MR. EDITOR: Among the many things that tends to operate against the success of the farmer during the crop seasen is the increasing unreliability of labor. The farmer begins the year, as he thinks, with his hired labor production of the producti your employment for they know the penalty of their contracts amounts to no punishment at all. Besides, Mr. "A." "B," or "C," stands ready to pay their fine and take your hands to work for him until fine is paid back? How is this to be remedied, It is true we have already a law for violations of contracts,—both for the employee and the persons who may entice him away but persons who may entice him away. bu the penalty in the first case is so mild and the homestead protects against damages in the other, that it is entirely the damages committed. If the con tract is for six months or a year the penalty should be at hard labor on the

Now, as everything almost depends upon the success of the farm, ought not the farmer have better protection against the violation of his contract?

A great deal of stable land is being planted—a good idea we think, as farmers should make all they can at home.

wood to be buthered at Greenwood.

The campaign has commenced. The ball commenced rolling at Orangeburg. The issue seems to be Dispensary versus Prohibition. We long to see the day that our dear old State shall go out of the basicess. The Dyspensary men cry policy, the Prohibitionists principle, but as for us we shall by the help of God be actuated by principle. If it is a sin and disgrace for an individual to sell intoxicants it certainly is the same for the State. The issue is before us, and for us. Mark it well, then act with energy, we know of no better representative of so noble a cause as Prohibition than Gol. Jas. 2. Hoyt, an exponent that ro man can truthfully say aught against. May be lead us on to victory.
