LAURENS, S. C. Oct., 25, 1899.

The Biggest.

There are five great wars now pending, one in South Carolina of a moral character, where the public is agitated over the conduct of a great public in stitution - the Dispensary-and the fight is for good morals and common honesty, the public waiting to pass judgment upon the evidence. In Kentucky and Ohio the battle is on between Democracy and Republicanism -economy and honesty against trusts, extravagance and dominion. Uncle Sam, this great Power, wages war with the sword to establish her sovereignty in the far East over the rebellious Filipinos. Uncle Sam is technically right. Great Britain carries the sword to Africa against the little Dutch Republic. Britain is wrong. It is a kind of grand larceny, with murder on a national scale. Britain will win. Right stands no show against might, as this world goes. The event determines the right. But this State has the fight of fights-the others are little affairs in comparison. You may control the tides and the ocean by jetties and walls of stone and mortar. You can never administer a million dollar business in the name of the State, over her entire borders, with honesty and without scandal.

Laurens county is much inclined to race riots. The last was near Water-loo. It was said that certain white race riots. The last was near Water-loo. It was said that certain white men took a Negro out and whipped him and that the friends of the whipped man threatened vengeance.—Of course the white men of Laurens will not allow a Negro to defend nimself or family against violence.—Spartanhurg Spartan.

Our contemporary has stumbled into a blunder, a rare thing for him. He is usually clear sighted and clear into the service and its history footed. The affair below Waterloo of lost. Nobody knows how it got out of week before last was greatly exact erated. We have had no race friction since I876.

Mr. C. W. Chandler, of Cokesbury, was in the city Saturday showing samples of canned tomatoes put up by him this year. Those who have sampled them pronounce them of exceptionally fine quality.

Mr. Chandler has a canning outfit that cost $40, the capacity of which is 40 to 50 dozen cans per day. The cost of the cans is very little, and the amount of tomatoes that can be grown on an acre of land is practically unlimited. Mr. Chandler was offering the tomatoes to the merchants at 95 cents per dozen for three-pound cans, and says there is good money in them even at that price.

It might be well for those who are trying to abandon the all-cotton plan to see Mr. Chandler and investigate this canning business further .-- Greenwood Index.

the gallant served the tes in a war with the Flor-Seminoles in 1836, sixty-three years ago. It was handed us by Miss Burton, a daughter of one of the gallant volunteers. The paper is yellow from age, but well preserved, and our purpose is to record the names of the old heroes for the sake of their descendants. "The Laurens Vo" -teers"

Mat Jones, County Treasurer, Col. B. S. Jones, State Senator and Sheriff and Col. B. W. Ball commanding when the civil war came and dissolved the militia organization. Gen. A. C. Jones on his return from Florida was made Sheriff. He was full of the martial spirit and when seventy years old organized a company and carried it to Kansas, where they took part in the troublous times pending the organization of that territory into a State. He was the father of the other Colonels of the name, and has many descendants in the county, among them Dr John R. Smith and Hon G. P. Smith, present Representative in the General Assembly. Our purpose, however, is more particularly to reproduce the roll of the gallant Seminole volunteers. Their descendants and relatives are still with us and will be interested to recall their patriotic spirit. We believe the last one has answered the last roll-call, J. J. Mc-Gowan, the father of F. P. McGowan of this city, as we think, being the last survivor. Richard F. Simpson, the Major, was a lawyer of this city, and on his return was elected to Congress. Col. Simpson, of Anderson, the head of Clemson, is his son Hugh Saxon,

With the consent of the Adjutant General he organized a volunteer Artillery company at Bryson's Old Field, which was attached to and made a part of the 40th Regiment. In acognition of his gallantry on his return the 40th Regiment presented Campbell with a sword.
