

How to Get Rid of Cut-Worms.

Now is the time to get rid of the troublesome cut-worms. Do not wait until they are ruining your stand of cotton and corn and then attempt to control them; for then there is little that can be done. In the fields where they did damage last year, plow the land deep this spring; for the worms which are going to give you trouble are now in little rounded cells in the soil, dug out for their protection last fall when cold weather came on. This deep plowing will turn many of the worms under so that they will never be able to get to the surface to do any damage. Not all of them will be killed in this way. Experience has shown that it is a good plan to follow this up by an additional measure. About planting time, in clear weather, cut any fresh green material which may be about the place, preferably clover, and dip this into a barrel of poison solution, made by dissolving one pound of Paris green (the substance that is used for killing potato bugs) in fifty gallons of water. In the late afternoon, scatter this poisoned vegetation lightly over the worst infested acres so that it will not wilt too quickly. The starved cut-worms, having had no food all winter, come out at night and eat this greedily, and are poisoned. Defer chopping the cotton or thinning the corn as long as possible; for the greater the amount of food the worms can get, the quicker they will mature, changing into a "candle-fly," and cease to trouble the crop. Frequent shallow cultivation, as close to the young plants as can be done without injury to them, also proves a check to the work of these pests. The best permanent way, however, to handle them, is by rotation of crops, practicing deep fall plowing, thorough spring preparation, and by keeping the land covered in winter with some cover crop, such as rye and vetch, or better still crimson clover, if it can be grown. Such steps as these will rid the land of the cut-worms and at the same time his extra cultivation will improve the land. The problem in the garden is a somewhat more difficult one, but the same methods apply. An important point to observe is to put plants badly affected, such as cabbage, as far away from their last year's place of planting as is practicable.

Child Unites Parents.

A touching scene was enacted in Magistrate A. H. Kirby's court yesterday, when the three-year-old child of a man named DeBrewell and his wife reunited the couple, who had been separated. DeBrewell left his wife over a year ago and went to Asheville. She supported the child by working in a cotton mill. Recently he came back and asked her to live with him again. She refused. He then instituted habeas corpus proceedings before Judge T. S. Sease to get possession of the child. Judge Sease awarded the father the baby because the mother would not consent to return to her husband and live with him. Mrs. DeBrewell then started a prosecution against her husband before Magistrate Kirby for desertion. When the case came up yesterday Major Kirby advised the couple to make up and live together again. He told them of a couple he knew who were separated for 17 years and then became reconciled with each other and lived together happily the rest of their lives. The baby ran from DeBrewell to Mrs. DeBrewell and back again, and so affected the parents that they decided to forget their differences and live together again. They left the office with the child, talking pleasantly with one another. —Spartanburg Herald.

Glorious News

comes from Dr. J. T. Curtiss, Dwight, Kan. He writes: "I not only have cured bad cases of eczema in my patients with Electric Bitters, but also cured myself by them of the same disease. I feel sure they will benefit any case of eczema." This shows what thousands have proved, that Electric Bitters is a most effective blood purifier. Its an excellent remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Price 50 cents. Satisfaction guaranteed by Laurens Drug Co. and Palmetto Drug Co.

What We Can Do and Do Not.

The 'sheep-growing industry is said to be declining throughout the United States and the prospect of an increasing scarcity of mutton and spring lamb is giving concern, especially in the East. The Transcript, of Boston, predicts that the census figures will disclose that the sowing of the fields of the Northwest in wheat is reducing the number and size of the flocks, and it asserts that in Massachusetts a sheep already is a stranger beast to the eyes of most school children than are the wild animals in the menageries. Even the magic of "Schedule K," it seems, has been impotent to prevent the depression in the industry generally in the United States.

In the South, of course, one must have remarkable temerity to advocate sheep raising. The steep hills and deep valleys in some parts of South Carolina, better adapted to sheep raising perhaps than to any other purpose, must continue to be neglected, and we suppose that the suggestion that it be undertaken upon a systematic scale would be regarded as a malign and sinister attack on our well-established and gloriously prosperous "yaller dog" industry. One would not be greatly surprised if what we are here saying should result in allying the friends of the "yaller dogs" during the coming campaign, lest a Legislature inimical to them and, by that same token, at enmity with the "poor man" be elected.

Now it happens to be the unpleasant truth that the beef now produced in this Grand Old State is not so good, opportunities in South Carolina.—beef fattened in the States of the Northwest—which is our own fault, and not the fault of the land we live in—but South Carolina mutton and lamb compare favorably with the most savory flesh of those same names produced in other sections of the United States. There is money, too, in raising sheep in South Carolina; here and there where a farmer has given it fairly diligent and intelligent attention he has made profits out of it, and the acres in the State that could be devoted to it and are now devoted to nothing in particular are hundreds of thousands. Some day or other we shall awake to our opportunities in South Carolina.—The Columbia State.
