While Coroner J. P. Sloan and his wife were driving Sunday afternoon their horse took fright and ran. Both were thrown from the buggy. While their injuries are very painful it is hoped that they will not prove serious and that their recovery will be rapid.

Have You Paid Your Taxes? County Treasurer Mock calls our attention to the following section of an act passed by the General Assembly in 1892. It therefore seems certain that there will be no extension of the time

Miss Mary Yeargin Drowned.

Our community was inexpressibly saddened yesterday morning at the re-ceipt of the intelligence of the death of Miss Mary L. Yeargin at Ithaca, New York, Saturday afternoon. At an early hour yesterday her father, Mr. R. H. Yeargin, received the following telegrams, all being delivered together, bearing the same date and signed "Ella K. Hooker":

"ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 20, '93.—Mary Yeargin went out boating with an instructor yesterday. Boat was found grounded to-day, no trace of occupants. "Deepest sympathies for all. No tidings. Full details in letter."

"Mary has met with accident. Will telegraph you to-day. Will write fully. Be patient."

"Bodies not found. Parties search ing. University has offered reward. My judgment is wait."

My judgment is wait."

Yesterday's daily papers contain the following United Press dispatch:

"ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 19.—L. S. Merriam, an instructor in Cornell University, and Miss M.L. Yeargin, a student, went out rowing on Cayuga Lake yesterday afternoon and to-day their boat was found overturned in the lake. Nothing has been seen or heard of them up to 7 o'clock to-night and they them up to 7 o'clock to-night and they were evidently drowned by the overturning of the boat. They hired a boat yesterday evening at 3 o'clock, while there was a very strong wind blowing on the lake. The boatman advised them to keep along the west shore of the lake as it would be dangerous along the east shore. This they did not do and it evidently cost them their not do and it evidently cost them their

His parents reside in Chattanooga, Tenn., where his father is a large wholesale grocer, reported to be very wealthy. The young man was passionately fond of water, was on the lake nearly every day and it was his usual custom to take some young lady with him. The parents of both the young people have been wired to the effect that they were undoubtedly drowned.

"Miss Yeargin was formerly a student in the Columbia Female College, Columbia, S. C., where she graduatd with high honors and afterwards taught in the same institution."

It is impossible to tell with what sor row our people heard this most deplo-rable news. For a time the lingering rable news. For a time the ingering hope was indulged that possibly a later report would come saying that the young lady was injured but not dead, but this was soon given up. The deepest sympathy was expressed by every one for the stricken parents and familia.

Miss Mary L. Yeargin was born about twenty-five years ago. Early in life she began to develop exceptional traits of intellect and character. Her girlhood was devoted to earnes and self-sacrificing industry and dili-gent efforts for self-improvement. She spent several years at the Columbia Female College where she graduated with marked destinction and for a while afterwards was a teacher in the institution. Subsequently she was a while afterwards was a teacher in the institution. Subsequently she was a teacher in the Leesville' College and gained an enviable reputation as an educator throughout the State. She was several times employed in the faculties of summer normal institutes and was appointed by Governor Tillman a member of the commission whose duty it was to submit plans for the proposed state school for women. In all these state school for women. In all these positions her fine common sense and talent together with the most conscientious fidelity to duty made her conspicuously useful and successful.

Miss Yeargin was a most devout constitution. The was a member of the Christian. She was a member of the Methodist Church and a zealous worker in the cause of the Saviour. An accomplished elocutionist, she was often called upon to assist in charitable entertainments and invariably responded with willingness.

For the past year Miss Yeargin had been at Cornell University perfecting her education. She was an ambitious seeker after knowledge and it is believed that had her life been spared she would have taken rank among the leading women of the country. Her death is a loss not only to her own family and community but to the State.

Statistical Inferences.

The Herald of last week, commenting on the statistics of drunkenness taken by this paper from the Mayor's criminal docket, finds that during the time that the town was dry only one case of drunkenness was entered whereas THE ADVERTISER placed the number at three. THE ADVERTISER was correct, as the Herald or anybody else will find by examining the entries for August 12 and September 25 ult. THE ADVERTISER stated the number of cases of drunkenness occurring from October 3 to November 11 of last year as 11. It should have been 12, one having been entered as "drinking" which THI ADVERTISER overlooked.

If we should undertake to go outside of what actually appears on the mayor's books to obtain facts to the discredit of the dispensary system we could men-tion various cases of drunkenness which have come under our own observation. We do not regard the evidence of the mayor's books as conclusive of anything; we merely take them, as Gov. Tillman does, for indicators worth something, in our opinion a good deal. Of course we have no idea that when the cases were entered that the mayor, marshals or clerk thought of the exis-tence of the dispensary. We doubt if any body else believes that they did or is prepared to make the charge. Since the dispensary has been open, numerous cases, (11), have been entered as "disordedly conduct" and the disting as "disorderly conduct" and the distincion between that offence is maintained just as it has been heretofore. It may happen that a case is so entered and that afterwards it transpires on the trial that drinking was at the bottom of the disorder and no change is then made in the entry. This may have happened in particular instances since the dispensary has been open or before.

If there are as many cases attributable to whiskey on the books for the time that the dispensary has been open as there are for the cor-responding period of last year, that tends to prove that the dispensary sys-tem does not diminish the evils of whiskey. If the Herald is correct in its es-timate that during the three months and three days that the town was dry there were six cases attributable to whiskey before the mayor and that during the five dispensary weeks there were eleven then the indication is that the opening of the dispensary increased the rate of drunkenness over the rate for dry times by about 170 per cent. The claim that some of the drunkenness under the dispensary regime is due to blind tiger whiskey is a confession that to that extent the dispensary law's regulative fea-ture lacks enforcement.

The Herald says:

"A comparision, however, with the bar room days, the interim between the closing of the bar rooms and the opening of dispensary, and the dispensary times, shows that when there were neither bar rooms nor dispensary. neither bar rooms nor dispensary, 6 cases directly attributable to whiskey were docketed; when the bar rooms flourished, 18 cases of drunk; during the dispensary era, 9—or just half the number of drunks as during the bar room times, and only 3 more than dur ng the period when there were neither bar rooms nor dispensary,"

It should be borne in mind that the "9" drunks referred to occurred in a period of 5 weeks and 3 days and that the "18" under the bar system occurred during 13 weeks and 4 days of last year, (we suppose the Herald refers to the months of July, August and September with 3 days of October, 1892.) If. we admit these figures then the comparison is clearly in favor of the bar room system, indicating that drunkenness was less common then than now.

The ushers walked in and assumed their respective positions, then the bride and groom marched up the aisle, preceded by two lovely little girls dressed in white with coronets of white chrysanthemums, carryin baskets of the same and strewing them in the way. The bride and groom took their position under an arch of snowy flowers, facing the waiting minister, the Rev. T. B. Craig, who was in his happiest frame of mind, and as he, with that modesty and gracefulness so characteristic of his acts, spoke the words which bound together for ever and aye two loving hearts, they sounded very sweet and impressive.

The bride's dress was of some light material; elegant in simplicity, but ex-tremely stylish. She were no onaments save a single white chrysanthemum in her hair and bosom. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom entered their carri-
