INSULTS GEN. LEE'S DAUGHTER. A Dago Finds Himself in a Confederate Hornet's Nest. The death of Miss Mildred Lee, the youngest daughter of General Robert was in town Friday, E. Lee, recalls an incident in which several South Carolinians played a most worthy part in defending the other daughter of the Confederacy's great military chieftain.

In the year 1878 Messrs. W. A. Clark and John T. Sloan of Columbia and the late D. A. Parker Jordan of Greenwood, with Dr. Roberts of Georgia, were making a tour of Italy and were staying at a hotel in Naples at which Miss Mary Lee with a lady from New York chanced to be guests. Miss Lee had just come over from the African coast. It was summer and very warm in Naples. Miss Lee in handling the candle with which her room was lighted accidentally set fire to the netting of the bed and the tapestry in the room. The fire was quickly extinguished and the damage was inconsiderable.

Mr. Clark was in the hotel office when the proprietor mentioned the fire to him and declared that Miss Lee had set fire to his house maliciously. Ordinarily there is no more mild mannered man than the president of the Carolina National Bank and of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce, but this insult to the daughter of the great leader whom he had followed in the fortunes of the loved Lost Cause was more than Mr. Clark could bear and quick as lightning he struck the insolent Italian hotel man over the head with his umbrella and was proceeding to give him a sound thrashing when the employees of the hotel rushed to the rescue of their master and Mr. Clark, like the Confederacy, was being overwhelmed with numbers.

The present lieutenant governor of South Carolina was standing outside the hotel looking out over the beautiful Bay of Naples when a friend brought him news of Mr. Clark's encounter within. Col. Sloan rushed in to his friend's assistance and soon Mr. Jordan and Dr. Roberts had joined in the fray. The four Southerners were fighting a score or more of the "cowardly Italians," as Col. Sloan calls them, and the bravery which had distinguished the followers of Lee would have put the sons of the South to flight had not the police been called in and the fighting

When the cause of Mr. Clark's encounter was made known to the other gentlemen of his party their anger was as great as his own, and each of them was ready for another fight with the man who had reflected upon Miss Lee. Col. Sloan challenged him to come outside and fight with any weapons he should select.

FIRE IN THE COUNTY.

Mr. A. W. Sharp of Princeton, Sustains Considerable Loss:

A fire, which is supposed to have been of accidental origin, destroyed the cotton house, gearing and carriage house of Mr. A. W. Sharpe, near Princeton, Sunday morning about 2 o'clock.

The buildings, together with most of their contents, consisting of seven bales of cotton, 600 bushels of cotton seed, a quantity of grain and farming implements were a total loss with no insurance. One bale of cotton and the vehicles were saved.

The Battle Flag of the 3rd South Carolina Regiment has been mentioned as one which will be returned to this State by the U.S. Government, This is quite an error as the flag was never captured and was brought back to his home in Laurens, by Sergeant Lamb the color bearer of the Regiment and when he died a few months ago his bier was wrapped in its folds while being carried to its last resting place.

Major Bacon Calls the President down With a Suggestion.

(From the Edgefied Chronicle.) President Roosevelt, who is a meddle ome and ridiculous man, has been talking a great deal to the Mothers' Congress in Washington and complaining that white women nowadays do not have children enough. Nonsense! They have a great many more than they otght to have, especially the poor ones. However, that is not our point. Our point is to beg Mr. Roosevelt to come down here to Edgefield and preach warmly to our hens, collectively, that have not laid an egg this spring. If this fussy and absurd President would let white women, alone, and cease to force them to have a baby every year and come down here and use his "big stick" upon our froward and unfruitful hens, he would be doing a real wise and benevolent "stunt."

MR. HALL'S MIRACLE.

Experiences Similar to This Have Occasioned Considerable Comment in Laurens.

Few women are better known in Lockport, N. Y., than Mrs. Pattie D. Hall, as she belongs to one of the best families and has a large circle of friends 35-4t and acquaintances. In a recent interview, Mrs. Hall said:

in the last two years seems like a mira- 8 "Sunny South" cooking stove all as cle. I was so badly off that life seemed good as new, apply to, almost unendurable, and my deafness increased so that I could scarcely hear anything. The suffocation caused in 35-1t my chest and the indigestion caused by my catarrh produced very severe suffering. I had five different physicians, bought everything that anybody rein despair.

Figures for the Farmer.

A few of our contemporaries are conending that it is unfair to require or expect the small farmer to reduce his already small acreage. We can show that it is fair, moreover, as the greater portion of the cotton crop is produced by the small farmers, the success of an organization of farmers for crop reduction is dependent on their co-operation. Another 13,000,000 bale crop this year will certainly run prices down to six cents. Such a surplus cannot be warehoused; the expansion of foreign markets cannot be secured by next winter. So, after cultivating and picking the crop it will sell for not more than $30 a bale or $390,000,000. On the other hand, a 10,000,000 bale erop will, in all probability, be marketed for $50 a bale or $500,000,000. The expense of cultivation and picking will be much ess than the cost of producing the arger crop and the actual sale price of the ten million bale crop will be $110,-

000,000 greater. Now if 13 bales represented the full crop of a small farmer planting to provide his quota of a 13,000,000 crop, and the price was six cents per pound, he would sell for $390. If, however, he educed acreage and planted to proluce ten bales or his quota of a ten million bale crop, his return at ten cents a pound, would be $500. So by reducing his acreage, the small farmer would save the expense of producing three bales of cotton and would make $110 more than if he had the full crop. This is dependent, of course, on the farmers standing together and taking advantage of their opportunities. If they view the matter in the light of a cut throat game, every man for himing in the calculations. -The State.
