Watts Mill, Nov. 4.—There was very good attendance at preaching last Sunday. On Sunday night Rev. J. M. Trogon preached a strong sermon, talking for his subject "The man possessed with the legion of demons." He showed how men, even at this day and time, could be demon possessed, showing also that men thus possessed were led to commit awful crimes.

He showed the great resemblance which a man possessed with the demon of strong drink, bears to the man of our Saviour's time who was possessed with a legion of demons. Then in closing this sermon Bro. Trogon pointed men to Jesus the Lamb of God who can cast out demons and make men to sit down, at his feet clothed with Christ's righteousness and in their right mind.

Bro. Trogon is a strong preacher of the gospel and we congratulate this new field on securing to labor among them such a faithful servant as is found in Bro. Trogon.

We are glad to know that Bro. Trogon will continue to live in our midst. For almost two years he has labored faithfully at this place.

Instead of preaching on the first Sunday morning at Lucas Avenue, Bro. Trogon will preach at Hurricane and will fill the pulpit here on the second Sunday night instead.

THE SOLDIER-BISHOP.

Biography of the Late Bishop Ellison Capers, by his Son, Rev. Walter B. Capers.

The Soldier-Bishop, Ellison Capers, is the title of a book just off the press of the Neale Publishing Company, New York. It is a biography of the late Bishop Ellison Capers, compiled by his son, Rev. Walter B. Capers, President of Columbia Institute, Columbia, Tennessee. The volume is handsomely bound in purple, with gold and red trimmings, and printed on a durable paper, making a very attractive book mechanically, well in keeping with the style of the contents and the subject treated. Bearing witness to the pleasure which the autobiography of his father gave him, Bishop Capers, while a minister in Columbia, began a "Journal", of his own life, for the benefit of his own children. This "Journal" is largely made use of and lending to this book an accuracy not ordinarily attained in works of this kind. The full life history of the soldier and churchman is given, beginning in his early childhood, when he was "not noted for his studious habits" continuing through the successive steps as a professor at the Arsenal, as a gallant soldier in many conflicts during the Sixties and afterwards as a minister and then bishop. The book makes an interesting portrayal of the life of one of the state's best loved men and doubtless it will be received and eagerly read in many homes and then placed on the shelves as a reference for future generations.

CAROLINA COTTON.

Watson Says Meeting of Cotton Congress is Necessary and After That is Held Price Will Go Up.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 3.—Commissioner Watson of the state department of agriculture, as the cotton marketing season has advanced, has been receiving communications from farmers and others interested in many parts of the country, making inquiry in regard to the size of the cotton crop, the prospective range of prices and the demand for cotton. Many have asked him whether as president of the Southern Cotton Congress he was going to call the session of the congress to be held in Atlanta, the congress having left the matter of the issuance of the call to his discretion. He said today that a meeting of the congress was not necessary and that the price of cotton was bound to go upward. "Those who are selling in a rush are making presents of the difference to somebody," he said. He pointed out today that there has been a great reduction in acreage and that there is a greater demand. He urged the long staple growers to hold their product.

Pons and Charleston.

The interview given by Francis J. Pons to the Cincinnati Enquirer and reproduced in The News and Courier yesterday ought to be humiliating and seriously disturbing to every Charlestonian who loves his city and has its welfare at heart. Probably Mr. Pons when he visits Charleston again, as it is stated that he will do soon, will deny the authenticity of the remarks attributed to him. We take it they were not intended for the edification of the people of this city, where no publicity is desired at this time for Mr. Pons' racing plans, whatever they may be; but the interview rings true and, alas that if it should be so, the worst of it is the reputation which Mr. Pons ascribes to Charleston is that which it enjoys generally among the members of the fraternity of which he is a shining light.

How much longer is this state of things to continue? Is not the community in general and the business community in particular awakening to the realization that a city of less than thirty thousand white people cannot support the vices of a great metropolis and that their toleration, nay, their patronage, breeds an atmosphere stifling to healthy development? Surely it is not possible that citizens of Charleston will feel no sense of outrage that a man like Pons can continue to give out interviews in various parts of the country in which he talks with calm assurance of being allowed to conduct a racing meet here in open defiance of the law? But there can be no protection against and no relief from such experiences while conditions in Charleston remain as they now are.—News and Courier.
