

Leaving Undone. he thing you do, dear, making you feel fine, as you a bit of nearness setting of the sun.

REAHERS OMBINE, AND THROUGH ORGANIZATION.

part to Organize the Negroes about the State—A Campaign for Constitutional Convention. The general idea of the organization is to unite the negro ministers of the State into a union...

of the convention—that they were after no office or anything of that kind. There was a light mood of several old negro Republicans who think the memory of the effect of the purchasing power of 'boodie' in controlling the 'organization' tuck, the convention in all sections of the State...

The convention was called to order by the Rev. E. H. Wilson and the proceedings were opened by the reading of the hymn, "A Charge to Keep." It was lined out in "blocks" of two lines and the Rev. J. C. Daniels led the choir.

Rev. B. Middleton, of Camden, led in prayer. He said they were assembled now as citizens of the State. He prayed for the people, for the State, for the South, for the North, for the East, for the West, for the South, for the North, for the East, for the West.

Rev. H. M. Ralston was also a speaker. He said he was a black negro as one could find a color a clean, white standing and a white four-in-hand tie, pit and snuff, and a white handkerchief. He addressed the convention in the most dignified manner, with a little humor, and a very little oratory.

When the convention reassembled the Rev. J. C. Daniels made his report as follows: "We, your committee above named, beg leave to submit our report, and to recommend that there be an executive committee consisting of three members from each congressional district and that the said committee constitute a quorum."

point that the committee was simply to select officers as permanent chairman and secretary of the convention, and had gone beyond its powers in making the selection of the report.

THE NEW ORGANIZATION.

The committee on constitution then submitted the following report: "Prematurely, the constitution of the Ministers' Union. Whereas, there are patent causes which impel the ministers—the laity and the clergy—to organize a new body into such an organization as will better protect us as a race along civil and political lines, and...

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the State executive committee to appoint for each congressional district a committee whose duty it shall be to organize in every precinct in the county, and see that all of the members of each church are furnished with registration certificates.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the State executive committee to canvass or cause to be canvassed every voter and wherever emergency demands. Section 3. The executive committee shall have full power to act in the name of the State, to sue and be sued, to hold real estate, and to do all such things as may be necessary to carry out its purposes.

Hart moved to adopt, when Middleton rose and said that they would strike out the portion looking to the registration of voters. He said he would likely find that politicians would grab up the organization and money would doubtless be used.

Section 4. It shall be further the province of the executive committee to send out agents to visit the various districts, sufficient to employ legal talent to test the legality of acts by which the laws governing the rights of colored citizens are being enacted against the rights and privileges of franchises guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the United States.

When the convention reassembled the Rev. J. C. Daniels made his report as follows: "We, your committee above named, beg leave to submit our report, and to recommend that there be an executive committee consisting of three members from each congressional district and that the said committee constitute a quorum."

A TALE OF THE MOONSHINERS. DRAMATIC CONFESSION OF CRIME.

Hanging an Informer Whose Mother Approved the Lynching—The Leader of the Ku Klux Captured in Arkansas. Atlanta Evening Journal. The light of justice is beginning to fall brightly upon the facts in the Worley outrage, one of the most disastrous crimes ever committed on the soil of Georgia, and today the announcement is made that Judge McCutcheon, suspected as the leader of the band which shot Worley in the cotton field in Murray County, has been captured; that he is on his way to the scene of his alleged crime from Arkansas where for some time he has been a fugitive from pursuers.

In addition to this, and another light upon the dark deed, was the dramatic confession of the man who told how before Judge Newton this morning. There was a silence as profound as death when Black entered his plea of guilty and when the story, at least most surprising bit, of how Worley had been taken by sixty mounted men in disguise through Bloodtown into the Bloodwoods of Worley. In the darkness of the night to a persimmon tree.

Officers of the court, judge, members of the bar listened to the narrative of the crime, and from the first word spoken to the last the men held their breath, for from out the dark recesses of the court, a tale was told which almost surpassed credulity. Never in any court room has there been a more dramatic scene, and every eye was fixed upon the man who told the story of how Worley's own mother, standing before her son and her grand-daughter, sided with the whitecappers and gave her consent to his hanging.

There was a suggestion of a conspiracy, and the man who told the story of how Worley's own mother, standing before her son and her grand-daughter, sided with the whitecappers and gave her consent to his hanging.

