

THE GAFFNEY MANUF'G. CO.

ONE OF THE FINEST MILLS IN COUNTRY.

An Interesting History of Its Organization and Construction--The Men Who Manage and Direct Its Affairs.

The manufacture of cotton goods in the South has attained such prominence that our Northern mills making the same numbers of yarn feel very forcibly the competition from that section. The Southern mills, with a few exceptions, are more modern built than those in the North, as a large majority of them have been constructed within the last ten or twelve years, and are filled with the best machinery that could be secured at the time they were put in operation. Most of these mills have been successful even from the very start, having succeeded in turning out a nice quality of goods at a cost, when sold, that left a handsome margin for the mills. The illustration which we present our readers this week shows a Southern mill that from the first has met with remarkable success, which fronts on the railroad. The main mill is 261 feet long by 65 wide, two stories high, with engine room, cloth room and boiler house, 120x40, two stories, except boiler house, which is only one. The buildings are of brick made by the company on its own land within 300 feet of mill site. Besides the buildings mentioned the company owns a two-story brick office building, size 36x22, also standard warehouse and waste house, thirty tenements, eight of which are brick; the others are neat frame cottages. This company has the best cottages in the South for its operatives.

The factory buildings are all equipped with automatic sprinklers, electric lights, etc. The mill is claimed by the mutual insurance companies to be one of the best fire risks in the country. Besides the sprinkler equipment, hydrant houses are located at convenient points around the mill. A large underwriters' fire pump of one thousand gallons per minute capacity is located near the boiler house, and is at all times, night and Sundays, ready for duty, fifty pounds of steam being kept up for this purpose. This pump has as its supply a brick and cement reservoir of 175,000 gallons capacity. Besides this reservoir a 10,000 gallon iron tank in pers from the A. T. Atherton Machine steam plant, sprinklers and electric light plant were furnished by the D. A. Tompkins Co.

The mill contains 10,432 spinning spindles and 300 looms, and is equipped with the Aerophor system of air moistening, furnished by the United States Air moistening and Ventilating Co., of Providence, R. I. which is working to the highest satisfaction of the owners. The numbers of yarns are 28 warp and 36 to 40s filling. The cloth made is the same count and number as print cloth, namely, 64x 61, but instead of being printed it is finished for the bleaching trade.

The mill started operations in May, 1893, and has run both day and night since. The product of the mill has been sold up and today part of its product is sold almost to November 1 next. The goods sell at a premium over New England made goods, commission men claiming that the goods are better made and from better stock than most of the New England mills use. The product is sold through the commission house of Carey, Bayne & Smith, Baltimore and New York.

This mill has been built cheaper than any other first-class mill in the South, the cost per spindle being only $15.24, which includes real estate,

Mrs. Judge Peck Tells How She Was Cured

Sufferers from Dyspepsia should read the following letter from Mrs. H. M. Peck, wife of Judge Peck, a justice at Tracy, Cal., and a writer connected with the Associated Press: "By a deep sense of gratitude for the great benefit I have received from the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, I have been led to write the following statement for the benefit of sufferers who may be similarly afflicted. For 15 years I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia and heart trouble.

Almost everything I ate would distress me. I tried different treatments and medicines, but failed to realize relief. Two years ago a friend prevailed upon me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The first bottle I noticed helped me, so I continued taking it. It did me so much good that my friends spoke of the improvement. I have received great benefit from it that
