A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

A Six Year Old Boy Narrowly Escapes Death.

Wednesday afternoon the little six-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stowe was in the Pickering-room of the Gaffney Manufacturing Company, as was his usual custom, endeavoring to assist his father, who works in that department. The little fellow had observed his father packing down the cotton as it was about to pass between the rollers of what is known as the finisher. His father had gone to look after another machine when the lad thought to imitate him and tried to pack the cotton. In doing so he put his hands too far in and had them caught by the rollers, which carried them in. The hands were only slightly bruised. The arms below the elbow were severely injured, while the arm above the elbow was horribly lacerated, tearing the flesh from the bone. Happily no bones were broken. The attending physicians, Drs. Littlejohn and Miller, have hopes of his recovery without the necessity of amputating either of the arms.

The little fellow was not employed in the mill, but was there simply because it was his pleasure to be there. He believed he was assisting his father. There is no blame attached to the mill authorities whatever.

When THE LEDGER representative called yesterday the little fellow was resting as easy as could be expected under the circumstances, and sorrowing friends were there to do all in their power to assist in alleviating his pains and offer consolation to the family.

THE CITY COUNCIL MEET

Business of Importance Transacted and New Ordinances Passed.

The city fathers met last Friday in regular monthly session, the entire board being present. The regular routine of business was transacted and then the following special business of importance arrested the attention of the aldermen:

The committee on streets reported work on the street to be progressing satisfactorily. The extension of Petty street was thought to be impracticable at the present because the property owners desired the city to pay more than they felt inclined to for the land through which the extension would be made. The committee asked further time on the matter of the extension of North Limestone street.

The council then enacted two new city ordinances, one relating to persons refusing or failing to appear before the mayor to give evidence, and the other relating to larceny.

The fall text of both of these ordinances will be found in another column of THE LEDGER.

The chief of police reported that the recommendations of the board of health were being carried out. The board then adjourned until the next regular meeting.

Advantageous Advertising.

J. G. Galloway & Son jump in the band wagon with "both feet" and have more "if you want" than any one horse wagon can carry. They have everything you want and they tell the tale sufficiently well for anyone. Read what they say.

Wilkins Bros. "slip" upon the people and offer slippers cheaper than ever heard of before. They proposed to satisfy all.

Carroll & Carpenter make more "special offerings" for this week in the shape of "assorted kids in pairs." They also have flowers, and ribbons and hats in profusion.

W. O. Lipscomb is too busy to write an ad. so we would advise those in search of bargains to try and keep him busy.

Holmes & Pridmore have reopened the old established ice cream and soda water parlors and invite you to call. They have a pretty place.

Through the Dark Valley.

Mrs. Nancy Parkins, the wife of Martin Parkins, died at her home in the western suburbs of the city last night about 11 o'clock. She had been suffering intensely for some weeks past and it might be said death was a relief. She had some weeks ago said to kind-hearted ones who had tried to minister to wants that she was willing and ready to go. The interment will take place this after-

THE BIRTHRIGHT.

A Happy and Effective Lecture by Prof. Griffith.

The crowd which assembled at Limestone Sunday was very large and those who went were well repaid, while those who did not go missed a treat. Prof. Griffith was in an unusually happy frame of mind, and talked to "the boys" from the humanity side of the question—the side which is the only logical argument. Beginning where he left off several weeks ago he said in part: "Jacob was rapidly approaching his end; and he knew it. His had been a life of selfishness, and this was symbolic of self. He had exhausted his power and the end was near. He had come to the place where it was necessary to sleep, and out there under the broad canopy of heaven he had no one to zindle—he was alone. He could not conjure the silent stars. He began to realize something. He felt the power that held him in his grasp. He felt the power of God. What did he do? He did what you and I and every other man have done or will do. He prayed. I know not when the time will come, but it will surely come some time in every man's life, when he will pray. It might be when darkness was upon us. It might be when a cyclone on its terrible mission of death came upon us. It might be when the railroad car was flying in space, or the demon of death was holding high carnival, but it would surely come. It might come in a hundred and one different ways. I know not how or when, but it will surely come. I have no idea that Jacob was converted when he prayed to God that night. He did not pray like a converted man. He prayed as if he were trying to make a bargain with God. It is to Jacob's shame that he offered such a prayer. He promised God that if he would help him this time that ever afterwards he would give his service to him. God helped him, and he soon lost his gratitude and forgot God. He realized the presence of God when he prayed. I have said I did not believe Jacob was converted, nor do I, but then it was a step upward for Jacob. Though afterward he went on cheating and defrauding just as if he had never promised God anything. But when he met Laban he met his match. The arch-cheater was cheated. The defrauder was defrauded. You remember he agreed to work for Laban seven years for his youngest daughter, but when he had served Laban seven years he would only give him the elder daughter." At this point the professor became humorous, and his imaginary picture of the elder daughter was ludicrous in the extreme. He went on and described the meeting of Esau and Jacob after their years of separation, and said, "If it was the intention of Esau to frighten Jacob he had succeeded admirably with only 400 men." He then took up the birthright. "The advantages of the birthright were not to be estimated. There was nothing to compare it to. The light of the dimmest star in the heavens against the noonday sun was but a faint comparison the vast possibilities of the present was no comparison to the past—the days of Esau and Jacob. What did it all mean? The gates of knowledge are so wide open; the possibilities so great. What are you doing, young men, to improve the hour? At this point the professor appealed to the young men, begging them to cherish the privileges of the birthright. He was attentively listened to throughout the entire discourse, and many were the expressions of approval heard by THE LEDGER after the lecture. It is to be hoped the professor will again talk to "the boys."

Tired, Weak, Nervous.

Means impure blood, and overwork or too much strain on brain and body. The only way to cure is to feed the nerves on pure blood. Thousands of people certify that the best blood purifier, the best nerve tonic and strength builder is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What it has done for others it will also do for—Hood's Cures.

Nervousness, loss of sleep, loss of appetite and general debility all disappear when Hood's Sarsaparilla is persistently taken, and strong nerves, sweet sleep, strong body, sharp appetite and in a word, health and happiness, follow the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The strong point about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that they are permanent, because they start from the solid foundation of a purified, vitalized and

The Rev. M. M. Boyd, father of Rev. G. M. Boyd, pastor of the Methodist church, came to the city last Saturday. The elder Mr. Boyd is in his eighty-ninth year, but is quite hale and hearty, save perhaps an affection of rheumatism. He occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church last Sabbath, and delighted the large congregation present. In the afternoon he accompanied his son to Beulah church and took part in the services there, and returned to the city and worshipped at the Baptist church at night. Truly, he is a wonderful man for one of his age. He will remain with his son some time and will probably preach again while here.

Early Closing.

An effort is to be made to have the merchants close early. Surely they will. This is a new era. Times are not like they used to be. The merchant does not necessarily have to remain open at night for a trade which in a few days can be cultivated to be done in the day. Be a generous, kindhearted merchant and show the clerks you want to help them and they will show their appreciation by more concentrated efforts. You will loose nothing. Let the good work be commenced at once. If we are to be a city we must effect city ways. Close the stores at 7 o'clock.

A Protracted Meeting.

A protracted meeting was inaugurated at the Baptist church last Sunday. The services are being conducted by the Rev. H. C. Buckholz, of Chester. The attendance is large and much interest is manifest. The music of the choir is attractive, while the singing of Misses Virgie and Minnie Carroll and Messrs. Walter and Wade Humphries deserve special mention. The meeting will continue a week longer and much good is anticipated.
