NEW QUARTERS FOR LIBRARY.

Will be Located in Rooms on Second Floor Enterprise Bank Building.

The Laurens Library association is making arrangements to move into rooms in the Enterprise Bank building. These rooms are light and more comfortable and will make very attractive library quarters.

The room which the library occupies is owned by Mr. J. O. C. Fleming and has been given by him to the Wednesday club ladies to use as a library free of rent as long as they wished to use it for such. Few people realize how much pleasure the library has given to the reading public of the town and how much they are indebted to the women who have so earnestly endeavored to keep up this organization.

The nucleus of the library was a few books given by Mr. J. R. Nolan some years ago, and to that, the Wednesday club has added until now they number over nine hundred volumes.

Some effort has been made to get Mr. Carnegie interested in contributing to a library fund in Laurens, but the matter has never been pushed and it is the belief of some that the plea for aiding the Laurens library never reached the ear of the great philanthropist, as he was traveling abroad when the letter was sent.

The library has been a means of giving pleasant reading to numbers of people who otherwise could not enjoy this privilege as it would have been too expensive. But for the small sum of ten cents a month anyone is entitled to the use of the books, subject to the rules of the library association.

There is often as many as twenty-five or thirty calls at the library room the two evenings in the week that it is thrown open and this verifies the statement that the library is an institution which the public will not see fail.
