LAURENS, S. C., March 24, 1891.

Silence is Golden but the tail of the ticket keeps wagging.

In the matter of the girls' Industrial School Laurens must "give and take."

Col. Ellison S. Keltz, of Newberry, wants a third party. Would a third party want Col. Keltz?

The State must wait. We will name our wise congressmen as soon as they have cut their wisdom teeth.

St. Patrick's day was duly enjoyed throughout the world on Tuesday last. Every good man on earth who looked upon an Irishman on that day sympathized with his lost cause, and his love for his native land, land of the shamrock, "sweetest Isle of the ocean."

Our frisky old friend the Augusta Chronicle has lowered its ten dollar a year standard to six, but there are no evidences of "reduced circumstances" in its sparkling pages. The Chronicle is equisitely edited.

P. S.—Augusta Morning papers please copy.

Princeton Alliance in their resolutions published last week advise less cotton and more grain and grass. The Princetonians have the choicest spot of ground in Laurens, or for that matter, in fair Carolina. Take your own medicine, friends, and your health and happiness are secure.

We are obliged to Congressman Shell for early copies of Census Bulletins. Laurens has a population of 31,610 a gain of 2,106 in the past decade. Charleston leads with 59,903 closely followed by Berkeley, Spartanburg, Orangeburg and Edgefield in the order named. Laurens is seventeenth in the roll of thirty-five counties—and in 1901 should lead all the rest.

When the city of New Orleans had suffered lasting disgrace by the failure of the courts to punish the assassins of Hennessy, the subsequent action of her people was entirely commendable.

As we understand it, the Mafia is a mutual aid society for purposes of devilry only, whose single bond of union is fellowship in crime. It is a conspiracy beyond the pale or protection of law and membership in it is felony. The five thousand men who have done so much to crush out its baneful life deserve the thanks of the civilized world.

A Democrat.

The State, in a very pregnant and pertinent article wants to know what a democrat is in this day and time of political fads. The point is peculiarly well taken in South Carolina, as more than one of our prominent statesmen are at pains to explain that they are democrats. In the days of the Kentucky Resolutions with which one Thomas Jefferson is supposed to have had some remote to-do, the thing was tolerably well understood; in the meanwhile evolution has been going on around us, the environment has been vacillating and what the beast is to-day in South Carolina would require a "Daniel come to judgment" to determine. One James Madison some years ago is said to have ventured some crude opinions about constitutional limitations and our contemporary might find them in a remote publication of a defunct period called the Federalist.

If our youthful contemporary, however, craves to be right upon the verge, edge and heel of the time, plump in the swim of the nite of the moment, we respectfully invite his attention to the deliverances of the South Carolina convention of the South Carolina democratic party in their platform, done and ratified under the nose of our contemporary at Columbia in September last. Here he will find precisely the stuff that goes to make up a South Carolina democrat of the latest and most approved flavor. Our friend can travel further and push his investigation still very near to his own domicile. During the late campaign, a prominent gentleman by way of exordium to his semi-occasional addresses was pleased to announce himself as an "old fashioned Edgefield democrat," no variations suggested, and inquiry in the quarters indicated might possibly lead to light. This is clearly a politico-archaeological question and any pointers towards solution, are valuable at this time. We are with the Spartanburg Herald in its proposition that "we have in our ranks, those whose loyalty is not beyond question." We have in any such room politicians, parading their democratic naming one of the three articles in their creed.

Jako Kilrain loked a nigger in California the other day. Where are the shriekers?

The trial of J. B. Williams charged with the murder of Maj. W. A. Williams at Greenville has been continued to the next term of court for that county.

Joseph E. Johnstone.
 General Johnstone died in Washington at eleven o'clock Saturday night at the advanced age of eighty-four.

Twenty-six years have passed since the war was over and the time has come when, in the course of nature, the ranks must be thinned more rapidly than ever by shot or shell. Still, deeply mired in the South sorrow for the great soldiers who have made her battle fields meet haunts for the spirits of the brave.

Specialists.
 The teacher who attempts to teach or reach perfection in a great number of branches will succeed in accomplishing or knowing very little. The modern concept of education is, by no means, of nothing, but Sidney Smith said, "My advice is, have the courage to be ignorant of a great many things, that you may avoid the calamity of being ignorant of all things."

I believe thousands of teachers have made a great failure of teaching by dabbling in too many branches of education. In the dim and misty vistas of the past, great men and scholars aspired to know everything, but the day of universal knowledge is past. The range of human inquiry has now extended to a degree where the true measure of a man's learning will be the amount of his voluntary ignorance or the number of studies which he chooses to let alone, and as with knowledge so with work. I believe anyone who expects to teach in any college should single out from a vast number of studies, one specialty and to that devote himself thoroughly. To become an expert accountant, mathematician, lawyer, linguist or fine penman is simply beyond the contemplation of a "country boy professor."

In this fast age of the world as the field of science is expanding, it will puzzle the wisest and ablest of men to keep fairly abreast of any single branch of knowledge. Once in a while a man appears in history like Bacon or Dante, or Leonardo de Vinci, who is a real prodigy of genius, and does a great many different kinds of work and does them all well, but the rarity of such men prove the contrary condition to the rule.

Erasmus said, "The way of evil is dissipation but the way of wisdom is concentration." Then the highest ambition will accomplish but little if scattered on a multiplicity of objects; while on the other hand if one has a thimbleful of brains and concentrates them all upon the subject in hand he may achieve miracles.

I will not deny, however, that there is an inferior class of men of offensive senses in which a man can be possessed of one idea. A man may become like a tree with all its branches on one side and so become a mental and moral deformity. What would we think of a man who was all head or all stomach or all legs and arms? Even so a man may become so warped and so mentally one-sided as to practically forget that there is anything else in the world besides his own trade or profession and then he is not a whole man but simply a distorted fragment.

The first thing to be done in human culture is to develop as near as possible all the faculties and then ask nature which one is best adapted as leader of the rest. Having done this regard all the books you can on that subject, and work with an unerring perseverance. Aim above the mark you intend to hit and fire and keep firing and success will surely crown your efforts.

 The cooking school in Mobile is very successful with a membership of 115. The circulation of the blood—quickened and enriched—bears life and energy to every portion of the body; appetite returns; the hour of rest brings with it sound repose. This can be secured by taking Dr. J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilla.

The government of Guatemala has appointed Senator Antonio Batres as minister to this country.
 The blood must be pure for the body to be in perfect condition. Dr. J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood and imparts the rich bloom of health and vigor to the whole body.

CLINTON CLASSICAL INSTITUTE.
 With the opening of the spring term, I have added the military feature and a thorough course in Book-keeping to my already full curriculum, which includes Latin, Greek, German, French, Calligraphy and music. Capt. A. N. Brunson, of Orangeburg city, who graduated as Capt of his company and as valedictorian of his class, at the South Carolina military Academy, will have charge of this department.

Prof. Brunson comes highly recommended; he is recently from Vanderbilt University, and has had experience in his testimonial showing him to be a young man of marked ability, competent to fill with credit a position in any institution.
