PROHIBITION AGAIN.

The Prohibition sts are moving fo

another election in this county, and it is just as well to discuss the matter a little. In our opinion the question is tion fairly well in Laurens county. one of expediency rather than of principle. Our judgment is that prohibition would be fairly well enforced in this county. The average Laurens white man doesn't want whisky. He will not go out of his way to buy it. Even those who occasionally get drunk Latimer. as a rule do so because the whisky is easy to get. Nine out of ten men who would go to a dispensary on a salesday told that he made capital speeches at in December and buy a flask would not the drainage convention in Baltimore, think about troubling themselves to spend haif an hour or an hour trailing sion. a blind tiger to get it. Most men who sometimes take a drink when it is handy would not juggle with a negro who happened to have a jug from which he was retailing in dark places. Of course there would be some whis ky sold, in spite of prohibition, in Laurens. Perhaps a good deal would be sold, but blind tigers, so long as they Mr. Martin is one of the most annoying were not permitted to sell openly, and so long as the policemen and other law officers watched them, would not sell in a month what an open dispensary sells in a day.

Some whisky would be imported for personal consumption by well-to-do perthem now. This imported whisky would yield no revenue to the county, but it would be consumed by the importers at their homes, and those who drink only at home rarely give trouble. It is not necessary for the police officers to watch them and arrest them for disorderly conduct.

The argument is made that prohibiwhisky and leaves the rich man to get his by express. This is true in some measure. Those who think that the poor man should not be robbed of the inalienable right to squander his money for liquor, and to tank up freely, will have to make all they can out of the one's personal liberty. It is not Democratic doctrine. We are free to say that it is un-Democratic doctrine; but, although we set up to conduct a Democratic newspaper, we do not claim Democracy to be infallible. The dispensary system is even more un-Democratic than is prohibition. The Democratic idea is the unrestricted sale of need of improving their morals and purposes of revenue. The chief argument for prohibition in this country is in the State. Judge Gage is one of the negro. The average negro is not the best judges in the State, and one of much more responsible than a child, the best men. Hence he is demoralized by the whisky traffic. He makes no attempt to control his appetite for it, and his usefulness as a laborer is greatly impaired. is multiplied. The argument that the dispensary is a good-paying institution is of course an empty one. When a man buys a 40 cents bottle, let us say that the county gets 10 cents profit. dispensary out of our neighbors in Spartanburg, Union and Greenwood. This is net profit. If Laurens county wishes to stay in the whiskey business for the money that's in it, regardless of the best interests of the people of neighboring counties which have abolished dispensaries, all right; but that s a low ambition. The less we say about it the better; it isn't a very re spectable thing to admit. A dispensary run to sell whisky to people whose coun ties have banished them is, in morals, no better than a blind tiger, because it aids these other counties' people to evade the law. Our local dispensaries, however, are not run with this design. The sale to outsiders is incidental. We couldn't prevent it if we would, but he sales to outsiders should not be an argument for keeping the liquor shops. If anything, it is an argument to abolish them. We do not wish to lead our brothers astray. Finally, THE ADVERTISER is not es pecially interested in this matter. There is something to be said on both sides of the question. We don't think anything less of a man who votes for county dispensaries in Laurens. The grog-shops (that's as good a name as raft. The ianthina fills its own air any, and just as clean and nice as dispensary) should be kept, if the people want them, because if they want them the prohibition law would certainly not be enforced. Our preference for prohibition rests wholly upon the belief that public sentiment is sufficiently strong in its favor to enforce prohibi-

A FLOATING SNAIL.

Peculiar Ways of This Wonderful Little Creature. There is a small snall which is so fond of the sea that it never comes to land, and it builds such a capital boat for itself and its eggs that while large ships are sinking and steamers are unable to face the storm it tosses about in perfect safety.

The little snall is of a violet color and is therefore called fanthina. It has a small shell, and there projects from the upper part of the body a long, tonguelike piece of flesh. This is the raft, and it is built upon most scientific principles, for it has compartments in it for air. It is broad and the air compartments are underneath so that it cannot capsize.

Moreover, the snail knows how stow away its cargo, for the oldest eggs and those which batch the soon est are placed in the center and the ghtest and newest on the sides of the compartments by getting a globule of air underneath its head. The body is then curved downward beneath the raft, and, the head being tilted on one side, the air rushes up and fills the spaces. It feeds on a beautiful little fellyfish, which has a flat, raftlike form with a pretty little sail upon it, and they congregate in multitude when the sea is calm.

Sometimes specimens are washed upon the northwestern coast of France, and when they are handled they give -out a violet dye.

When the Samlag was introduced two kinds of licenses were in existence-first, those granted annually or for a term not exceeding five years, and, second, privileged licenses, granted for the life of the licensee. In the case of the first no compensation whatever was paid to those dispossessed of their licenses. In regard to the latter compensation vas granted in the form of an annuity equal to the average yearly profits for the three years preceding the suppres

STAGE FRIGHT.

Actors Have Been Known to Die Fi the Malady.

Perhaps the most terrible malady which can attack the actor in the course of his performance in the pe culiar disease known as stage fright. Through its evil effects strong men and break down and do many other queer things, and there are even on record several cases of people who have died through this horrible seizure. Some years ago a young novice who was to appear for the first time arrived at the theater very white and Brandy being given him, he appeared slightly better, but no sooner and he set his foot on the stage than he clapped his hand to his heart, with a low cry, and fell down dead. The overwhelming sensation induced by stage fright had attacked his heart, and his theatrical career ended thus ven at its beginning.

oung amateur actress who, strangely enough, had never experienced stage fright when playing with her fellow amateurs, but who was seized with the attack on making her first professional appearance. She went through the scene aided by the prompter, her eyes glazed, her hands rigid, and when the exit came it proved her exit from life's stage as well as the mimic boards, for she staggered to her dressing room and fell into a comatose state, from which she never recovered.

Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran ship. performer who had gone through thirty years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him and that he did not think he could ever act again. His comrade laughed at the notion and urged kim to go on, as usual, but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and, after making several vain efforts to speak, fell back and expired. The doctor who made the postmortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.-Pearson's Weekly.

Lord Ferrors' Tragic Journey to Famous Old Gallows.

Park lane was Tyburn lane, and it cems as if the gallows-described in an old document as movable-at one time stood at its east corner. It was there the ferocious Lord Ferrers was ant. Horace Walpole's words paint the picture well: "He shamed heroes He bore the solemnity of a pompous and tedious procession of above two hours from the Tower to Tyburn with struction of the power of the spirit as much tranquillity as if he were only going to his own burial, not to his own And when one of the dragoons of the procession was thrown from his horse Lord Ferrers expressed much concern and said, "I hope there will be no death today but mine."

about it sufficient to make its progress slow and laborious. Small wonder that the age of Thackeray, with Thackeray's help, set up its scaffolds within four high walls. Asking for drink, Lord Ferrers was refused, for, said the sheriff, late regulations enjoined him not to let prisoners drink while passing from the place of imprisonment to that of execution, great indecencies having been committed by the drunkenness of the criminals in the hour of execution. "And though," said he, "my lord, I might think myself excusable in overlooking this order out of regard claimed that to the average man his to your lordship's rank, yet there is another reason, which, I am sure, will you-your lordship is sensible of the greatness of the crowd; we must draw up at some tavern; the confluence would be so great that it would delay the expedition which your lordship seems so much to desire."
