Electric Bitters

Succeed when everything else fails. In nervous prostration and female weaknesses they are the supreme remedy, as thousands have testified. FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND STOMACH TROUBLE It is the best medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter.

Almost to a unit the people who spend money on themselves with lavish hand, including others only when they are present and can't be dodged, call a person stingy who refuses to do this, saving his money for more noble purposes.

The "good fellow" who rubs his stomach against a bar until there is a worn streak just above the belt line and orders drinks for whoever happens to be near, expecting a return of the courtesy, calls the thrifty man who has no part in the performance a "tight-wad."

The town sport who lets loose of a three-dollar bill every time he feels like a buggy ride taunts with close-fistedness the young man who has no money for pool or cigars.

There seems to be a general inclination on the part of men and women who spend money extravagantly on themselves to class as stingy those who save their money and spend it on somebody else or to provide against misfortune to their loved ones.

We will come to a higher and nobler understanding of the great question of generosity when we fasten in our minds, with rivets spread at both ends, the following definitions:

A stingy man is one who spends money on himself or not at all. A generous man is one who spends money on others. The matter of economy has nothing to do with either.

There is a high and mighty air about the prodigal that is calculated to make a thoughtful man ashamed of his prudence. And it often does, for many a man with a backbone like a piece of spaghetti is unable to stand the fire of caustic criticism to which he is subjected by male bipeds of the sport class for watching his money carefully. But the man who is independent enough to keep from spending a dollar unless he or some one dear to him is going to get a dollar's worth of benefit out of it is the man who will some time be called on every 30 days to give the other his pay check and decide whether he shall ever get another like it.

Information About the Pine Beetle
United States Department of Agriculture
Office of the Secretary,
Washington, D. C.

October 25, 1911. In the fall of 1910 and winter of 1911 there were numerous requests from correspondents for information and assistance relating to the dying of pine in various sections of the southern states. In compliance with these requests the U. S. Department of Agriculture, through its experts and agents in the Bureau of Entomology, has given special attention to the subject. A thorough study has been made of the character and extent of the trouble in the South Atlantic and Gulf States during the past six months. Forest Insect Field Station 7 was located at Spartanburg, S. C., early in July to serve as the headquarters of representatives of the Bureau of Entomology, who, from this central point, have been very active in giving practical instructions and demonstrations on the cause of the dying pine and the remedy. Many thousands of circulars and letters of information have been sent direct to owners of pine in all of the South Atlantic and Gulf States. Addresses have been delivered at community, county, state, and inter-state meetings of owners of pine and others interested in the protection of the forest resources of the South, and the press has given wide publicity to the movement. There is now evidence of widespread interest in this subject and we are confident that if the information already given to the people is properly utilized in a concerted effort by the majority of the owners in the affected areas, the pine will stop dying.

With a view of securing direct information as to the interest manifested by owners of pine in each community where trees are dying, return postal cards are being sent to the owners with questions as follows. The replies to these questions will indicate to what extent the Department has attained its object of rendering a service to the people and whether or not further assistance is required.

Question to be Answered "Yes" or "No"
1. Are there patches of dying and dead pine in your community?
2. If there are patches of dying timber have you had information on the cause and remedy? By letter? Circular? Public address? Newspaper?
3. In your opinion is there sufficient interest in saving the pine in your community so that a majority of owners will take the required action this fall and winter to prevent further losses?

4. Do you or your neighbors desire any further information or instruction that will enable you to get the best results at the least expense?
5. Give the name and address of some owner in your community or county who is taking an active interest in the subject.

If owners of pine will answer the above questions by number and mail them to Forest Insect Field Station 7, Spartanburg, S. C. it will promote this movement for the protection of their timber.

If you are pale, weak, languid or anaemic a few doses of Bloodline Liver Pills will increase the supply and improve the quality of blood. Small pill, small dose, pleasant and never gripe.
