LIFE AROUND LISBON.

The Crop Situation—House Burned—Hot Supper Mix-up.

Lisbon, August 30.—The farmers are about through with fodder—made a fine yield, but on account of the dry spell some of it is very inferior. We find after pulling the fodder the corn is not as good as we expect, yet the crop of corn is much better than that of last year. We can't think now that the cotton crop will yield as much as that of last year, from the fact that the crop is late. We have not seen an open boll of cotton to date. At this date last year we could have done a very good day's work in some parts of the farm. Rain could help yet and we would be glad to have a good season.

We had the pleasure of viewing Col. D. H. Counts farm last Monday on our way to Waterloo to attend the county campaign meeting. We must say that his crop is the finest we have even seen in Laurens county. Can't say what this dry spell will do for it.

Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth, assisted by Rev. Mr. Seavans of Spartanburg, conducted a meeting at Lisbon last week, from which several joined this church. We were very much pleased with Mr. Seavans, and we hope to have him with us again.

Messrs Lye Moore, Marion Wolf, and G. Furman Brown spent last Wednesday night with J. T. A. Ballew.

Capt. Horvey of the chain gang has completed some much needed work on roads from here to Laurens. Wish so much that the people of Lisbon could have given him and his convicts a dinner like the people of Santue.

Mr. Tom Holmes of the West is visiting his parents.

Miss Sara Holmes has been visiting in Greenville.

Mrs. Lillie Bowers and children of Macon, Ga. are spending a while with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith, also Miss May Smith of Dallas, Texas. We are always glad to see these young ladies visit their old home.

Mr. Clarence Smith made a brief visit to St. Louis a few days back. Mrs. J. T. A. Ballew left last Wednesday for Columbia where she will join a party of friends to spend a while on the sea shore.

Last Friday night on Mr. R. T. Duntap's place, one of his tenant houses was set on fire by the explosion of a lamp, the house and contents being destroyed.

There was a "hot supper" and a "hot time" up near Lisbon church Saturday night, on Mr. Ed Corbit's place. Two coons, Sibbie Brown and Daisey Walker had a difficulty, the latter using a knife with telling effect. Wade Workman, Jr. and John Johnson after the above fight hooked up for a few rounds.

C. C. FEATHERSTONE, THE LAURENS MAN FOR GOVERNOR

Hyatt but an additional handful of State-wide prohibitionists could be rallied for Featherstone were another election held with that question as the sole issue.

But force of circumstances has swept away whatever issue or issues existed in the first primary. There is a fresh start. There is no measure before the people of South Carolina to be given emphasis by their vote. The question now is of men.

And the men are C. C. Featherstone and Cole L. Blease. The question is between them: Which is better fitted to occupy the governor's mansion and to exercise the powers of a chief executive? In which of them should those people who love law and order, and dignity, and high standards, and who would throw protecting arms about their State, confide their hopes and give their trust?

A great fight was made in South Carolina four years ago, Barring, perhaps, the fight against deluded negroes and scalawags in 1876, a greater fight for decency and against corruption has not been made in South Carolina. That the State has a conspicuous part among the workers and was recognized as a leader of workers in a campaign resulting in the overthrow of the State dispensary system, reeking with corruption, is one of the most prized chapters in this newspaper's record.

The fight against the dispensary was waged to success under the banner of local option. Some local optionists protest that they can not now vote for a prohibitionist. We say that that issue is by force of circumstances, eliminated and that the views of the individual are immaterial at this time. But if local optionists yet hesitate, we ask them to contemplate the position of Candidate Blease when the real local option fight was made. Where was Candidate Blease when the lines were formed against the corrupt dispensary? Where was Candidate Blease when local optionists were rallying to Fraser Lyon, their candidate for attorney general?

Need we say he was entrenched with the dispensary forces and fought their fight to the very last ditch?

Is it to this convert—converted only after the victory of local option and after the annihilation of his dispensary consorts that local optionists who fought against that corrupt and corrupting thing, would entrust leadership?

Is it Mr. Blease, dispensary champion in its worst form, that the local optionists whose purpose is unselfish and whose principle is principle, would make their sponsor?

There is no issue but that of men—Featherstone or Blease—which?—Columbia State, Sept. 1.

Blease and the Dispensary.
Cole L. Blease, candidate for governor, was an active and persistent supporter of the old State dispensary bending his every energy to the last moment to save the institution in all its rottenness and corruption. The old dispensary had its day and has passed into oblivion. It is but fitting that a similar judgment be passed on its champion.—Chesterfield Advertiser.

McLeod's Vote.

Who'll get the McLeod vote? That is the question of deepest interest just at this time, and on the outcome depends who is to be the next governor of South Carolina. If Hyatt's and Richards' followers lined up behind these gentlemen as champions of Prohibition it stands to reason that the bulk of this vote amounting to something between 10,000 and 15,000 votes, will go to Mr. Featherstone. If the bulk of Mr. McLeod's strength, however, be composed of simon-pure lovers of local option, Mr. Blease being a champion of the same doctrine, may be regarded as Mr. McLeod's just and legitimate heir. The question of personality, though will enter in, and here is just where Featherstone will win, although Blease is wonderfully magnetic, and will command not a few votes for personal reasons.—Chester Reporter.

Featherstone Will Win.

This, then, is the political situation as it now presents itself. Summed up in a few words, the probabilities are that in the second primary Mr. Featherstone will win. If so, he will be elected on account of his personality and in spite of his prohibition views. If so, it will be because of the material assistance rendered him by the men who have been the supporters of McLeod, the local optionist. Mr. Featherstone cannot afford to forget it altogether if his ambition shall be realized and he comes next January to occupy the office of the Chief Executive in the State House at Columbia.—Charleston News and Courier.

Will Carry Spartanburg.

Hon. C. C. Featherstone of Laurens, who, with Hon. Cole L. Blease of Newberry, will be in the second primary for governor, spent today in Spartanburg. Mr. Featherstone is confident that with the continued loyal support of his friends he will defeat Mr. Blease by a good-sized majority and will be the next governor of South Carolina. However, he is not letting any grass grow under his feet and expects to keep hustling until the day of the election, and he hopes that his friends and supporters will do so.

Mr. Featherstone and his supporters are not saying any unkind things about Mr. Blease, and Mr. Blease is following the same policy. The campaign is being conducted on a high plane and is free from personalities and bitterness. It is a matter of choice as between the fitness of the two men for the great office of governor of South Carolina.

The vote for Mr. Featherstone and Mr. Blease was quite close together in Spartanburg county, Mr. Featherstone leading by only 28 votes. The race between them in the second primary will be interesting, but Mr. Featherstone's friends are confident that he will carry this county by a substantial majority.—Spartanburg Journal, Sept. 2.
