manure we can find, stable, cow-house, pig-pen, sheep-lot or chicken-coop scrapings, probably filling the furrows half full. On this manure will be sprinkled from 200 to 250 and even 300 pounds of superphosphate per acre. The beds will then be completed as if for cotton.

This done, a shallow scooter furrow will be run on the beds, the seed drilled in by hand at the rate of two pounds to the acre, and covered with a hand rake. Those who have hand drills can put the seed in perhaps more regularly, and will not need over one pound per acre. We seldom trust to seed drills in our farming, simply because we are dependent upon that quality of labor that we have never been able to train satisfactorily to the use of improved machinery. Our method forces upon us more labor, and probably a consumption of more time; but it at least gives us more satisfaction and secures, we believe, a more sure and satisfactory stand.

As soon as the turnip leaves are well formed we work the crop and chop out to a stand, just as we do cotton, using a narrow garden hoe. This working is followed by a ploughing with three furrow sweeps, and the crop is left in bunches of half dozen or more plants about six inches apart. As soon as the leaves are perhaps an inch wide we thin out these bunches to one or two plants at a place, and eat the plants pulled up, or feed them to the cattle or sheep.

Those who have cattle or sheep, which they have penned nightly during the summer, will not need the extra work of hauling and handling domestic manures, for the surface of the lot is already well supplied and the land is abundantly rich if the droppings of the stock have occasionally been ploughed under as it should have been. Nor is there any need of the use of fertilizers in such a pen.

Why our farmers do not more universally sow turnips, we do not understand. In the middle and lower portions through as beautiful farms as can be seen anywhere, and never in a day's journey see a single turnip patch. As a winter food for cattle and sheep turnips are most excellent; and though an analysis proves that they are ninety-five per cent. water, they are both palatable and nutritious to man and beast. Horses can easily be taught to eat them, and a cow will keep in good order all the winter on straw and turnips, eating from three pecks to a bushel of the latter every morning; and tap to fifteen pounds of straw during the night. This seems to be an enormous amount of turnips to be fed at once, but when we remember that it is no great yield to produce 1,000 bushels of turnips on a simple acre, it can be easily calculated how much cattle food there is in an acre of well prepared turnip land.

Later than the 10th of August we would not plant the Ruta Baga. Any time during the month it will do to plant all other varieties. We prefer them in the following order:—Aberdeen, a white globe, Norfolk; flat Dutch and seven-top. Aberdeen is a yellow turnip, very like the Ruta Baga, and will remain sound in the patch until needed. The others are not so good after several frosts as when eaten before mid-winter. Go to work at once, we say to every farmer, and sow a turnip patch, if only as an experiment.

In Great Britain children are frequently raised on oatmeal diet alone, because it causes them to grow strong and healthy, and no better food can possibly be found for them. It is also quite as desirable for the student as for the laborer, and for the delicate lady as for the hard-working alster; indeed, all classes would be greatly benefited by its use, and dyspepsia, with all its manifold annoyances, can be kept at a distance. Oatmeal is more substantial food, it is said, than veal, pork or lamb, and quite equal to beef and mutton, giving as much or more mental vigor, while its great desideratum consists in one's not becoming weary of it, for it is as welcome for breakfast or tea as is wheat or gram bread. It can be eaten with syrup and butter as hearty pudding, or with cream and sugar, like rice. It is especially good for young mothers, upon whose nervous forces to great demand has been made, and they lose equilibrium of the system and become depressed and dispirited. Oatmeal requires to be cooked slowly, and the water should be boiling hot when it is stirred in.
