All secular editors are politicians; for politics is their business. How many in South Carolina are office holders? We recall one member of the News & Courier staff and one member of the staff of the Laurensville Herald. Perhaps that any of the gentlemen are "subto the fact that most of them are to be held here next week. Tillmanites.

Once upon a time this paper proposed a constitutional amendment making members of the senate and executive offices for a number of years after their terms had ended. The motion fell flat. We still believe that office seeking is the botheration of this republic. As a remedy we suggest the formation of a citizens may join who will pledge society nor for two years after it may be severed voluntarily or otherwise.

The Fruits of the North. PORT JERVIS, N. Y.) Sept. 11st, 1891.

In sending a few specimens of fruit to a friend in Laurens, it occurred to me to say a few words through your paper regarding its production in these parts, and of-fer a few suggestions to readers in your section. On my several visits to your State, I have noticed the small number of orchards and vineyards, and the bareness of the mar-kets in the towns, of fruits of the various kinds.

Now, I am very sure that where trees of almost every kind grow so well, fruit bearing ones can be made to yield. It is a matter I think of simple neglect in planting and then not caring for the trees when planted.

All through this very region the same condition of things existed tween the Democratic and Ocala twenty-five or thirty years ago. have come to perceive its value as a necessary article of food and con-

The Gray Court Fair.

TO THE ADVERTISER: Yesterday's fair, although the first, may be set down as a success of which Gray Court may well be proud. She went in to win and she did it. With the experience gained yesterday and the effort she will put forth in the future, she will be the Mecca for the lovers of fine stock and cattle, and her shows will be one of the events of the year.

The exhibits were good in every department. Many fine horses, mules and colts were entered and the ADVERTISER will in all probability be asked to exchange among their good points displayed to the admiring crowd.
