"Fantine" a French comic opera by the best musical talent of Greenville, S. | new acquaintances, I left for home, with C., will be given in Laurens at the Opera House Tuesday night, Oct. 29th. This opera was presented in Greenville with great success for two nights. Thirtyfive voices in chorus. Sparkling solos and humorous dialogues with genuine humor from the beginning to the end.

Don't you remember when you were a small boy how your heart felt no longing so intense as that for a goat and wagon? And didn't you envy the lucky two legged kid who owned the four legged kid which he coaxed and worried, petted and punished for twelve hours in the day? As you loaf afternoons in front of the Bendella while one by one the teams of ubiquitous boys and iniquitous goats begin to exhibit, all you old fellows want to be boys again.

Little River Alliance,

Where was a pine forest only a few inters ago is now the plant of the Laurens Oil and Fartilizer Company, working day and night, and illustrating how manufacturing enterprise is growing and succeeding in Laurens. If, reader, you have not seen the oil mill (after everything from roof to cellar has had its summer overhauling) with all its wondertul labor-saving machinery in operation, there is a pleasant hour in reserve for you-one which you would not more enjoy in the machinery halt at the Augusta Exposition. When you go to the oil mill Superintendent Yeargin takes possession of you for the time and carries you through all the departments lucidly explaining the many curious processes through which the seed passes before its "juice" is barrelled and shipped to people who manipulate it until it is nice and fit to use in broiling a porter house steak.

Mr. Yeargin calls your attenton to a wagon loaded with cotton standing on the scales by the side of the gin room. An enormous hollow tube big enough for a dude to crawl through, which comes from the regions somewhere above. sticks its mouth in to the wagon and the cotton seems to be galped up by it. Placing your hand to its mouth you find that there is a strong draught up the tube, that it is merely suction that so rapidly, almost "while you wait," empties the wagon; and you are poor physicist if you do not guess that there is a fan inside the house to raise the wind that raises the cotton. In the gir room three gins are running. Nobody is feeding them because the cotton lifted by the process just described drops into their gaping mouths from overhead. This apparatus is the famous Sailor Elevator about which so much has been said. One of the novel and valuable points about it is that as the cotton is in transitu up the tube, the rush of air pulls the locks apart and a great deal of trash and dirt is siffed out: of course the quality of the bale is im-

In the mill proper, there are more gins through which the seed must go to clean it of the last "vestige," so to speak, of lint, and incidentally, save a bale a day. Then the seed is crushed and carried along a sort of box with a perforated bottom. The mest drops brough the holes and the hulls go some where else-it deesn't matter where just now. The meat falls into a mill where it is ground into meal, then it meanders up an elevator until it settles into heaters where it is cooked for a few minutes. Then it comes out of these moulded into cakes, rich ginger cakes in color-and an expert darkey throws them into the pen-which has receptacles for dozens of them. After a while the press begins drips slowly at first, but soon there is a beautiful stream of rich amber flowing into the tank beneath, whence it is oumped to another room and barrelled.

This is a brief description of what a visitor will see, leaving out all sorts of rance company, was in the city last interesting things which might interest him for hours. The Laurens Oil Mill deserves to succeed because it has son's dress goods and millinery before the very best machinery, capable officers buying elsewhere. They have all the and has earned a splendid reputation for its fertilizer. It has been a public benefactor to the farmers of Laurens and they are only looking to their own interest in giving it patronage.

The City Council has done a very sen sible thing. It has passed an ordinance forbidding people to have their gates to open on the side walks. Hereafter all gates must swing inwards. The City Council have an eye to the safety and convenience of the people, which, by the way, is part of their business. Months ago the ADVERTISER, prompted by one of its young friends, suggested the passage of this ordinance. The Council did not act precipitately. If they considered it all, they considered it thornghly; but they did the work all the same. Hereafter a man will not have to step over his neighbor's gate to avoid doing it hurt.

A Handy Book.

Cotton is a remarkable plant. Its culture, its "movements" and its fluctuation in price constitutes a peculiarly fascinating study and a most important one to every intelligent person in the region of its production. We have received from Latham, Alexander & Co., bankers and commission merchants of New York a very handsome and useful little volume on the subject. It includes a full history of the cotton movement from 1886 to '91 replete with every variety of interesting statistical information and the beauty of it all is that the explanations and arrangement are so clear that a child can understand them. The publishers estimate the crop of 1891-1892 at 7,600,600 or about 1,000,600 below that of last year.

A Sleek Nuisance.

From the P. n-Handle of Texas to the Republic of Horry, no city has more elegantly payed side-walks than Laurens. The only possible objection to be urged against them is that they are liable to fly up and hit that man or woman hard who stumbles and even a prohibition campaign will stumble when the banana peel basks in the sun of Indian Sum

There's little thats slippery in Laurens, but we want less. We want the banana peel given its walking papers so that humanity may stand a chance to keep its perpendicular. We therefore demand of the Mayor and Council action to keep the sidewalks clean. Let there be fines and penalties against the hateful banana peel.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

CARTERSVILLE, April 28, 1883.
This will certify that two members of my immediate family, after having suffered for years from Memstrual Erregularity, being treated without benefit by physicians, were at length completely cured by one bottle of Bradifield's Femile Regulator. Its effect is truly wonderful. J. W. STRANGE. Book to "WOMAN" mailed FREE, which contains BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO. FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGIE
