

SUPPOSED OUTLAW IN GREENVILLE

Captured at Cotton Mill Village and Placed in County Jail. Much Money on Deposit.

Greenville, Mar. 26.—Suspected of being one of the three outlaws who held up a Queen & Crescent passenger train twelve miles north of Birmingham on the night of February 19th and robbed the mail pouches of registered packages said to contain $70,000, John Radliff, aged 36, was arrested today while at work in the Woodside cotton Mills where he has been employed for the past week.

A search of Radliff's trunk today revealed that he had on deposit in the Norwood National Bank of Greenville the sum of $18,000 or more, and that he also had on deposit in an Atlanta bank a sum amounting to approximately $8,000. Except for five or six dollars which he had on his person, Radliff had no other cash in his room. In his trunk was also found a shot gun, besides a lot of clothing. The trunk was found in a room at Frier's boarding house near Brandon cotton mills, where Radliff had boarded since coming to Greenville on Friday, March 13th.

Nothing was known of Radliff in Greenville and vicinity before he came here on March 13th. He was looked upon as peculiar by the residents of Brandon and Woodside mills, but other than this no suspicion was aroused among the mill operatives. He seemed to be a quiet and unobtrusive sort of a man it is stated.

The suspect was arrested by Deputy W. D. Howard of Woodside mills, following an extensive investigation here by railway detectives, who have been secretly working on the case in this city for the past few days. There are two other suspects implicit to have information which will result in their apprehension before nightfall.

Was Working in Mill.

Radliff was arrested this morning about 9 o'clock while at work in the slaying room of the Woodside mills, for which received wages of $1 per day. Deputy Howard approached him and quickly covered him with a revolver. He submitted to arrest and was led from the mill and turned over to Detective Miller of the Southern railway, who awaited the prisoner outside.

The detective was unwilling to risk the chance of taking the suspect to the Greenville jail by himself, so he called on Deputy Howard and the two carried Radliff to the city police station where he is being held pending a further investigation.

Radliff denied having any connection with the hold-up and robbery of the Queen & Crescent train in Alabama, but acknowledges that he was arrested and convicted several years ago for a similar offense. He talks in a very excited manner and his actions are peculiar. The detectives appear confident that they have the right man and are now close on the trail of the other two men who are said to be implicated in the robbery.

Deputy W. D. Howard, of Woodside mills, who was detailed by the detectives to make the arrest, stated today that he looked upon Radliff as a suspicious character when he first came to his house at Woodside mills and asked to get board. He was given dinner at Mr. Howard's home that day, but did not return afterwards, later securing board at Frier's boarding house near Brandon mill.

"When he got ready to leave he asked my wife what he owed her for the dinner, as he was undecided as to whether or not he would stay at Woodside," said Mr. Howard. "He pulled out a roll of paper money as large as your forearm and asked my wife to change $10. She told him she had no change and he then pulled out some small change.

"While eating dinner he remarked that he was possibly the wealthiest boarder that we had ever had, and that we ought to see his trunk if we really wanted to see some money. "His trunk was not delivered at our house. I never saw Radliff again except in going to and from his work at the mill, and until I was called upon for assistance by the railway detectives I never thought to inquire where he was staying. I know he was boarding out from the Woodside village because he carried a meal bucket each day.

"Yesterday morning Detective Miller of the Southern railway came to me and asked that I help locate a certain person for him and from the description he gave I knew quite sure it was Radliff, so went to work at once to find where he was staying. When the mill shut down yesterday afternoon for the day, I got a boy to follow Radliff and get the number of house where he was staying. I did not go myself for fear that Radliff might suspect something. The boy told me that Radliff entered the Frier's boarding house."

"This morning the detectives came to me and asked me to go with them to get Radliff as they had a warrant to search his premises. They suggested that all the detectives, about four or five in number go with them I thought two would be sufficient. So Detective Miller, who works on the Greenville-Spartanburg division of the Southern railway, and I got ready to make the arrest. Sheriff Rector was away at the time and could not be found to go with us.

"I went to where Radliff was working and said, 'consider yourself under arrest; at the same time covering him with my gun. He did not resist but attempted to deny the accusation at first, when informed by the detective that he was the bandit, who with a party of two other men, held up the Queen & Crescent train north of Alabama and robbed mail pouches of registered mail valued at anywhere from forty to seventy thousand dollars."

Neat Appearance.

Radliff is a man of nice appearance being about 36 years of age and weighing about 155 pounds. He is low and of heavy build. He has light complexion but dark hair.

The railway detectives carried their prisoner to the city police station this morning after the arrest and instructed the desk sergeant not to permit anybody to see or talk to Radliff. A reporter for the Daily Piedmont made an effort to see the suspected bandit immediately after his incarceration, but his efforts were futile.

Officer Martin Bridges who was acting in the capacity of desk sergeant at the time Radliff was incarcerated stated that the detectives were explicit in their instructions and that as a matter of courtesy he would not permit anybody to see the accused man. Captain Gilreath and Desk Sergeant Thomson were in the chief's office when the reporter asked for permission to see Radliff, and they, too, were adverse to an interview since the detectives had requested that all outsiders be excluded.

Officer Bridges later consented to an interview provided the detectives would give their consent.—Greenville Piedmont.
