SHEEP IN INDIA.

They Are the Favorite Beasts of Burden In Mountainous Regions.

In Tibet and among the mountainous part of India sheep are employed as carriers. The mountain sheep of these districts, true to its nature, is remarkably sure footed and can carry loads of twenty-five pounds, or even more, overcrags and precipitous paths where hardly any other animal could find a footing.

In the inner ranges of the Himalayas the yak cow and the hardy mountain sheep are the favorite beasts of bur-den. Sheep withstand the intense cold of the higher parts of Tibet much more easily than the yak and can better face the stony roads. Sheep carrying from seventeen to twenty-five pounds of baggage and living entirely on the scanty grass found growing by the way accompanied Nain Suigh, the famous Indian explorer, on a journey of more than a thousand miles. It is very common in the Himalayas to load sheep, high up in the mountains, with borax and then to drive them down to the plains, where they are shorn of their turn laden with grain or salt.

There are people in Mexico City who and are greatly benefited thereby, but their number appears to be growing less year by year. Whether the slesta is beneficial or not, or whether in this high altitude it is a necessity for many persons, as is claimed by some, its death knell as a general custom seems to have been sounded since the city adopted its modern enterprise and push. FIRST USE OF TEA.

An Ancient Legend Ascribes It to a King of Chine.

By whom or when the use of tea for is lost in antiquity. It is spoken of as a famous herb in Chinese literature s far back as 2,000 years B. C., at which time its cultivation and classification were almost as thorough and complete as they are today. One of the ancient legends says that its virtues were accidentally learned by King Shen Nung She, the Chinese monarch who is also known as "the divine husbandman," who, the record says, flourished forty centuries ago. He was engaged in boiling water over a fire made of the branches of the tea plant and carelessly allowed some of the leaves to fall

The liquid which he expected to come from the vessel simply as sterilized water was miraculously converted into an elixir of life by the accidental addition of the tea leaves. Soon after it became highly esteemed in all the oriental cities and was used as a royal gift from the Chinese monarchs to the potentates of southern and western

This same King Shen Nung She not only earned the title of respect by which he was known through the discovery of the virtues of tea, but because of being the first to teach his people how to make and use plows and many other implements of husbandry.

Emerson on Lincoln. The president impressed me more favorably than I had hoped. A frank. sincere, well meaning man, with a lawyer's habit of mind, good, clear statement of his fact, correct enough, not vulgar, as described, but with a sort of boylsh cheerfulness, or that kind of sincerity and jolly good meaning that our class meetings on commencement days show in telling our old stories over. When he has made his remark he looks up at you with great satisfaction and shows all his white teeth and laughs. He argued to Summer the whole case of Gordon, the slave trader, point by point, and added that he was not quite satisfied yet, and meant to refresh his memory by looking again at the evidence. showed a fidelity and conscientiousness very honorable to him. When I was Emerson, I once heard you say in : lecture that a Kentuckian seems to say by his air and manners, 'Here am Atlantic.

In Old Stagecoach Days. There used to be rate wars in the old stagecoach days in England. At one time, early last century, one stagefrom Lewes to London to a very low rate, but gave also other inducements. As the coach started from Lewes at a somewhat uncomfortably early hour in the morning, by way of tiding over the difficulty the proprietors allowed the more slothful of their passengers to go overnight to Brighton, where they were accommodated with goo beds free of expense and could proceed comfortably to London by the company's morning coach,

THE HUB THE HUB

WE SAVE YOU A PRETTY PENNY

Just at this time of year The Hub can save you a pretty penny, as the saying goes, on almost anything pertaining to Woman's Summer apparel. It is now the season when it is all-important to us to rid ourselves of remaining balances of Summer Goods — because in a month or so the new Fall things will be arriving and plenty of room must be made for them. In order to clean out Summer things, we are willing to sell at greatly diminished prices; and the shrewd bargain lover will find many and many a chance to pick up real snaps. We will mention a few of them just to show the manner of the reductions.
