EXCHANGES ON CONSISTENCY.

A Voice From Lexington.

The State has seen fit to make an attack on the Hon. C. C. Featherstone, candidate for governor, alleging that Mr. Featherstone has not been consistent. In a strong editorial on Saturday last, the Columbia Record, whose editor happens to be Jas. A. Hoyt, takes the position that all of the candidates for governor have changed their position on the liquor question during the last few years, and asks, why attack one and not the other? That is our position exactly. As to Mr. Featherstone, we fail to see where he has in the least showed inconsistency. Like the rest of us, he has only favored local option as "a means to an end" of the nefarious liquor system. There can be no longer any doubt as to the majority of South Carolinians being disgusted with the sale of liquor in any shape or form. The State was opposed to the dispensary system until all of the counties adjoining Richland voted out liquor. Now we had our esteemed contemporary and nearest neighbor championing the sale of liquor with characteristic vigor. In an effort to drift the minds of the people from prohibition to local option, The State has attacked Mr. Featherstone, a man whose life has been largely devoted to the cause of prohibition, and who has always stood for all that is high and noble in life. Why attack the others?

The Dispatch does not deny our contemporary the right to champion the cause of any candidate it sees fit, but we stand for right against the wrong, and we firmly believe that The State is going out of its way to defeat Mr. Featherstone.—Lexington Dispatch.

The Torrens System.

We take it for granted that the candidates for the legislature are acquainted with the basic principles of the Torrens system of land registration, but if they are not we trust they will take the little trouble necessary to inform themselves between now and the opening of the county campaign. If they will devote more of their time to the discussion of the Torrens system and less to the never ending liquor question the campaign will be more interesting and of some educational value.—Sumter Daily Item

One Year of Prohibition.

If the fact that Waterboro has advanced so much in one year of prohibition, as is evidenced by the great number of new buildings erected, what a pity we have not had prohibition many years ago. When Featherstone is elected and we have State-wide prohibition conditions will be even better.—Waterboro Press and Standard.

Wait until August 30.

When the campaign party gets up into the Piedmont, Mr. Featherstone ought to go to taking hand primaries.—Anderson Mail.

Emphasizes His Fitness.

The fact that the Columbia State has published about Mr. Featherstone with reference to his wise and judicious efforts to promote prohibition in South Carolina, only seem to urge his fitness for the governorship. If the State really desires to urge Mr. Featherstone's unsuitableness, let it give some facts prejudicial to his character, and capacity.—Yorkville Enquirer.

Mr. Featherstone Not Inconsistent.

The Columbia State has signally failed to make good its charge of inconsistency against Hon. C. C. Featherstone.

The State charged that Mr. Featherstone, now the prohibition candidate for governor, had at one time advocated local option.

This is true, but it is also true that Mr. Featherstone said at the time that he favored local option only as a means to an end—as a step toward complete State-wide prohibition.

As the Yorkville Enquirer points out, Mr. Featherstone has always stood for prohibition, even when favoring local option as the best thing obtainable at that time.

And as The Enquirer points out, Mr. Featherstone realizes, as others do, that the cause of prohibition must go forward. It cannot stand still. Unless the whole State is made dry those counties which are now dry may go back to selling liquor.

The fight for prohibition has been a long and hard one. Mr. Featherstone was among the first in the State to advocate the cause of prohibition, and he has never wavered and has never been inconsistent.

The State ought to know this as well as anybody else. Certainly it has fallen down in its attempt to prove Mr. Featherstone inconsistent. It has not deceived anybody, for the record in the matter is too fresh and too vivid for anybody to forget it.

At the same time we cannot go as far as the Yorkville paper, when it charges The State with opposing local option simply because it favors the sale of liquor and wants the sale of liquor to be continued. We believe The State honestly believes each county should have the right to settle this question for itself, without caring very much about the sale of liquor one way or another. We believe The State honestly believes this to be a great principle, but as we see it, it is a principle not worth contending for.

Local self-government is a good thing, in a way, but the will of the majority of the intelligent people of the State is a much better thing.

And that is a part of the platform upon which Mr. Featherstone is making the campaign for governor.—Anderson Mail.

Calm Reasoning.

In moments of calm reasoning, Mr. Featherstone does not think the use of liquor is debauching to public morals. He finds the use legitimate in Genesis, and he finds it legitimate at this time, by law and custom, in every civilized country on earth. And his legal lore assures him that the legal sale of that which is universal legitimate use is not "debauching to public morals."—Columbia State.

There is no escape from the conclusion that the State is reasoning calmly, but as to whether it is trying to reason sensibly is another question. We would be surprised at that kind of talk, even from a reputable wholesale liquor dealer, much less a man like Mr. Featherstone. There is a legitimate use for intoxicating liquor just as there are legitimate uses for strychnine, arsenic, cocaine, opium, etc., and the legitimate uses are incidentally referred to at several places in the Bible. To which of the Genesis references the State refers as legitimate, we are left only to our own assumption, and about the only thing that occurs to us as properly fitting in with the general tenor of its argument is the story of Noah's daughters making their father drunk with wine and their purpose therefor. If there was ever a more perfect agency for the debauching of public morals, we have never heard of it. Every page of the history of the South Carolina dispensary bears evidence of this fact, and we can conceive of but few things more astonishing than that a South Carolina newspaper could even suggest otherwise. The time was when the use of liquor was legitimate in every civilized country. The time was in this country when it was a matter of course, for preachers even to get drunk at weddings; but that time happily has passed, and there is not a civilized government on earth today that is not considering the restriction of the liquor traffic as one of the most serious questions with which it has to deal. And if it is not all because the liquor traffic is debauching to public morals, and to public health, we do not know the reason, for there is no other reasonable ground on which the traffic can or could be fought.—Yorkville Enquirer.

THE RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

President Wicker Issues Statement to Association Members.

President T. E. Wicker of the Rural Letter Carriers association of the State, has issued the following circular letter to the rural carriers of South Carolina:

To the Rural Carriers of South Carolina: The verdict of those who attended the Newberry convention was that it was a complete success. We had three or four times the largest attendance of any previous convention; we had with us one of the highest and most distinguished officials of the P. O. department; we had with us the carriers' friend, the editor of the R. F. D. News; we had with us special correspondents of the three leading newspapers of the State, viz: The News and Courier, the Columbia Record and The State, also correspondents of the local papers. The convention has made a favorable impression upon the public mind. Business men are awakening up to the fact that the rural carrier is one of the most important factors in our social and commercial life. They realize that he is a good advertiser, he is a good mixer among them, he is at home wherever he goes, he is a traveler and a talker, he has a speaking acquaintance with every man, woman and child under the sun. The real, live towns in South Carolina have recently noted this fact and at our next annual convention there will be some flattering invitations from some of the best towns in the State.

During the past year our membership has doubled. The boys are beginning to sit up and take notice. We must organize! We must treat this matter seriously, because it is getting to be a serious proposition. We want 100 members on or before Labor Day, September 5. We want volunteers, men with hearts in their bosom and sense enough in their heads to read the future. If you are not a member of the association send $1.35 to Secretary Paul K. Crosby, Ruffin, S. C., and become a member at once.

All county associations are requested to meet on Labor Day. Yours for work,

Thos. E. Wicker, President.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

It is an Internal Disease and Requires an Internal Remedy.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Oils and Liniments will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Liniments may ease the pain but they will not cure Rheumatism than paint will change the fibre of rotten wood.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumacide." Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumacide "gets at the joints from the inside," sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys and makes you well all over. Rheumacide "strikes the root of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 5c. and $1 a bottle. In tablet form at 25c. and $1 a package.
