C. J. McDowell, adjutant general; John B. Erwin, inspector general; H. E. Jones, quartermaster general; F. Manning, commissary general; J. J. Hemphill, engineer; John Scoffin, ordnance officer; S. Baruch, surgeon—all with the rank of lieutenant-colonel; J. P. Mackey, assistant surgeon; O. Sheppard, J. S. Verner, Henry Massey, James Cantey, Fredell Jones, Wade H. Manning, T. Ross Robertson and P. H. Nelson, aides-de-camp, with the rank of major.

THE WINNEBAGO CHIEF.

His Pleasant Recollections of His Recent Sojourn in Carolina.

The following letter has recently been received by Major T. W. Woodward from Hon. H. P. Kimball, of Illinois:

ROCKFORD, ILL., Jan. 8, 1878.

My Dear Sir: Because I have not written, you must not suppose, for a moment, that you are forgotten, or that I do not cherish the liveliest appreciation of the courtesies and hospitalities of your generous household. I love to sit in the quietude of evening, gazing into the fire, and wander in memory over the happy scenes and associations of my Southern sojourn.

I received your paper, in which you intimate that there are sundry other experiences of plantation life held in reserve for my future realization. Now, Major, I have a strong determination to spend a portion of next winter at the South. That unsated volume of beatific pleasure, I trust you will open wide, and I will promise to take it all in.

Major, I give you my assurance that I have become devotedly attached to the people of South Carolina. They are just the most generous, whole-souled, magnanimous, hospitable and cultivated people that ever honored our country. There is not a trait in their character that is mean, selfish or parsimonious. Their latch-string is always out, and chivalry and a paramount desire to make the very best use of nature's gifts and favors, inspires them to a nobility of friendship and liberality that is almost sublime. My acquaintance with your people, and my observation of the slumbering resources of your soil and the capabilities of your rivers for manufacturing industries, the salubrity of your climate for uninterrupted labor during almost the entire year, have established the conviction in my mind that South Carolina is an exceedingly charming and favored locality, holding in the plenitude of its resources the boundless possibilities for the comfort and inspiration of man. No portion of the country possesses greater facilities and advantages for landscape adornment. The commercial intercourse of our nation with Japan and other countries of the Orient has been, and will continue to be, the means of extending your lists of valuable fruits and ornamental plants and shrubbery. When I reflect upon the luxuriant growth of your roses—the beauty and perfection of your shade trees—the brilliant tints and colors of your flowers and the limitless range and diversity of your horticultural products—my conclusion is, that no section of the South presents such inducements for men desirous of establishing beautiful homes and surroundings as the Palmetto State. There are also social elements and associations which give tone, dignity and fascination to your domestic relations. I refer to the brilliant attractions, unparalleled sweetness of temper, and the calm, heroic patience of your true and devoted women. A beautiful woman, weaving the tendrils of her affections and ideality about the rugged outlines of our humanity, is symbolized in the ivies which cling to your evergreen oaks, preserving their vitality, youth and comeliness in the full course of their growth and development. Trusting, clinging, loyal woman, brightening the home-circle with the sweetness and divinity of her influence, insinuating into our harsh, matter-of-fact natures the subtle elements of her spirituality and idolatry, distilling upon our lives as the flowers breathe fragrance as a free-will offering, the blessings of unwavering sympathy and allegiance, is the master-piece of the Almighty—the crowning miracle of Nature's incarnations.

Since my return from the South, we have been favored with a remarkably pleasant winter. The day before New Year's parties, were blooming in my open garden, and dandelions illuminated the green sod with double-boons of gold. Between Christmas and New Year's the farmers were busily plowing everywhere, and the blandness of the South prevailed over these productive and illimitable prairies. For an entire week our mercury stood ten degrees higher than at New Orleans.

I returned via Washington, and was present in the Senate when the Butler case was in contest. I listened to Patterson's speech, and became profoundly disgusted. I have no confidence in the Senator's honor, ability or integrity. His defence was a jumble of illogical and incoherent statements. By his harangue he excited feelings of pity and contempt. I hope the South Carolina Legislature will dislodge that tumor of pomposity and arrogance, impudence and self-conceit, and fill the vacancy with an impersonation of principle, patriotism and brains!

My visitation at the South is framed in my experience as a beautiful picture. It was an oasis in the desert of life—a sunny spot of memory, endeared with sweet and imperishable realizations. I am drawn to your people with strong ties of respect and fellowship. May a full compensation be vouchsafed them for their trials, losses and sacrifices.

Yours truly, H. P. KIMBALL.

Card of Thanks.

The pastor, trustees and congregation of the A. M. E. Church, at Winnsboro, return their thanks to the citizens of the town of Winnsboro for the sum of $20.00 in aiding to get a parsonage for the church; also, to Jno. S. Reynolds, Esq., for drawing the papers needed in the purchase of the same.

TO THE PUBLIC.

MY customers know that I have heretofore led the FURNITURE trade of the South, in style, quality and prices. The time has come when these goods can be purchased as cheap from me as in the North and West. I do not go backwards, but continually raise the standard of my goods, and add new styles. I have made reductions in prices wherever possible, and spared no expense to place in your hands a price list that will help you to purchase goods. I respectfully invite you to call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

Orders by mail will receive as much attention as if given in person. It would make this list too large to describe and copy all the different prices of Parlor Suits, Dining Room, Office, Standing, Parlor and Ladies' Desks, Secretaries, Dwarf Libraries, and Book Cases, manufactured by me. Thanking you for past favors, I remain, yours respectfully, G. V. DeGRAAF, 147, 147 1/2 and 149, BROAD STREET, Augusta, Ga. jan 8- No charge for drayage or packing.