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the State executive committee to appoint for each congressional district a committee whose duty it shall be to organize in every precinct in the county, and see that all of the members of each church are furnished with registration certificates.

Section 2. It shall be the duty of the State executive committee to canvass or cause to be canvassed every voter and wherever emergency demands. Section 3. The executive committee shall have full power to act in the name of the State, to sue and be sued, to hold real estate, and to do all such things as may be necessary to carry out its purposes.

Section 4. It shall be further the province of the executive committee to send out agents to visit the various districts, sufficient to employ legal talent to test the legality of acts by which the laws governing the rights of colored citizens are being enacted against the rights and privileges of franchises guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the United States.

THE CONFESSION OF McCUTCHEON, LEADER OF THE GAUG.

The noted leader of the white caps, James McCutcheon, was discovered in a dark room at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga., on the morning of the 14th inst.

Driven by the most relentless remorse and regret for the crime in which he had participated, McCutcheon had become a changed man, different as to his future, and the confession he has made was entirely voluntary and of his own accord.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

Worley was tied with his hands behind him and rode in the middle of the crowd of men on horseback. He never spoke. We went up the Bloodtown through Bloodtown to Bloodtown gorge.

"Describe," said some one, "how the hills are here." "Each one had almost straight up a thousand feet high, a creek runs between, and the road for three miles runs through this creek bed. Some were led by a white horse under the tree and tied up around Worley's neck. The other end of the rope was thrown over a strong oak tree and the men caught hold of it and hung down and we struck him up, got on our horses and rode down the gorge apiece. Worley was led toward the woods where we left him there to die. The man had gotten almost out of sight of him when he was seen to knock up a white horse and take a long look around the trunk. Quick as lightning he managed to get his hands loose, untied the noose from his neck, and ran like a deer. He was seen by me I ever saw. A yell went up from the crowd and the men fired fifty shots at him as he ran. They never caught up with him. This was the last we saw of him that night."

When Black had completed his story, there was a complete silence in the court. The judge, the members of the bar, the jury, and the crowd were all looking at the man who had just spoken.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

McCutcheon was arrested on the morning of the 14th inst. at the residence of a friend in the city of Atlanta, Ga. He was taken to the city jail and held there until the morning of the 15th inst.

Large Block of Frame Buildings Destroyed—The Block Was Shattered by Fire in Timmonsville.

TIMMONSVILLE, Feb. 12.—The largest fire in extent and number of buildings destroyed that Timmonsville has ever experienced broke out last night about 12 o'clock and burned for several hours. A wooden row containing historic "Fort Sumner" is in ashes.

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

FIRE IN TIMMONSVILLE.

Large Block of Frame Buildings Destroyed—The Block Was Shattered by Fire in Timmonsville. TIMMONSVILLE, Feb. 12.—The largest fire in extent and number of buildings destroyed that Timmonsville has ever experienced broke out last night about 12 o'clock and burned for several hours.

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

"She wants to know if the making of money is a function of government, or if government does not exist to its business and not delegate its powers to a class of individuals or corporations."

THE HOUSE KILLS THE GOLD BOND IMPROVEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Another day's debate in the House upon the financial question has but served to emphasize the fact that the bill affecting the financial situation is to be expected from the Fifty-third Congress. A week ago the House refused, by a vote of 195 to 105, to pass the last Springer Banking and Currency bill, which contained a provision authorizing the issue of long-time low interest bonds to the extent of $100,000,000.

The bill was stopped on the west by the brick building owned and occupied by the Masonic lodge of the city, the Masonic Hall above. The building was slightly damaged from broken blinds, etc., but is fully insured. All the valuables of the bank were removed.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

NO FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Another day's debate in the House upon the financial question has but served to emphasize the fact that the bill affecting the financial situation is to be expected from the Fifty-third Congress.

The bill was stopped on the west by the brick building owned and occupied by the Masonic lodge of the city, the Masonic Hall above. The building was slightly damaged from broken blinds, etc., but is fully insured. All the valuables of the bank were removed.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.

One of the chief industries of Lake County, Tenn., is beaver farming. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River. Reelfoot Lake is also within its borders. The beaver is raised in large numbers and the skins are sold to the fur traders of the Mississippi River.