MY PLATFORM. Wall to-day appear, Who will make the winning race,

Not doubting, or with fear. All foolishness I have left behind, I am business from the jump; No jokes nor jist, the like and sich, You'll hear upon the stump.

Although 'tis no disgrace, For shedding tears in politics Disfigures arv face.

Improvements shall my platform be, Improvements on every hand, Improvements from Broad river bank All over Fairfield's land.

Improvements on all the highways, Improvements on all the ridges, Improvements in all the valleys, Improvements on all the bridges.

Improvements on the long, rough roads. With shovel, pick and hoe, improvements on those rocky hills

Where we can scurcely go. Improvements on those rib-breakers, And they are not a few;

Put down the terra colla And let the water through. Improvements on the neglected roads And on the rocky hills.

Curtailing all expenses

By making fewer bills. The roads are in a fearfal fix, But let us conrage take, And choose a man who'll do his best

Improvements here to make. Improvements on the chain gang, Though I will let that be; Improvements you shall see.

Improvements on the country Where all the crops are raid. Improvements on the pasture land Where county cattle graze.

Improvements on the guide post And on the mile-stones too, The directors of all strangers

While they are passing through. Improvements on the old clay soil, The same in sand be found, And let us all make progress now

As the years roll round. Factories now are being built With grandeur and with pride, The quarries too are on a boom

Now on every side. At a rapid rate, Or Fairfield will be far behind

In the Palmetto State. Let's try now to select a man, Wherever duties call,

Who will be found on mutual ground To benefit us all.
