REED BIRDS, STRWED PHILADELPHIA STYLE.—Pluck the birds carefully, leaving on the heads, draw them and fill them with the following force-meat: For a dozen birds mix together two ounces each of veal and ham, finely chopped; season the meat with a salt spoonful of grated nutmeg or powdered mace, quarter of a saltspoonful of pepper, and a level teaspoonful of salt, After the birds are well filled with forcement lay them in a saucepan just large enough to hold them, dust over them a tablespoonful of flour, add to them a sublespoonful of butter, and sufficient boiling water to cover them; cover the saucepan closely, and stew its contents slowly for twenty minutes. Then serve the birds in the gravy formed in cooking them.

Modern dwarf book-cases, which consist simply of a set of ash, walnut or ebonized shelves with the top enclosed in an ornamental rail and a slender pole from which to suspend a curtain, are a great improvement on the cumbersome old cathedral-like receptacles for forgotten literature. They stand flat against a wall, occupying little space, hold many books, and the top serves the purpose of a small cabinet in the opportunmy it affords for the display of a few pieces of good china and small easel

A LOVELY panel is made of a strip of black satin embroidered with pinks. The top and bottom are finished with two-inch bands of scarlet plush, and the lower edge has also a border of sitk balls of different shades of red; a brass wire is tastened to the top and a silk cord with which to suspend it.

An elegant lambrequin may be made of dark crimson plush, velvet or velveteen. Then put on, in diagonal lines about three inches apart, rows of thin brass crescents. Finish the edge with a row of silk tannels, tying each one to a crescent with a silk cord, and then fasten to the velvet with the same cord.

To wash white flamels without inking them make a good suds of boiling water, and add a tablespoonful of aqua-ammonia, and when scalding hot pour over the flaunel. Do not rub on a board, but, if convenient, use a pounder, Ruse in hot water and wring as dry as possible and hang in the hot sun

Dr. Callier Surprised. Vegetine Cured his Daughter.

CALLIERSVILLE, Chilton Co., Ala., May 16, 1878.

Dear Sir,—My daughter has been afflicted with nasal catarrh, affection of the bladder and kidneys, and is of scrofulous diathesis, and, after having exhausted my skill and the most eminent physicians of Selma, I at last resorted to the use of your VEGETINE (without confidence), and, to my great surprise, my daughter has been restored to health. I write this as a simple act of justice, and not as an advertising medium.

B. R. STEVENS, Boston:

Dear Sir,—My only object in giving you this tostiononian is to spread vaniable information. Having been badly afflicted with Lover Complaint, I was induced by some of my friends to try your VEGETINE; and before I had used half of the bottle I found that I was deriving great benefit by it. I had used other medicines but could not say that they helped me in the least. I pronounce your medicine far ahead of any other, and can obsertably recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine. Making such institutions as the public schools, residences for janttors and their families is a very questionable practice. It is necessary to have a careful man about the premises, but not to have his wife and children. When a dangerous disease breaks out in his household it is his policy to keep silent about it so as not to be turned out of doors and probably for a long time of employment. Janitors should have a dweling away from the schools.
