A Bad Case of Nasal Catarrh Cured By Pe-ru-na.

That any case of nasal catarrh can be cured by an internal medicine is denied by some. Only a glance at our files would be necessary to convince any sane person that catarrh can be cured by the internal use of Peruna

"I have been using Peruna for catarrh, having had a very aggravated case, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs. When I did get the nasal organs opened, the mucus would drop into my throat and make me very sick.

"A friend advised me to take Peruna, and after using four bottles I was cured. I have no trouble now, and am happy to say that I am enjoying the best of health and attending to my lodge duties, being a member of the Rebecca Lodge of Och Fellows.

"I would recommend Peruna to those suffering with the same obnoxious trouble."

It Always Helps says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill. I wish every suffering woman would give

BRITAIN TO REPLY WITHIN FEW DAYS

Attitude Toward Note Friendly, Page Reports. Press Tone Amicable, Too. Washington, Jan. 1 .-- Ambassador

Walter Hines Page, in a long report from London, today after his conference with high officials there, described the general attitude of the British government and people toward the American note of protest concerning shipping as entirely friendly. He said a reply had been promised within a

The ambassador detailed British press criticism, whose tone he regarded as on the whole reasonable and amicable. In some quarters, not among officials, he found a disposition to search for a motive behind the American note, some Englishmen suggesting that Washington had been compelled to yield to pressure from members of Congress representing constituencies affected by trade interruptions. This portion of English public opinion seemed to think the American note was intended to some extent for home consumption.

Washington officials pointed out tonight that there was not the slightes! foundation for such a suggestion, as the note was not originally intended for the press. It is understood that Ambassador Page had anticipated mistaken impressions by assuring the over the scalp. British government informally that the United States was thoroughly in earnest. The note was phrased in a candid and frank manner, he is understood to have explained, particularly because it was not written for publication. As the synopsis leaked out, however, the ambassador had been instructed to arrange for publication of the complete text.

Incidentally the ambassador cabled that the British government had corrected English newspaper reports which spoke of discourtesy in a premature publication. Mr. Page reported that Lord Haldane, in charge of the foreign office, was informed of the purport of the communication before even the first intimation of the contents of the note was published, Officials read the views in the British press with much interest. The argument that England is fighting what she believes to be a life and death recognized in the American note, but it was contended that delays and detentions exceeded the manifest necessity of a belligerent.

The general belief in Washington is that a common ground will be reached in future diplomatic correspondence whereby definite arrangements will be put into effect to relieve American exporters of uncertainty.
